CHINCHOW, Dec. 30.—While Chinese troops continued to move out of Chinchow, bound for China proper, below the Great Wall, two large Japanese airplanes today encircled Chinchow. They spent more than thirty minutes inspecting the city, particularly the railway yards.

No bombs were dropped, but dispatches from Kowpangtze and Tahushan report that both these places were heavily bombed this morning. More than forty bombs were dropped on Tahushan. Serious damage was done to the railway tracks and transportation was paralyzed.

The first Japanese planes appeared over Tahushan and Kowpangtze at 10 a. m. Tahushan was visited by seven planes. Only one plane visited Kowpangtze. It dropped three bombs which damaged the Peiping-Mukden railway tracks east of the city.

Chinchow Is Terrorized.

An hour later ten planes circled over both towns. They dropped four bombs, this time on Kowpangtze. At noon two more Japanese bombers visited Kowpangtze and dropped more bombs.

Military headquarters here are not yet advised regarding the extent of the damage or the number of casualties, but the repeated bombing of the cities created a state of terror among the residents here, where a depleted military headquarters is still functioning. Most of the panic stricken Chinese troops have fled to the Great Wall.

The civilian population here remembers the Japanese bombing on Oct. 8, when more than eighty bombs were dropped, causing more than twenty casualties, including a German university professor. The populace has armed a system of signals, consisting of bell ringing, whistling, and gong pounding, following which people run for cover.

Watch Developments.

Gen. Tungchien, commander of the Chinchow forces, returned here late today from Peking and immediately proceeded to headquarters, where he conferred with staff officers.

He declined to see American, French and British military observers, who are anxiously watching developments.

The general's sudden return caused considerable speculation. Reports were that the new Nanking régime counseled the evacuation of Chinchow against the wishes of Marshal Chang Hsueh-liang, who desired to hang on with the small Chinese forces.

Japanese Troops March On.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

MUKDEN, Manchuria, Dec. 30.—The Japanese military machine, marching forward with efficient precision and crushing all opposition decisively out of the way, was camped tonight within striking distance of Chinchow. One column of the Japanese army, under command of Gen. Jiro Tamon, was just east of Kowpangtze, on the railway from Mukden. The other column, under command of Gen. Kamura, was at Tahushan, southeast of Kowpangtze.

Both Gen. Kamura's brigade began its march south from Hsinmin at dawn today, advanced forty-three miles on foot, by trains, and on foot. The troops occupied the important junction of Tahushan at 2:30 p. m. Tahushan is twenty-six miles northeast of Kowpangtze.

Japanese Columns Meet Today.

Gen. Tamon's column began its day's advance from Panshan, which it captured yesterday at dawn. At 11 o'clock official reports said the Japanese cavalry and infantry confronted large Chinese forces along an arc about ten miles north and northwest of Panshan. Further official information of Gen. Tamon's operations is lacking. It is known that the vanguard of his army at nightfall was within ten miles of Kowpangtze.

The two armies expected to begin their drive on Kowpangtze at dawn today, thus effecting a junction of the two Japanese forces for the purpose of the offensive against a group of miles to the south.

Gen. Kamura's first units left Tahushan

REVELRY QUEEN 'WELCOMES' U. S. AT PLANET MARS

Dry Agents Seize All Furnishings.

The revelry of nearly 100 pre-New Year celebrants in the Planet Mars night club at 188 West Randolph street, was interrupted early this morning when eleven dry agents, led by Deputy Prohibition Administrator A. E. Aman, raided the place.

As they entered Texas Guinan, night club hostess from Broadway, a veteran in numerous similar intrusions, lifted her arms toward them and murmured "Welcome."

The raid was staged quickly with little confusion. The only activity centered in the kitchen, where Deputy Aman and several aids came upon one Jo Fey busy smashing some bottles. The patrons were not molested and were allowed to depart quietly. Within an hour after their entrance the agents began stripping the club.

All Furnishings Seized.

Chairs, tables, draperies, and even two pianos were carried and pushed out upon the sidewalk, while a nocturnal crowd looked on, and piled into a truck. The drastic action of stripping the club of its furnishings was based on a recent court decision in a New York case, which authorized the "confiscation of all furnitures and appurtenances used in the sale of liquor.

The agents entered the Planet Mars shortly before 1 o'clock. At the moment Guinan's "little girls" were dancing on the floor to the lively tempo of a tune from the orchestra. The patrons were at their tables looking on.

To one side stood Miss Guinan, shaking hands with Fred Kaplan, her attorney, who had just arrived from New York.

"All my suits have been disposed of successfully and I'm all clear with the government," Miss Guinan was saying. She turned around as the squad of agents filed in, and extended her arms.

Warrant Based on Booze "Buy."

Aman produced a night warrant obtained secretly from Commissioner Edwin K. Walker earlier in the day. It charged that liquor had been purchased on the premises about 5 a. m. Wednesday. The document read to Miss Guinan and Harry Voller, the manager, the deputies scattered about the place, looking under tables, in corners, in the orchestra pit, and in the kitchen. Somewhere Aman said he found two bottles of booze.

Meanwhile, the chorus ceased dancing, and the orchestra stopped playing. Several of the guests arose and started for the door. They were told they could depart. Miss Guinan looked on and murmured something about having "$10,000 worth of reservations for the New Year's celebration tonight."

After a preliminary search, Deputy Administrator Aman summoned Voller and Miss Guinan.

"We're going to clean out this place," he announced. "Chairs, tables, even pianos."

"Not So Good," Tex Frowns.

Miss Guinan frowned. So did Voller. They said nothing at the time.

"And both of you will have to appear before Commissioner Walker at 10 o'clock this morning," continued Aman. Miss Guinan looked at her wrist watch. It indicated 2 a. m. "I'll be asleep at that time," she protested. But Aman warned that she must appear, and resumed search of the place.

Voller was arrested later when he protested against the moving of the furniture, and was locked up. "I've got $80,000 invested in this joint," he said. "Times are tough, have a heart."

Aman ordered Henry Dorfner, 1443 Victoria street, the head waiter; Henry Allen, 828 East 48th street, a waiter, and Fey, the man in the kitchen, to be placed under arrest. According to Aman, his agents made the purchase in the club on which the warrant was based. Dorfner "O.K'd" the order, he said, and Allen supplied the liquor.

Tex "Just Works Here."

Miss Guinan was asked if she owned the cabaret or had a part interest.

"Why, I'm only a little girl from New York in Chicago," she told Aman. "I don't own the place, and I don't know who does. I just work here."

At this time the deputies started to carry out the furniture Guinan eyed them.

"Well," she said. "If I don't get back my chairs and tables by tonight, we'll all have to sit on the floor. I wish people would take notice, by the

Early Returns in Finland Dry Vote 90% Wet

BULLETIN.

[Copyright: 1931: By the New York Times.]

HELSINGFORS, Dec. 31 (Thursday).—On the basis of returns from 17 out of 52 precincts in Helsingfors it was apparent that Finland's capital had gone preponderantly wet. Of a total of 28,227 votes cast in the 17 precincts 25,128 favored abolition of the dry law, 2,899 were for its maintenance and 200 for modification to permit sale of light wines and beer.

HELSINGFORS, Finland, Dec. 30.—(AP)—Returns from 11 out of 52 precincts in Helsingfors tonight showed that 90 per cent of the votes cast in the prohibition referendum in those precincts were for abolition of Finland's dry law.

Nine per cent of the votes cast in the 11 precincts was for retention of prohibition. Only 1 per cent of the ballots were for light wines and beer.

The first results surprised political circles, as even the opponents of prohibition had not expected such a strong anti-prohibition vote.

The balloting in the referendum ended at 10 o'clock tonight, but the final result probably will not be known for several days, possibly as many as nine.

All Ballots Sealed.

All ballots must be sent sealed to Helsingfors, and means of communication in outlying parts of the country are inadequate for quick returns.

When the polls were closed after two days of voting no one in authority was willing to forecast the result. It was accepted that the cities had generally voted wet and the country dry, but that was about all anybody would say.

Political circles believed that even should only 40 per cent of the nation vote wet, the government would argue that prohibition no longer was enforceable. As the referendum is consultative only, it will not finally decide the problem, but will serve as a guide.

Although an outside issue, the question of the Finnish budget played an important part in the minds of many voters. Ragnar Furuhjelm, chairman of the parliament finance committee, declared the 1932 budget to be safely balanced, but said the problem of covering expenditures from income in 1933 will become increasingly difficult.

More than 55 per cent of the voters of Helsingfors cast ballots in the referendum, figures available at midnight indicated. This was about the same percentage as in presidential and parliamentary elections.

In the working class districts women largely abstained from voting, while in the wealthier districts women cast a majority of the ballots.

Reports from about a dozen cities indicated that approximately 47 per cent of the voters went to the polls.

HOPE TO AVERT RADIO WALKOUT IN NIGHT PARLEY

Prospects developed late last night for an agreement averting the strike of radio musicians called for midnight tonight when representatives of the Chicago Broadcasters' association and officials of the Chicago Federation of Musicians met in conference.

Early this morning William S. Hedges, chairman of the broadcasters' executive committee, authorized an announcement indicating that a settlement was impending. The announcement was as follows:

"The chairman of the executive committee of the broadcasters' association and officials of the union were still in session at 1 o'clock this morning trying to develop a proposal for a contract which would meet with the approval of the radio stations and the union.

"As a result of this conference, hope was expressed by both sides that the radio strike scheduled for midnight tonight might be averted."

Rosenwald Is Seriously Ill; Call Children

Julius Rosenwald, noted philanthropist and chairman of the board of Sears, Roebuck & Co., is gravely ill in his home at Ravinia, it became known yesterday. Mr. Rosenwald is 69 years old.

It was last April when Mr. Rosenwald first became ill. Since then he has been continuously under medical care in his home. His condition has become worse within the last few days, and members of his family have been summoned.

Lessing Rosenwald of Philadelphia, a son, was already in Chicago and was at his father's bedside at the Rosenwald residence last night, as was Mrs. Alfred K. Stern of Ravinia, a daughter. Other children who are expected to reach their father's bedside today are Mrs. Adele R. Levy of New York, Mrs. Edith R. Stern of New Orleans, and William Rosenwald of Philadelphia.

Bulletin of Physician.

A bulletin on the patient's condition was given out last night by his physician, Dr. Herbert Pollack of New York City, who is in constant attendance. It stated:

"Mr. Rosenwald has been suffering for some time from hardening of the arteries and a kidney ailment. He had a severe attack Tuesday from which he is rallying nicely. He is resting quite comfortably tonight."

According to Dr. Pollack, Mr. Rosenwald is active mentally and is able to read the newspapers. The physician declined to express any opinion as to Mr. Rosenwald's chances of recovery.

In Touch With Philanthropies.

Despite his illness which has kept him from his office for the greater part of the time since last April, Mr. Rosenwald has kept in active touch with affairs. As one of the outstanding philanthropists of the nation, he has continued to supervise the expenditures of millions in his charities. When the call came for help from the governor's emergency relief commission this fall, he offered to contribute $250,000 if five other wealthy men would do the same. The other five gifts were not forthcoming, and Mr. Rosenwald made an outright donation of $150,000.

Mr. Rosenwald devoted millions to the advancement of the Negro race. His last trip away from Chicago was made last spring to Tuskegee Institute, great center of Negro education in Alabama, of which he is a trustee. Shortly before this trip he and Mrs. Rosenwald returned from a vacation journey to Honolulu.

Children Aid Charities.

Last month a statement was issued on the expenditures of the Rosenwald fund, showing that more than $3,500,000 had been given out in 1931. Of this $1,200,000 went to Negro aid. Mr. Rosenwald has directed that the work of the fund be supplemented. As a result it was announced last week that his two sons and three daughters had formed a corporation, to be known as the Rosenwald Family association to continue his philanthropic interests. The capital of this fund, it was indicated, would be smaller than the $25,000,000 capital of the parent fund.

Mr. Rosenwald celebrated his sixty ninth birthday last August. He was born in Springfield. After years in the wholesale clothing business Mr. Rosenwald joined Sears, Roebuck & Co., serving as vice president and treasurer and president before he became chairman of the directorate.

DYNAMITE PLOT IS DIRECTED AT U. S. FASCISTS

Five Other Persons Are Injured.

Easton, Pa., Dec. 30.—[Special.]—Seven bombs were mailed at the Easton postoffice today. Two of them exploded within a few moments, killing two postal clerks and wounding three others.

A third bomb exploded while a police dynamite expert examined it, wounding him, probably fatally. It also wounded the chief county detective of Northampton county.

The dead are:

Edward W. Werkheiser, 29, of Easton. Died in the Betts hospital shortly after the explosion.

John B. House, 55, of Easton, who died in the Easton hospital a few hours later.

The injured are:

Charles V. Weaver, 50, of Easton, explosive expert, probably fatally mangled while examining the remaining packages.

Arlington A. Albert, 26, of Easton, postal clerk.

Clarence Keller, 32, of Easton, postal clerk.

David W. Garis, 50, of Easton, postal clerk.

George J. Ryan, county detective, injured with Weaver in second explosion.

Bombs Aimed at Fascists.

The packages of death were addressed to persons in New York, Pittsburgh, Baltimore, and Huntingdon, Pa. The one to Huntingdon was addressed to J. T. Everhart, official of the state reform school.

The others were addressed to Italian consulates and to an Italian paper of Fascist policies.

A police guard was thrown around the postoffice immediately after the first explosion and state and city explosive experts took over the premises for the time being.

Through a short statement made by Werkheiser before he died and confirmed by other clerks, it was learned that the clerks were suspicious of the packages and had decided to open them.

Explodes While Being Opened.

The package which exploded had just been placed on the scale and Werkheiser and House had started to rip into it when it blew up, exploding a second package with it. One of Werkheiser's hands which was resting on the scale was blown off, along with parts of House's two arms. Albert was standing about five feet away and Keller was some twenty feet distant. Both were hurled to the floor, but each managed to escape serious injury.

The second explosion occurred at a quarry near the Delaware river. Weaver and police had taken the remaining packages there to examine their contents.

One package had been opened and successfully exploded after examination. A second was opened, examined, and prepared for explosion. It did not fire as expected.

Caught by Second Blast.

Weaver returned to discover the reason and just as he reached it it discharged. The full force of the explosion struck him, severely mangling his body and legs. At the hospital he was reported near death.

Ryan also was injured and was suffering greatly from shock. He is in a hospital.

Police then halted examination of the remaining packages.

Weaver for 18 years was connected with the E. I. Dupont de Nemours company, and was considered an authority on explosives.

Police believe the explosives were mailed by two young men of foreign appearance who were seen addressing a number of parcels in the lobby of the postoffice earlier in the day. Werkeiser said that the pair seemed in a hurry to get away and that he accepted the packages after a cursory examination. The pair then hurried away.

Hospital authorities who examined the wounds of the injured men said that the packages had contained either TNT or some nitroglycerin compound. None of the wounds was such as to have been inflicted by simple gunpowder, they said.

Three of the packages were addressed to residents of New York

City. The addresses, as made out at the postoffice, were:

Mr. Gt. Uff. Generosa Pope, 55th avenue, New York, owner of the Italian paper, Progresso Italo Americano.

Italoc Falbo, editor of the same paper, addressed to 42 Elm street, New York.

Mr. Com Crozzi, 134 East 10th street, New York. Vice consul at New York.

Natap Mariane, Argentine vice consul, care Natap Argentine consulate, Baltimore.

J. E. Gerhart, Huntingdon, Pa.

V. Cuto, 514 Neville street, Pittsburgh (the address of the Italian vice consulate).

All but Gerhart are considered by authorities to be sympathizers with Fascism, and the bombs are thought to be the work of anti-Fascist agitators.

The package directed to the Argentine consulate in Baltimore, was incorrectly addressed to Baltimore, Va.

All the packages carried a return address of "Mr. J. Makey," Dover, N. J.

Had Received No Threats.

New York, Dec. 30.—[Special.]—Representatives of Generoso Pope, Dr. Italo Carlo Falbo, and Emanuele Grazzi insisted today, when they learned of the bomb explosion in Easton, Pa., that there had been no threats nor forewarnings of any kind that they were marked for death. They believed the bomb mailers were cranks.

Extra patrolmen were assigned to guard the Italian consulate, where Mr Grazzi has his office; the Il Progresso plant, where Dr. Falbo has his offices, and to the home and offices of Mr. Pope.

Lieut. Newman, head of the bomb squad, detailed two of his men to Easton with orders to try to run down the bomb mailers and to determine, if possible, whether they came out of New York.

If the men who sent bombs had chosen for their victims only the Italian consuls, Lieut. Newman said, the matter would be greatly simplified, but the fact that they addressed one to an Argentine consul and to a reform school official, as well, blurred the motive and tended to uphold the crank theory.

Mr. Pope could not be reached tonight as S. M. Pino, his secretary, insisted that the Pope publications—Corriere d'America, Bollettino Della Sera, and Il Progresso Ital-Americano, of which Dr. Falbo is editor—have not been pro-Fascist, nor anti-Fascist. Pope is esteemed to be one of New York's wealthiest Italians, is president of the Colonal Sand and Stone company and a friend of Mayor Walker.

GIBSON NAMED U. S. DELEGATE AT ARMS MEET

Washington, D. C., Dec. 30.—[Special.]—Hugh Gibson, ambassador to Belgium, was announced today as a member of the American delegation at the general disarmament conference in Geneva next February, and Hugh Wilson, minister to Switzerland, was designated an alternate delegate to serve in the event of the incapacity of any of the delegates.

Announcement of the appointments was made by the state department by direction of the White House under circumstances indicating that the delegation was now complete, with five members and an alternate. This would mean that President Hoover has not been successful in obtaining the services of a Republican senator in the delegation but it was stated today that the door was open to additional appointments.

Republican senators have preferred not to go to Geneva on account of next year's presidential campaign. As the delegation stands it includes only one senator, Claude A. Swanson of Virginia, a Democrat.

CUT TREES FOR JOBS AND FUEL AT FT. SHERIDAN

Twenty-six men in Shields township, Lake county, unemployed for months, received a post-Christmas present yesterday. They were given work to round out the old year and begin the new year, and at the same time provide their homes with fuel.

Their task is to cut down 3,000 trees on the Fort Sheridan reservation. The trees will be distributed among them and other needy families in the township, which includes Lake Forest and Lake Bluff. In addition, the men will be paid standard wages for their work.

The project resulted from the collaboration of Daniel A. Hentges, township supervisor; Matt Atkinson, road commissioner, and Brig. Gen. Frank Bolles of Fort Sheridan. To make the purchase of the trees a legal transaction, Shields township paid $25 to the government. It was pointed out that the benefit of the plan would be not only to furnish wares and fuel, but to remove certain timber which hampered military movements on the reservation.

LOSS 14 MILLION AS H. O. STONE CO. ASSETS ARE SOLD

U. S. Court Auction Brings Only $137,500.

BY AL CHASE.

The entire assets of H. O. Stone & Co. were sold at public auction in Federal Judge Charles E. Woodward's court yesterday for $137,500 to the Continental Illinois Bank and Trust company. Several thousand creditors of the ninety-five year old investment bond and real estate house, with claims totaling approximately $14,500,000, will receive nothing, according to Charles F. Hough, counsel for the Chicago Title and Trust company, receiver. The sale is one of the final steps in one of Chicago's greatest real estate crashes.

H. F. NORCOTT. [Moffett Photo.]

H. O. Stone & Co., at one time known as one of the city's most conservative firms, was acquired a few years ago by interests headed by Henry F. Norcott as president. It started a sensational career which involved the selling of stock to the public for $7,500,000. This $2,500,000 in preferred and $5,000,000 in common stock has now been wiped off the slate, with a complete loss to the purchasers.

Bonds Total 30 Millions.

Under the Norcott régime the concern plunged into the mortgage bond business on such a scale that when the crash came there was outstanding $30,000,000 in bonds underwritten and sold by the company. A majority of these issues have defaulted and are now going through reorganization.

Meanwhile there have been extensive hearings before Referee Donald H. McGilvray in connection with charges of mismanagement and conspiracy against officials of the Stone concern. The United States district attorney's office is understood to have had the case under investigation for some time.

Norcott, who maintains an office on La Salle street, could not be reached for a statement concerning the sale yesterday.

Court Approves Sale.

Yesterday's sale was approved by Judge Woodward on the recommendation of Attorney Hough. According to the latter the $14,500,000 liabilities which have been wiped out are as follows: $7,000,000 in general claims, [including $3,000,000 of debentures]; $2,500,000 in preferred stock and $5,000,000 in common.

Of the $137,500 paid by the Continental Illinois bank, nearly $30,000 is due the bank on loans made to the receiver. These assets include some free unpledged mortgages on real estate as well as fixtures of the Stone company.

The receiver's final report submitted to the court showed that approximately $1,500,000 was taken in during the receivership. The report also showed a pay roll of $92,000; other disbursements of $367,000; receiver's fees of $50,000 and legal services, $50,000. The receivers also paid, it is understood, $1,000,000 of a $2,000,000 loan made four or five years ago with the Continental Illinois. The $1,000,000 still outstanding is secured by the Lawsonia Country club at Green lake, and other property. Lawsonia was one of Norcott's promotions.

Assets Considered Doubtful.

Most of the assets for which the bank paid $137,500 are considered doubtful, Judge Woodward was informed, but the bank made the only bid in order to help the receiver wind up the affairs of the concern. The bank holds practically all of the securities of the defunct organization as collateral for its loans.

H. O. Stone & Co. had a long and until recent years a dignified and successful career. The founder, H. O. Stone, arrived in Chicago in 1835, and in that year opened his first store, devoted to general merchandizing, on North Water street, when Chicago's population was about 1,200.

Since that time the company moved progressively to Lake street, State and Lake, La Salle and Adams, Monroe and Clark, the Conway building and finally, in 1925, to its present quarters at Clark and Madison. Before the period of the big bond operations all of the officials of the early conservative régime had left the company.

Suits Over Realty Sales.

Prior to its becoming involved in the present $30,000,000 mortgage bond deals, the firm first began to get into difficulties through its subdivisions. Suits were filed by purchasers who charged fraud and misrepresentation. The company was ordered to repay the buyers. Meanwhile other suits piled up and then trouble began to loom in the security market.

The stock of H. O. Stone & Co. began to toboggan. Long before it hit the bottom the company passed the common and preferred dividends. Then more financial difficulties bobbed up and at last, in December, 1930, Federal Judge Woodward appointed the Chicago Title & Trust Co. temporary receiver for the H. O. Stone Investment Trust and several subsidiaries.

When the corporate structure of H. O. Stone & Co. was reorganized in 1929 into a holding company with the various phases of its business incorporated into five subsidiaries, it was officered as follows: Henry F. Norcott, president; H. D. Bennett, executive vice president; Claude C. Niles, vice president; Charles P. Packer, treasurer, and M. W. George, secretary.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Dec. 30.—The cost of Sir Oswald Mosley's and Lady Cynthia's venture into "British Fascism" in the general election was revealed today when it was learned that they have let both their town and country houses and have taken a six room flat over a garage.

Sir Oswald also suspended publication today of Action, the organ of his "new" party. The Saturday Review has agreed to take over Action's subscribers and allow Sir Oswald or either of the other members of his party to contribute 26 articles yearly. In return Sir Oswald will insert a stipulated amount of advertising at the usual rates.

The Mosley economies were undertaken despite Lady Cynthia's increased income from the Leiter estate in Chicago caused by the fall in sterling. Their new home is near Victoria station and has been fitted with modern conveniences. Sir Oswald and Lady Cynthia are leaving soon to study Hitlerism [Fascism] in Germany.

CITY OPENS 1932 WITH 3,475,000 IN POPULATION

Survey Finds 4,817,000 in Chicago Area.

Chicago's population at the beginning of 1932 is about 3,475,000, which represents a gain of approximately 50,000 over that recorded for the city at the end of 1930, according to figures given out yesterday by J. E. Vesely, research director of the Chicago Association of Commerce.

J. E. VESELY. [TRIBUNE Photo.]

Hand in hand with this urban growth Mr. Vesely's calculations show population increases in the six counties comprising the metropolitan area. The total population given for the area is 4,817,000, a figure 67,000 higher than that noted at the end of 1930, the census year. One hundred and seventy-five small urban centers and the rural sections within a 35 mile radius of the heart of Chicago were covered in the 1931 survey.

Normal Yearly Growth 65,000.

Chicago's normal annual growth is about 65,000, Vesely has found. While this growth was not maintained in 1931, "still it has not been stifled as in other large industrial centers where we hear of wholesale migration back to the farms," he said. Agricultural statistics from Washington have confirmed this, he added.

Mr. Vesely's metropolitan district figures are as follows:

County—	1931.	1930.
Cook	4,105,000	4,055,000
Du Page	95,000	88,000
Kane	128,000	126,000
Lake county, Ill.	107,000	105,000
Will	112,000	111,000
Lake county, Ind.	270,000	265,000
Totals	4,817,000	4,750,000

Discussing the reasons for the slowing up of Chicago's growth the past year Mr. Vesely said:

"It is natural for population growth to slow in times of depressed business. The great magnet that populates large industrial centers is, after all, the possibility of employment and a further migration of the workers' families.

Other Factors in Situation.

"Chicago has been influenced this year by other factors that deter normal population increase, such as subnormal residential and business building, less marriages and unsettled unemployment conditions. The suburbs have lost a little ground, due to the ebb and flow tide of reduced living conditions, doubling up of families and little or no real estate activity.

"This situation, however, is only temporary, as there now exists an actual shortage of housing requirements due to a prolonged lull in building. With the business index picking up or showing a substantial upward direction for as short a time as six or seven weeks we could again anticipate a physical growth comparable to that registered in 1927 and 1928."

Populations of Suburbs.

The present populations of some of the larger towns in the counties of the metropolitan area were listed in Mr. Vesely's report as follows:

BRITAIN CALLS EUROPEAN DEBT PARLEY JAN. 18

All Powers Except U. S. Are Invited.

BY JOHN STEELE.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Dec. 30.—Great Britain today took the initiative in calling a conference to consider revision of reparations and war debts. She suggested to the powers concerned that she is prepared to meet with them on Jan. 18 at Lausanne, Switzerland. She proposed Lausanne because it is nearer than The Hague to Geneva, where the disarmament meeting will be held in February.

The letter of invitation was sent to Germany, France, Italy, Japan, Belgium, Jugo-Slavia, Rumania, Czecho-Slovakia, Poland, Portugal, Greece and the British dominions and India.

No invitation was sent to the United States and there may be none. Europe would like to have the United States present, but it realizes that with the present state of feeling in America being overwhelmingly against a revision of the war debts it might be unwise to press the point too much.

Abandon Premiers' Meeting.

Meanwhile, conversations between French and British experts, with a view to arriving at a common plan to be submitted at the proposed conference, are continuing and prospects for an agreement are said to be good. Sir Frederick Leith-Ross, British treasury expert, will return to Paris tomorrow and it is now considered unlikely that Prime Minister MacDonald and Premier Laval will meet before the Lausanne parley.

A British authority said today that it is not accurate to represent Britain as having a hard and fast policy of payment on German commercial debts before reparations. Britain's policy is to restore confidence in Europe, thus thawing the frozen credits in Germany, and she does not care how it is done.

This authority also indignantly denied that Britain has any intention of repudiating her American debt in any circumstances, as now advocated by part of the British press, notably that of Lords Beaverbrook and Rothmere.

May Ask Further Delay.

Britain may be compelled to ask for a further delay in payments, particularly if a three year moratorium is agreed upon for Germany, this authority declared, but she has no intention of abandoning her principle that debts must be paid somehow and some time. This, however, does not exclude the possibility of scaling the debts down if the United States should prove amenable.

In the latter field Britain is relying on the resolution of the congressional funding commission in 1925, which based the demand for European payment on capacity to pay. It is argued that that capacity is now changed, and that this would justify a change in the amounts expected by the United States.

Regarding the disarmament conference in February, the British expect committees to be appointed shortly after the conference convenes to study the prospects for disarmament. The plenary session would then adjourn for several months.

Laval Balks at Parley.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PARIS, Dec. 30.—Lord Tyrrell, British ambassador, returned to his post here today after conferring with his government in London regarding the British attitude on reparations and war debts at the coming reparations conference. He is expected to hold his instructions in abeyance until the Franco-British experts finish thrashing out the technicalities of a possible common front at the conference.

Premier Laval has plainly indicated his unwillingness to confer with Prime Minister MacDonald before the experts have completed their pourparlers, and that attitude will, presumably, be respected by Lord Tyrrell.

Observers here declare there is little basis for optimism. A report from London that a compromise has already been reached between Britain and France, which fixes a reparations moratorium for three years, was received coldly here.

"Why Give In to Berlin?"

From a source close to Premier Laval it was said tonight that "the Franco-American war debt accord provides for a two year moratorium. Why should we give Germany three years?"

Information has also been received that the French hope, by an "escape clause" allowing Germany a reparations moratorium only on condition that the United States gives France a corresponding war debt moratorium, to coerce Germany into joining a "united front" with the allies to demand that war debts be reduced or canceled by the United States.

BRITISH FINANCES AT STAKE; TAXES FALL DUE FRIDAY

Fear Citizens Unable to Meet Demands.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Dec. 30.—The next two weeks will settle the immediate future of Great Britain's finances. The first installment on next year's income tax falls due on Friday, and no one knows how much of it will be paid.

Tax collectors are demanding three-fourths of the full year's tax instead of the usual half, and as the rate has been increased many taxpayers will be unable to satisfy the demand, it is believed. If they fail the British budget will not balance. A leading financial authority said today that in that event there will be nothing left in the British treasury but inflation.

Britain May Slip.

If started on the way to inflation, Britain may find herself, it is feared, on the same slippery slope which so nearly ruined Germany, Austria and other continental countries. Queues of people waited outside income tax offices all day for their turns to see collectors to plead for time or ask explanation.

Collectors, in really worthy cases, are willing to take half of the amount due now and allow a month or so for payment of the balance. They are overwhelmed with work for, because of the taxes on the lower levels of incomes, they have about 2,000,000 new taxpayers to deal with. Many of these never saw a tax demand before, do not understand it and could not pay it if they did.

Penalties Not Decided.

What is to be done with the nonpayers cannot be decided until their number is known. Ordinarily their goods would be seized and sold, or, if they had no goods, they would be imprisoned, but there is no market for second hand furniture and the jails are not big enough to hold all the expected tax defaulters.

Five or six weeks will be needed to handle the first rush of payments and enable the authorities to know where they are.

JOHNSON AVERS PEOPLE OPPOSE ANY DEBT CUTS

Washington, D. C., Dec. 30.—[Special.]—The American people are 100 to 1 against revision or cancellation of the European war debts owed the United States, Senator Hiram Johnson [Rep., Cal.], leader of the recent senate fight against the moratorium, said today in commenting on the projected conference at Lausanne.

It is proper, said the senator, for the European nations to confer on European debts. Nor, he said, was Europe to blame for having misunderstood the temper of the American people on the debt question; for the attitude of the administration, he declared, misrepresented popular opinion in this country.

"Th trouble," he declared, "was that those in high places do not understand the American people. They are 100 to 1 against debt reduction or cancellation and the gentlemen who were for a moratorium are just learning that fact."

HEIRESS ELOPES

MISS ALCY SIVYER.

Milwaukee, Wis., Dec. 30.—[Special.]—Miss Alcy Sivyer, Junior League member, descendant of the first white man born in Milwaukee, wealthy and prominent in Milwaukee society, eloped to Waukegan today with Joseph F. Hacker, salesman for the Chain Belt company. They were accompanied by Mr. and Mrs. John E. Schroeder of Milwaukee. Immediately after their marriage in Waukegan, Mr. and Mrs. Hacker left for a honeymoon in Quebec.

Miss Sivyer recently was in the news in Milwaukee through her suit against William D. Kyle of the Line Material company, a corporation which her father had helped finance to the extent of $500. Kyle had paid more than $100,000 for the stock owned by Miss Sivyer. She won a judgment for $73,864 additional on the contention that Kyle, acting in a fiduciary capacity, had bought the stock from her and immediately transferred it at a large profit.

The bride lived with her mother, Mrs. Frederick Sivyer, at 4001 North Lake drive. In 1928 she was presented at the court of King George and Queen Mary. The bridegroom was formerly of Green Bay. He was graduated from Marquette law school and has been with the Chain Belt company for eight years. In obtaining a marriage license he gave his age as 29, his bride's as 28.

HITLER PICTURES SELF AS KNIGHT DEFENDING WORLD

Asks Germany Follow Him "Through Hell."

BY SIGRID SCHULTZ.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, Dec. 30.—Adolf Hitler, chief of the German Fascist party, like the sovereigns of yore issued a New Year's proclamation today.

"We National Socialists are the only bulwark against bolshevism," he said. "Civilizations thousands of years old depend upon us. We shall not fail them but shall defeat the bolshevist, barbarian tyrants and materialists.

"A hard year is ahead of us. But we have grown into the strongest party in Germany and no longer fear our enemies' campaigns of lies. On Sept. 14, 1930, our party had 293,000 inscribed members. On Jan. 1, 1932, we will have more than 800,000. Our storm troops number more than 300,000.

Sees Self as World Protector.

"As we grew in size we kept up our inner development. We alone are able to protect the world against the anti-Christian forces of bolshevism.

"Decisions which come only once in 1,000 years confront us. We shall be knights without fear or reproach, who, despite hell, death and damnation, will fight our way through to new liberty for the welfare of Germany. We started with seven members. Today we have 15,000,000 followers. Only one more step and we shall be the German nation. Awake, Germany!"

Hitler charged Catholics and the middle class with being the tools of bolshevism and the cause of all Germany's misfortunes. He said the Fascists will have to "hack our way through a purgatory of lies, slanders, terrorism, and persecution, but we shall win through."

Reds Foment Strike.

Meanwhile communists are trying to organize a general strike throughout Germany to protest against wage cuts, which they say are "depriving the masses of means of subsistence."

Police today seized handbills and documents in the Ruhr district, Upper Silesia, central Germany, Berlin and Hamburg, revealing widespread Red agitation which, it is alleged, involves high treason.

The Hamburg "International of Sailors and Stevedores" appealed to sailors of all nations to enforce strikes in sympathy, while German sailors were enjoined to organize a systematic passive resistance starting Jan. 2.

VISITING JUDGE IS BARRED AFTER WEEK OF TRIAL

For more than a week lawyers have argued a mandamus suit before Judge John W. Preihs of Pana, who is sitting in the Superior court. The attorneys represented thousands of taxpayers who demanded that all personal property as well as real estate be put on the 1930 tax rolls.

Yesterday the attorneys ceased their arguments after hearing from Deputy Court Clerk Jack Ryan.

Ryan discovered that under a rule of the Superior judges' executive committee no visiting judges may hear mandamus suits. He informed Assistant State's Attorney Louis Geiman, who passed on the information to Judge Preihs just as the judge was about to make an important ruling.

Judge Preihs conferred with Judge Walter Steffen, head of the law division of the Superior court, and then announced that the case had been reassigned to Judge Charles Williams.

Heinmin at 5:30 a. m. The infantry crowded on a fleet of about 60 motor trucks and struck out across supposedly hostile territory without a scout screen. Another column started by train at 7 a. m. Both forces met sharp resistance at Paichipu, which they overcame. They then resumed their dash to the southwest. The first units arrived at Tahushan at 2:30 p. m.

Railway units accompanied the vanguard of troops, since the retreating Chinese dynamited several bridges. Japanese engineers expected to restore the line by tonight, permitting troop trains to move uninterruptedly tomorrow.

Throughout the day additional troop trains left Mukden, carrying supporting forces to Gen. Ramura's rear. The total trains which have left Mukden since the movement began yesterday reached 27 today. Each train averaged about 25 cars.

WAY IS OPENED FOR SHORTENING OF SCHOOL YEAR

Predict Bogan Will Make Move for Economy.

BY OSCAR HEWITT.

The stage was set yesterday to permit Supt. Bogan to recommend the shortening of the Chicago public school year by one month, or perhaps five weeks, as an economy measure. There are indications that Mr. Bogan may urge that course next Monday. Mrs. W. S. Heffernan, one of the school trustees, said privately that the members favor this program.

If the plan is adopted it would mean the closing of the schools two weeks earlier in June than usual and the opening two or three weeks later in September.

The trustees have been working more than three weeks on their 1932 budget. To make the estimated income meet the appropriations, the school board must trim its educational fund budget $8,512,865. In specific cuts only $1,122,435 has been trimmed out so far, although other reductions have been ordered on which the savings have not been officially calculated.

Saving Put Up to Bogan.

The task of trimming has been in charge of a subcommittee of the board composed of Trustees Joseph P. Savage, Walter H. Brandenburg, and William D. McJunkin, with President Lewis E. Myers, an ex officio member. Just before the committee resumed yesterday's session, Trustee Savage directed Supt. Bogan to make savings in the educational fund which will bring the total reduction to $8. [illegible]

The superintendent was not ordered to make the saving by reducing the expenditures so that the schools can be operated a full school year. Therefore he is at liberty to recommend the early closing of the schools in June and the late reopening in September. The present school year is nine and a half months long.

Shorter Year, Bogan Idea.

After proposing certain economies in a previous recommendation, Supt. Bogan said that the only safe method left for achieving a total reduction in expense of $8,512,000 was to close the schools at least for a month. With some modifications, the superintendent is expected to repeat that recommendation.

It is the belief of some educators that the public should be jolted by the shortening of the school year so that it will support the system, subject to later economies. Dr. Charles H. Judd of the University of Chicago, who appeared by request before the committee on Tuesday, urged that policy. Supt. Bogan had suggested that Dr. Judd be invited to give his views to the committee.

See Economy Years Ahead.

Trustees Savage and Brandenburg expressed the opinion that the economies which the board inaugurates for 1932 must continue for several years. They doubt the ability of the people to continue paying the amount of taxes levied during the depression. If the theory of these two trustees proves correct, a shortened school year may continue in 1933—and perhaps in later years—as well as in 1932.

Thomas V. Sullivan, school board attorney, has advised the trustees that it would be illegal for them to assume an obligation to pay for services not given. This is interpreted by the trustees to mean that they would be compelled to reduce the amount paid employes if the school year is shortened.

Still Work on Reductions.

Members of the subcommittee said after their session yesterday that they are not convinced they have trimmed everything out of the 1932 expenses which could be taken out without substantial injury to the schools.

The committee suggested to August H. Pritzlaff, supervisor of physical education in the elementary schools, that he reduce by a fourth his request for $125,948.

It also decided that it will radically reduce the extra compensation paid to specially prepared teachers, such as those in the manual training and crippled children divisions.

The committee also voted to trim two-thirds out of the cost of continuing schools after Robert L. Cooley of Milwaukee had made a special plea for those schools. He asserted that a policy which ignores or minimizes continuation schools is "costly, wasteful, and stupid."

Mr. Cooley said, however, that Milwaukee has a balanced school budget.

TWO LIQUOR BOATS, CARGOES AND SCORE OF MEN ARE SEIZED

New York, Dec. 30.—[Special.]—Scene of high revelry, rising mysteriously above the dark waters off Sea Girt Park Beach, N. J., early this morning, resulted in the seizure of a barge and a tug loaded to the gunwales with bottled cheer for the New Year. Between 4,000 and 5,000 cases of fine liquors, valued at $250,000, were seized.

Twenty men, who, customs officials believe, are connected with the notorious Vannie Higgins gang, were arrested aboard the boats.

The coast guard patrol boat Reliance was cruising in the neighborhood when loud laughter and snatches of song drifted across the waves.

The Reliance headed toward the sound and when the boat got alongside the twenty members of the rum boats' crews were surprised at their work on deck, drinking coffee and hot champagne as a chaser. The prisoners made no resistance. They had a right on mixing coffee and champagne.

The tug the Lizzie Shaw, a ninety footer, of 125 gross tons, and the barge, the Maurice B. Shaw, 171 feet long and of 632 gross tons, are believed to be owned in Philadelphia.

The Reliance brought her prizes into port and notified customs of [illegible] way, that there was no shooting. These government men are so nice. Really, they are quite nice. They exhibit the spirit of the season. It's lots of fun."

Club Not to Be Padlocked.

As she spoke, she looked at three agents lugging out half a dozen chairs through the door. She became businesslike a moment later and inquired of Deputy Aman if the raid meant the club would be padlocked for tonight. He assured her the raid did not mean the club would be closed tonight. If they could obtain additional chairs and tables there was nothing to halt reopening, he said.

Whether the raid on the Planet Mars was a warning to other fun centers that the "dry agents would get them if they didn't watch out" tonight was not indicated. It was believed, however, that government eyes would be turned aside considerately while the new year was being ushered in if the celebrants were not found throwing bottles at each other.

Miss Guinan's last major venture in a Chicago night club was in the Green Mill cafe, Lawrence avenue and Broadway, in the winter and spring of 1930. The club closed following a shooting in which Leon Sweitzer, once part owner of the cafe, was wounded in the arm, leg, and side by two men. Sweitzer at the time named Voller as one of his assailants.

HIJACK $200,000 RUM

A gang of twenty-five gunmen hijacked 3,500 cases of whisky valued at $200,000 from two freight cars in Aurora on Tuesday afternoon, it was learned yesterday. The whisky, intended for the New Year's eve trade, was said to have come from Cuba.

The gang, armed with machine guns and revolvers, left Aurora on New York street and sped out into Ogden avenue toward Chicago. Their caravan consisted of eight truckloads of the liquor, convoyed by four limousines.

The booze arrived in Aurora over the Chicago, Burlington, and Quincy railroad. It had been sent from Key West, Fla., to the Aurora Distributing company, a fictitious concern. The consignment was labeled "shrimps."

The two freight cars containing the shipment were standing on a spur line, awaiting unloading at the Thompson Storage and Transit company when the gunmen appeared. A half dozen employes of the Thompson concern were forced into a rear room and locked up. Then the gang spent a half hour loading up the trucks.

Record Low Price for Alky.

News of the hijacking reached Chicago as federal agents reported that bootleggers were selling alcohol for New Year's eve at the lowest prices since the advent of prohibition.

The alcohol can be purchased in quantities from wholesale distributors for $2.50 a gallon, said prohibition agents. This is the price for which the speakeasy operators may obtain it, as compared with the $10 a gallon they paid a few years ago. The Capone syndicate still extracts $27.50 for a five gallon can from its unwilling customers, but there are many independent distributors who will deliver five gallons for $20.

The price of gin is a reliable barometer of the alcohol market, since alcohol is made into gin with the addition of distilled water, gin essence and a little glycerine. Gin now retails at $2 for a fifth of a gallon, or three-fifths for $5. Many bootleggers give a free bottle when a card of eight is punched out.

Economy of Home Manufacture.

Not many months ago gin retailed for $2 a pint. It can be made at home for about $1.50 a gallon.

The quality of the bootleg alcohol is good, according to government chemists.

Much of the so-called bourbon sold over the bars of speakeasies is made of alcohol and water, aged in a chemically prepared barrel that sells for $90, said the federal agents. The wood shavings in the barrel, which are treated, give color and flavor to the fluid. Some speakeasies sell this for 25 cents a shot under the name of "moco loco."

Rain or Snow Forecast

New Year's eve revelers may have rain or snow to contend with tonight, according to the forecast issued last night by the weather bureau. The forecast is for rain, possibly mixed with snow, which probably will end tomorrow. Tomorrow will be slightly colder.

While Chicago and most points in the middle west enjoyed temperatures above normal yesterday, snowstorms raged through the Dakotas and Nebraska. The brunt of the storm was felt through the western prairie regions of Nebraska, where automobile and air travel were tied up and trains were running behind schedule.

A heavy wind near Galesburg on Tuesday night cost the life of Ed J. Tye, 62 years old, a farmer living at Rio. The wind brought down five poles bearing high tension wires. Tye stopped his car to investigate and was killed when he touched the wires.

BLIZZARDS IN WEST.

Denver, Colo., Dec. 30.—(AP)—Snowstorms, whipped suddenly to blizzards, raged in the Rockies today and swooped down into the plains states. Scores were marooned by the storms, but no deaths had been reported this afternoon.

The storm struck heavily at Limon, Colo. Howling winds and driving snow swept from the mountain region between Leadville and Minturn and were reported from Silverton and Durango. There was heavy snowfall at Fort Morgan and Greeley.

Advancing southeastward the storm struck the Oklahoma Panhandle shortly after noon. Guyman, Okla., reported temperatures dropping rapidly and more than an inch of snowfall in two hours.

Advancing eastward the swirling snow had driven residents of the Colorado-Kansas border counties to shelter and begun to push across the Kansas wheat lands.

Meanwhile similar blizzards were gaining strength in Wyoming to the north. Five members of the Albin, Wyo., High school basketball team and their instructor were marooned somewhere northeast of Cheyenne.

CHICAGO WOMAN BELIEVES GULL STOLE DIAMOND

San Francisco, Cal., Dec. 30.—(AP)—Mrs. Joseph Robinson of Chicago asked police today to locate a sea gull that she suspects of stealing a diamond ring.

She told authorities she laid her purse and a $150 diamond ring on the dresser near an open window of her hotel bedroom. Later she noticed a sea gull perched on the window sill. Thinking it probably was customary for sea gulls to perch on window sills in San Francisco, she paid no attention to the bird and left the room.

Later she heard the bird flapping about the bedroom and returning she found the purse on the floor and the diamond missing. She believes the bird was attracted by the glittering stone and swallowed it.

CITY TO RECALL COPS AIDING IN U. S. DRY RAIDS

Needed on Streets, Is View of Mayor.

Mayor Cermak last night confirmed a report that the eight city policemen who have been assigned to federal dry headquarters will be ordered back to regular police work today by Commissioner of Police Allman.

"I had the matter up with Mr. Herbert [John F. J. Herbert, prohibition administrator in the Chicago district]," said the mayor, "and he believes that he can get along without the policemen.

More Needed on Street.

"We need more policemen patrolling the streets, as is evidenced by the petitions that have come in from a number of sections of the city asking for greater police protection. Recently mothers and fathers of the northwest side of the city asked for additional patrolmen to protect their children of school age from morons."

The transfer order follows an investigation of a report that the policemen were paid by the federal government for their testimony in cases where they accompanied prohibition agents on raids. The investigation disclosed that the policemen collected as high as $40 a month for their testimony at the rate of $2 a day.

Asks Council to Act.

Earlier, Ald. James C. Moreland [41st] offered a resolution in the city council calling on the mayor and Commissioner Allman to abolish the detail at the prohibition bureau after it was charged that the police had taken part in the raid on Boleslaw Lidikewicz, a janitor charged with making home brew. Charles L. Wiley, world war veteran, was arrested after he had attempted to intercede for the janitor in the court of Federal Judge John P. Barnes.

The policemen and the stations to which they were originally assigned are Sergt. Alex Gasperick, Des Plaines street, and Patrolman Jesse F. Helms, Central; James B. Maloney, South State street; Ray Smith, Kensington; George Wragg, Englewood; Donald Coakley, Warren avenue; George Mellican, East Chicago, and James F. Fanning, Summerdale.

EX-DRY AGENT IS FOUND GUILTY OF RUNNING LIQUOR

Buffalo, N. Y., Dec. 30.—[Special.]—John "Lone Wolf" McQuade, former Buffalo dry agent, whose spectacular raiding methods brought him much publicity a few years ago, was found guilty late today by a federal court jury on a charge of transporting liquor. Judge John Knight deferred sentence until Monday. McQuade was arrested on a Wyoming county highway, 75 miles from Buffalo, on Sept. 23, by state troopers who said they found a good sized quantity of ale and liquor in his car.

DRY AGENTS SEIZE LIQUOR.

Prohibition agents raided a saloon at 3654 North Halsted street early yesterday and seized Otto Callus and Eugene Grazine and a quantity of liquor.

CROWDS TO JAM HOTELS, CAFES FOR EVE PARTIES

Prices Reduced to Lure Celebrators Tonight.

Twenty thousand persons, it is estimated, will drink, dine, dance and be merry tonight in public New Year's eve celebrations in Chicago's leading hotels and restaurants. Hotel managers based the estimate on reservations, which are the largest in years, they said.

Reduced prices, averaging about 25 per cent, have attracted the large number of celebrants, the hotel men say. Prices this year average $7.50 per person for midnight supper, dancing, floor show, entertainment, and souvenirs, as compared with the average price of $10 last year. Thousands of others will do their celebrating in cabarets, the Frolics café, Colosimo's, Vanity Fair, Club Alabam, Rubaiyat, etc., and still other thousands will revel in private hotel dining rooms, clubs, and homes.

One Hotel Reports Sellout.

The Hotel Sherman reported a sellout for its three rooms with orchestras. A total of 3,300 have made reservations, a capacity attendance for the College Inn, the Bal Tabarin, and the Grand ballroom, but arrangements are to be made for accommodating several hundred others. The "all expense" charge for the Bal Tabarin has been reduced from $15 to $10, and for the College Inn, $10 to $7.50, while the $6 price per person remains in the Grand ballroom.

The Stevens is holding an "Allcop" party in its huge exhibition room, where 3,000 persons are expected to welcome the new year. Two orchestras will play and the usual entertainment, food and souvenirs will be provided at $5 per person. The Stevens price last year was $7.50 and the year before it was $10.

1,900 at Congress Hotel.

About 1,900 are expected at the Congress hotel, with its Balloon, Pompeian, Gold and Florentine rooms, each with an orchestra. Prices range from $6 to $10, as compared with $10 to $15 last year.

The Drake hotel will accommodate between 700 and 800, according to reservations, in the Avenue of Palms and the main dining room. Prices are down from $15 to $10.

The Bismarck expects a total of 700 for its two public dining rooms with orchestras. The charge there is $6, down from $7.50 last year.

About 1,800 will celebrate at the Edgewater Beach, in the Marine dining room or the East lounge, at $7.50 per plate instead of the $10 paid last year. Henrici's on Randolph street announces a gala New Year's eve celebration.

Another 800 have made reservations at the Morrison hotel, where the charges are $7.50 for the Terrace Garden and $2.50 for the Cameo room.

The Blackstone and the Palmer house, following their usual "save-the-furniture" custom, will hold no public celebrations, but the Interfraternity Club of Chicago has reserved the entire fourth floor of the Palmer house, including the grand ballroom. The La Salle and Chicago Beach hotels also will have public celebrations at $5 and $4 per plate, respectively.

The cabarets and night clubs expect capacity houses and several clubs are giving large parties. About 1,400 are expected at the Medinah Athletic club, which is breaking tradition with a party. The Hamilton and Standard clubs are holding parties and expect 400 or 500 each. The Lake Shore Athletic club has cut its price from $10 to $6 and expects 500 or more.

MRS. SABIN REFUSES TO DEBATE REPEAL WITH MRS. NICHOLSON

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Dec. 30.—[Special.]—Mrs. Charles S. Sabin, chairman of the Woman's Organization for National Prohibition Reform, today withdrew from her agreement to debate the subject of repeal with Mrs. Jesse Nicholson, president of the National Women's Democratic Law Enforcement League.

MRS. C. H. SABIN. [TRIBUNE Photo.]

Mrs. Sabin charged that Mrs. Nicholson's continued misrepresentations and "misleading public statements made any fair and honest debate with her impossible."

"Mrs. Nicholson seems unable to comprehend the difference between a challenge and an attack, or to understand that it is possible to honestly disagree," Mrs. Sabin declared. "She has made it quite clear that she does not wish to debate the question of the repeal of the 18th amendment, and her continued misleading statements and misrepresentations make any fair and honest debate with her impossible."

In her letter withdrawing from the debate agreement Mrs. Sabin said:

"I am convinced of your lack of good faith and now withdraw from my agreement to debate with you and consider the correspondence closed."

Burglars Enter Home of A. H. Sanders; Loot $1,000

Burglars broke into the apartment of Alvin H. Sanders at 3122 Sheridan road late yesterday and stole rugs and other articles valued at more than $1,000. Mr. Sanders, who is in New York, served as a member of the United States tariff board under President Taft, and was vice chairman of the board in 1911. He is editor of the Breeder's Gazette, and is an official of the annual Live Stock exposition.

It's Easier to Dodge Murder Here Than in Smaller Cities

BY ARTHUR EVANS.

A citizen's risk of being murdered is less in the metropolitan centers than in smaller cities, and the stock wheeze about the need for bullet proof vests in the big burg is a boomerang on smaller communities, according to data presented yesterday from two sources.

Twenty-one cities of more than 100,000 population have a greater murder rate than Chicago in 1930, according to Frederick Rex, municipal librarian, who for years has made annual compilations of crime. His figures are from reports covering eighty-two cities of 100,000 or more, issued by the government. They embrace only murder and non-negligent manslaughter.

Professor Presents Figures.

Thirty-nine cities show a higher rate of killings than Chicago in a tabulation for 174 cities, presented at the American Association for the Advancement of Science New Orleans yesterday. The compiler was Kenneth E. Barnhart, professor of sociology at Birmingham Southern college, Birmingham, Ala. His figures showed that none of the larger American cities is in the list of "the thirty most murderous cities."

Chicago experts surmised yesterday that the Barnhart table includes all homicides.

Librarian Rex places Chicago's murder rate in 1930 at 10.4 murders for each 100,000 population. Prof. Barnhart places the rate of killings in Chicago at 14.4, apparently including all homicides.

Memphis Heads List.

The "30 most murderous cities," listed by Prof. Barnhart are led by Memphis with a rate of 58.8 per 100,000. The thirty cities with the highest rate of killings per 100,000 in the Barnhart compilation, are as follows:

City.	Rate.	City.	Rate.
Memphis	58.8	El Paso	27.3
Atlanta	52.6	Charleston, S. C.	25.3
Lexington, Ky	52.4	Houston	25.2
Birmingham	49.0	Roanoke, Va.	24.4
Shreveport, La.	41.4	Norfolk, Va.	23.8
Augusta, Ga.	38.0	Winston-Salem, N. C.	23.7
Nashville, Tenn.	37.6	Dallas	23.6
Miami, Fla.	36.8	Little Rock	23.2
Savannah, Ga.	36.4	New Orleans	23.0
Jacksonville, Fla.	34.5	Kansas City, Mo.	22.7
Macon, Ga.	31.6	Pueblo, Colo.	21.8
Mobile, Ala.	30.7	Knoxville, Tenn.	21.8
Gary, Ind.	30.6	Petersburg, Va.	21.2
Hamtra'ck, Mich.	30.1	E. St. Louis, Ill.	20.1
Tampa	28.4
Sprinfield, Ill.	28.7

Of these thirty cities, one is in the west, five in the middle west and twenty-four in the south. Prof. Barnhart says the explanation of this is found in the large percentage of Negroes in the south.

"But race," he says, "is not the primary cause of homicide, only a secondary factor. New York and Chicago have large numbers of Negroes, yet low killing rates compared with the south. The chief cause for high killing rates is illiteracy."

Some criminologists here were not inclined to agree with all of Prof. Barnhart's deductions. They quoted from the last annual police report showing that of 350 murders in Chicago in 1930, 138 or 40 per cent were perpetrated by Negroes. With a Negro population of 233,900, they asserted the murder rate was 60 to 100,000.

Even in the south, Dr. Barnhart declared, the larger cities have a lower murder rate than the smaller cities.

Figures Given by Librarian.

As to the group of cities of 100,000 population, Mr. Rex's compilation of murder shows twenty-one cities worse than Chicago, as follows:

	Population.	Murders.	Rate per 100,000 pop.
Chattanooga, Tenn.	119,798	44	36.97
Birmingham, Ala.	259,678	93	37.04
Jacksonville, Fla.	129,549	39	30.23
San Antonio, Tex.	231,542	68	29.56
Miami, Fla.	110,637	31	28.19

No Statistics on New York.

Figures for New York are not included in the table of Mr. Rex, the police authorities of that city informing him the statistics were not available.

"I have always contended that Chicago's reputation was not based on facts, and that the murder rate was low in proportion to the population," said Mayor Cermak, referring to Mr. Rex's tabulation. "This bears out my belief."

MAYOR EXPECTS TAX PLAN WILL WIN ASSEMBLY

Passage Seen Sure When Legislators Convene.

BY PARKE BROWN.

Mayor Cermak expressed confidence yesterday that the Kelly plan for reconstructing the Cook county taxing organization will be passed by the special session of the general assembly soon after it convenes next Tuesday.

D. F. KELLY. [Matzene Photo.]

"I feel certain," he said, that the wide public support given the compromise plan promises success and that when the Cook county delegation of the assembly approves it Saturday morning as it is expected to do the enactment of the bill will be insured.

Called the Best Plan.

"Since the plan was recommended at the conference called by D. F. Kelly I have talked with hundreds of citizens, including scores of legislators, and they all have told me that it is the best plan that could be worked out. Every one agrees that it has a chance and nobody else has suggested a plan that has a chance. Some say the special session must pass this bill or admit it has failed in its most important task."

The mayor was asked about a statement he made earlier in the day that he had been informed of efforts to keep legislators away from Springfield in order to injure the bill's chances of getting the necessary 102 votes in the house and the 34 required in the senate.

"I think now that such efforts will not be effective," he said. "Certain individuals with particular interest in the situation have passed the word around that a good way to take a slap at me is to fail to vote for the bill. Such a refusal would be the same as a vote against the bill, but those who think they would hurt me individually by such a move must be crazy.

Cermak for Economy.

"It wouldn't affect me personally as I have been determined from the beginning, and have given proof that I am ready to do it, to retrench just as far as is required by our revenue, whatever that revenue is. The people will not hold me responsible for the financial shortage, but, if vital services of the city and county are crippled, they may hold the legislators responsible."

In discussing this question of the city's income he expressed regret that it had been found impossible to raise the money to pay the public school teachers two more weeks' salaries.

Mayor Cermak has invited all Democratic ward committeemen and Democratic members of the legislature to meet with him in his office this noon to establish a solid front in favor of the Kelly plan.

Discuss Tax Funding.

A second important bill before the special session was the subject of discussion at two meetings during the day. This was the bill to permit the payment of 1930 taxes in six annual installments, for which real estate organizations have urged a substitute that would "lift" most of the levy by means of twenty year bonds.

The twenty year plan was debated in private by a group of tax experts selected by the Schnackenberg committee of legislators, which approved of the long term funding plan in principle if it is found legally feasible.

The experts, headed by Hayden Bell, county tax attorney, met in the offices of the state tax commission with Montgomery S. Winning, special assistant attorney general, but reached no definite conclusions. They will meet again on Saturday.

Searcy Indorses Plan.

The 20 year plan was indorsed strongly by State Senator Earl B. Searcy of Springfield, the principal speaker at a small luncheon of members of the Real Estate Taxpayers' association at the Palmer house. Searcy contended, with the real estate men, that realty cannot pay the 65 per cent first installment of 1930 taxes proposed under the six year plan. He predicted dire results unless real estate is given a large measure of relief. He referred to the present tax system in Cook county as a "racket" operated by a "syndicate."

"This crisis," he said, "will be just a forerunner of the breakdown of government unless we do something about it."

Predicts Decreasing Revenue.

In commenting on the twenty year plan, Michael J. O'Connor, assistant county controller, said that adoption of the bond scheme would decrease the revenue of the county by $4,000,000 unless some provision is made by the legislature to make up this loss.

He explained that under the present system fixed fees are paid into the county corporate fund for the extension and collection of taxes by county officials, an extension that would not take place under the funding plan. He said that if the 20 year plan is not adopted approximately $450,000 will be credited to the county clerk for extension of the levy, $2,500,000 to the county treasurer for the collection of taxes and the corporate fund also would receive $550,000 as delinquency penalties and about $500,000 in interest on funds on hand.

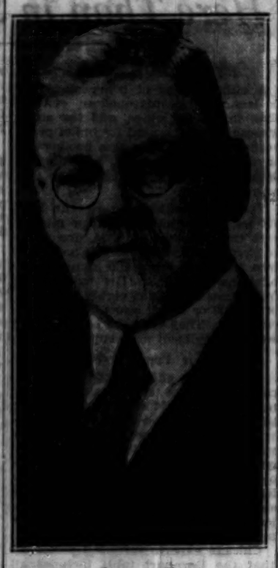
SUED FOR $200,000



WILLIAM B. STOREY.

MINISTER SUES RAIL PRESIDENT; SEEKS $200,000

W. B. Storey and Wife Are Defendants.

William B. Storey, president of the Santa Fé railroad, and his wife, Laura, were made defendants in the praecipe of a suit for $200,000 filed yesterday in the Superior court by the Rev. Ulysses Grant Warren, a Congregational minister, who was dismissed in September by his congregation in Corning, N. Y. The Storeys live at 199 Lake Shore drive.

Attorney William B. Gemmill, who filed the suit, said that the cause of action is the same as in one recently dismissed in the federal court in Buffalo, N. Y., in which the Rev. Mr. Warren charged the Storeys with alienating the affections of his wife, Edith.

Mrs. Warren Asks Divorce.

Mrs. Warren has a suit for divorce pending in Minden, Nev., a town fifty miles from Reno, according to a dispatch from Reno last night. The suit, filed last Aug. 24, charges the Rev. Mr. Warren with cruelty and failure to provide. The minister, in an answer filed to the suit, denies his wife's allegations. His bill does not mention Mr. and Mrs. Storey, the Reno dispatch said.

According to Mrs. Warren's bill, she and her husband were married in Stamford, Conn., in 1926. Mrs. Warren is 40 years old and the minister is 50, Attorney Gemmill said.

"Mrs. Warren is my cousin and is very ill," Mrs. Storey said when she was informed of the suit. "It's too ridiculous to charge that we influenced her affections in any way. This rotten suit was brought in Buffalo and thrown out of the federal court there. There is nothing to it."

Storey Refuses Comment.

Mr. Storey refused to comment on the matter, but his personal attorney, William T. Alden, said that Mr. and Mrs. Storey are willing to have the case go to trial at an early date. The suit was dismissed in Buffalo without a hearing on the facts because of improper service, Mr. Alden said.

In the Buffalo suit the Rev. Mr. Warren charged that Mrs. Storey had written a number of letters to Mrs. Warren urging her to leave her husband and that eventually Mrs. Warren did so in June, 1930, going to live with the Storeys for a time in their California home.

MAYOR WISHES CITY A YEAR OF REVENUE RELIEF

Mayor Cermak's New Year wish for the people of Chicago is that the legislature will give Cook county the laws necessary to solve its financial crisis. His proclamation for the holiday pledges that the municipal economy campaign will be carried on through 1932 in an effort to ease taxpayers' burdens.

"Let us enter the New Year in a spirit of hope and determination," he says, "forgetting the trials and mistakes of the past, all working together for the welfare of the city we love. Discouraging as the situation may appear to be at times, let us look for rainbows and trust that the future will be much brighter than the immediate past.

"My New Year's pledge, and I bespeak the cooperation of all in carrying it out, is that I will continue my efforts to give Chicago the most economical administration that is practically possible, that I will leave no stone unturned to lessen the burden that now weighs heavily on the taxpayers, that waste and graft will not be tolerated, that I will strive to bring about prompt payment of salaries to all public employés, which will benefit general business conditions, and that I will always be ready to promote any suggestion tending to relieve distress, financial or otherwise."

$164,743,351 OF 1929 TAXES PAID, M'DONOUGH SAYS

The total of 1929 tax collections during 1931 amounts to $164,743,351 so far, County Treasurer Joseph B. McDonough announced yesterday.

Country town special assessment collections by the county treasurer totaled $2,560,753 while those for the city totaled $8,153,480.

During the year $94,806,000 in tax money has been turned over to the city, $11,086,190 to the state, and $15,025,000 to the sanitary district.

Too Many Officers; Spain Rejects Naval Candidates

MADRID, Dec. 30. — (AP) — The minister of marine today ordered that no entrants be accepted at the naval academies in 1932 because of a surplus of officers. Similar action was taken six months ago regarding entrants at the military academies.

REVEALS BRIDLE PATH STOPPED BY LACK OF FUNDS

State Reads Testimony of Canal Defendant.

The sanitary district trustees during the whoopee era of 1927-1928, when Timothy J. Crowe was president, quit building cinder bridle paths—at an approximate cost of $153,000 per mile to the taxpayers—because that part of the public treasury ran dry.

This disclosure was made yesterday afternoon when First Assistant State's Attorney John E. Northup read into the record what he said were admissions made before the grand jury in 1930 by John T. Miller, former head of the department of permanent plants and structures. Miller is one of the seven men now on trial with Crowe on charges of graft conspiracy.

JOHN T. MILLER.

Tells of Empty Treasury.

Had not the treasury been emptied by the free spending of the trustees under the leadership of Crowe another seven miles of bridle path would have been built, according to Miller's admissions to the grand jury under an immunity waiver, the prosecutor said. According to witnesses no more than six or seven equestrians have ever used the bridle path in a day.

Prosecutor Northup read for nearly one hour the statements made by Miller before the grand jury. The portion read consisted mostly of statements to the effect that the witness didn't remember much about the project.

The prosecutor was allowed to read the statement after a legal argument which resulted in a court ruling that the statement could be used only as evidence against Miller. However, the judges and defense attorneys indicated after part of the document was read that they did not believe the statement contained any admissions. The judges tried to stop Northup several times, but when he seemed on the verge of a speech, Judge Fisher remarked:

"We [the judges] agree that what you have read is not admissible, but go ahead and read it if you want."

Prosecutor Goes on Reading.

Judge Fisher sat back in his chair and stared toward the rear of the courtroom. Judges John Prystalski and James J. Kelly, who are sitting with Judge Fisher, settled back in their chairs and closed their eyes. The prosecutor continued for another twenty minutes and finally he was stopped by an interruption in the court proceedings for another matter. He then agreed to give the stenographic statement to the court reporters to be incorporated in the records of the trial.

Miller's statement said that the plan to beautify the property adjacent to the north shore channel originated before he was employed by the district. He thought the late Trustee Michael Rosenberg talked to him about the cinder path, but he wasn't sure. He did remember somebody showing him a petition asking for the building of the path and also a letter on the subject from John Hertz, capitalist.

Testifies on Contract.

Clarence J. Weber, vice president of the National Brick company, said that his concern has been removing the "spoils bank" adjacent to the canal under contract since 1905. The aim of the prosecution in introducing this testimony was to show that the charge of more than $300,000 for excavation contained in the total charge of $1,068,000 for the bridge path was not legitimate. Weber testified that he saw large numbers of men on the cinder path project, but that most of them were just "loafing."

"You are familiar with costs of excavation and other building material and I will ask you if your firm would have undertaken to build the cinder path for less than $1,068,000," Prosecutor Northup said to Weber.

"That is a foolish question," replied the witness laughing. "We certainly would have taken the job for much less."

Agreement with Defense.

The session ended with the defense agreeing to a stipulation that three witnesses if called to the stand would have testified that they did not count traffic on the north shore channel road as they were supposed to do. The prosecutor said the district carried 220 of these "checkers" on a separate pay roll and that others on this roll would be called later.

The listless session, which was only interrupted now and then by an exchange of personalities between Attorney Albert Fink for the defense and Prosecutor Northup, was taken up with testimony of engineers verifying testimony already given to the effect that the cost of the bridle path was excessive.

Extradition papers were signed yesterday by Gov. Emmerson calling on the governor of California to turn over Timothy Connolly, fugitive former purchasing agent of the sanitary district, who was arrested in San Diego early in the week.

RUMANIA TO TRY HAND AT SOVIET NON-WAR TREATY

BUCHAREST, Rumania, Dec. 30.—(AP)—A government communique issued today said that, as a consequence of conversations between France and Poland and soviet Russia in connection with the conclusion of nonaggression treaties, the time has come for Rumania also to enter into similar negotiations with Russia.

The Rumanian press said it may be taken for granted that if such a pact were concluded it would have to be signed by France, Poland, and Rumania simultaneously or not at all.

Foreign Minister Ghika, it was reported, will leave for Warsaw on Jan. 7 to confer with the Polish authorities.

WILLIAM G. EDENS, VICE PRESIDENT OF BANK, RETIRES AT 68

The retirement of William G. Edens, vice president of the Central Republic Bank and Trust company, who has been a Chicago banker since 1905, was announced yesterday. Mr. Edens, who is 68 years old, is retiring under the provisions of the bank's pension plan.

Mr. Edens joined the staff of the Central Trust company when it was organized in 1905, at the invitation of Charles G. Dawes. The National Bank of the Republic was merged this year with the Central Trust bank. Mr. Edens has been active in the affairs of the Illinois and American Bankers' associations, serving on the executive councils of each.

Before entering the banking business Mr. Edens spent twenty years in the railway service, pioneering in the organization of the Brotherhood of Railway Trainmen. He spent seven years in the postoffice service at Washington, D. C., and during his service with the bank he was prominently engaged in the good roads movements in Illinois, which culminated in the sixty million dollar state bond issue.

2 PYGMY NATIONS SIGN MONEY PACT WITH GREAT POMP

San Marino, Vatican Exchange Pledges.

BY DAVID DARRAH.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

ROME, Dec. 30.—Two of the tiniest independent states in the world—one with 500 and the other with 13,000 inhabitants—settled all outstanding financial problems between them this afternoon when plenitotentiaries of the state of Vatican City and of the republic of San Marino put their signatures to a monetary convention of four articles.

The convention was signed in the governor's palace in Vatican City by Gov. Serafini of Vatican City and by Count Paola Manassei, envoy extraordinary and minister plenipotentiary of the republic of San Marino to the holy see. Both wore their uniforms of state.

Establish Parity of Exchange.

Both countries have their own coinage, although in limited amounts, and both are on the gold standard. The new convention establishes parity of exchange. The preamble to the convention states that it was drawn up "in view of the particular characteristics of the respective territories and in view of the good relations existing between the two states."

Should these good relations ever be broken, Vatican City's forces consist of 125 Swiss guards, while San Marino has an excellent police force and fire department and a militia composed of all able bodied citizens between 16 and 55.

Guarantee No Speculation.

Article I. of the convention, stipulating the par value between Vatican money and San Marino money, guarantees no fluctuation of or speculation in exchange rates, which so often causes ill will between other European countries. Both countries have balanced budgets, that of Vatican City being 130,000,000 lire [$9,000,000] and that of San Marino 3,500,000 lire [$175,000].

It is unlikely that this convention will be extended either by Vatican City or San Marino to the other pigmy state, Andorra, which is on the border of France and Spain, since Andorra uses only Spanish and French money. Both Vatican City and San Marino are within the boundaries of Italy.

SANITARY BOARD WITHOUT FUNDS TO DO ITS WORK

For the first time in its history, the sanitary district is without funds, said President Thomas J. Bowler yesterday in reviewing the year's activities. All construction work has been halted and the 1,450 employés have been unpaid since Nov. 15. Tomorrow a payment of $1,500,000 on bonds and interest falls due with no money on hand to meet it.

"Though everything else stops, the sanitary district must be kept operating," Mr. Bowler said, "and it cannot operate without money. Technically we are in excellent condition, within our budget and operating economically, but failure to collect taxes leaves us without cash and there is no market for our bonds or tax anticipation warrants. Restoration of credit awaits the pleasure of politicians who love politics better than Chicago."

Of the $9,200,000 worth of contracts let during the year, all but $600,000 were part of the government program, according to Edward J. Kelly, chief engineer for the district. On Dec. 15 contractors were owed $1,100,000 and $380,000 was due to employés.

HEIRESS' MATE WINS FIGHT TO SEE HIS CHILD

Family Conference Called After Court Hearing.

Franklin I. Saemann Jr., wealthy young Oak Park resident, won his legal fight yesterday to see his 2 year old daughter, Myrtle Fahrney Saemann, who some day will inherit some of the millions of the late Peter Fahrney, patent medicine manufacturer. Attorneys told Circuit Judge Daniel P. Trude that a family conference had been arranged in an effort to iron out the difficulties which caused Saemann to sue Mrs. Myrtle Fahrney Saemann for divorce, charging desertion.

F. I. SAEMANN JR.

Saemann took the witness stand before Judge Trude and testified that his difficulties with his wife's parents, Mr. and Mrs. E. H. Fahrney, 400 North Euclid avenue, Oak Park, began immediately after the birth of the baby in New York, where the Saemanns were then living. Mrs. Fahrney went to New York and tried immediately to start proceedings to adopt her granddaughter, he charged.

Accuses Wife's Family.

He repeated the charges made on Tuesday by his attorney, Frank Cantwell, to the effect that his wife's family had prevented him seeing her or the baby for some months. Mrs. Saemann has been living in Detroit with the child, but returned to Chicago after the court proceedings on Tuesday, Attorney John G. Campbell, her counsel, disclosed later in yesterday's proceedings.

"This has gone far enough," Judge Trude said finally. "I am going to enter an order that this young man be allowed to see his baby."

He then directed that Mr. Saemann and his wife take lunch together with their child and that both appear in court later in the day. In the afternoon Attorneys Cantwell and Campbell returned without their clients.

Arrange Family Meeting.

They informed Judge Trude that after meeting his wife it was agreed that Saemann take his daughter to Oak Park to see her paternal grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Franklin I. Saemann Sr., 429 Forest avenue. They have never seen their granddaughter, it was brought out during the hearing yesterday.

A conference of the Saemann and Fahrney families was to be held later in an effort to settle both the divorce case and the custody of the child, Attorney Campbell said. Mr. and Mrs. Saemann Jr. will appear before Judge Trude today, when a report of the family meeting will be made, it was promised.

NO CITY PAY BEFORE JANUARY 15, IF THEN, IS SZYMCZAK WORD

City Controller Szymczak stated yesterday that the nearest date on which there is any likelihood of city employés, including the police and fire men, being paid is Jan. 15. There is only $61,000 cash in the corporate fund, he said, to meet pay rolls of approximately $1,800,000 that will fall due before the 15th. "Unless we sell $8,998,000 worth of refunding bonds now held in the aggregate of funds and unless the legislature acts promptly there is no likelihood of meeting pay rolls," he said. "Jan. 15 looks like the earliest pay day, if everything results as favorably as possible."

Freak Gas Blast Paralyzes London Financial District

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Dec. 30.—A freakish but terrific gas explosion in Throgmorton avenue in the heart of the London financial district today hurled manhole covers into the air, ripped out considerable pavement and shot flames fifteen feet high. The street's business was paralyzed until firemen brought the flames under control and announced the danger was past. Property damage was slight.

Priests Ordered to Defy New Mexican Church Law

BY JOHN CORNYN.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

MEXICO CITY, Dec. 30.—Archbishop Pascual Diaz, head of the Catholic church in Mexico, in an open letter to priests and all other Catholics today declared that the church could not recognize the law passed by congress last week limiting the number of priests in the federal district (Mexico City) to 25.

Declaring that the new law, which became effective today, is unconstitutional, illiberal and unchristian, the archbishop ordered all priests to remain at their posts "as if no adverse circumstances or danger threatened you."

Charges Breach of Faith.

This is in direct defiance of the provisions of the law, which specifies that the prescribed 25 priests must register themselves and the churches in which they wish to officiate within 30 days.

Archbishop Diaz in his letter called on Catholics to "stand behind the church in her period of trial" and "be ready to suffer privations" for their faith. He declared the law breaks faith with the agreement entered into by the government and the church on June 21, 1929, which ended the armed "Cristero" revolt and provided for the return of priests and Catholic exiles to Mexico and the delivery of the churches to Catholic authorities.

The archbishop said the only authority is God and that "all other authorities are only participatory. Even judged from the revolutionary point of view, the law is unconstitutional since it violates that provision of law guaranteeing liberty of conscience to all, and no Christian worthy of the name, and no true revolutionary, could accept such legislation.

"Must Defend Rights."

"We advise the faithful to obey the instructions of their priests and the commands of ecclesiastical authority. Above and before all parties and politics, you must defend the sacrosanct rights of religion by legal means, while working for peace and the social good of the country. As citizens of Mexico, you are left in perfect liberty to defend your civil rights, but in doing so we charge you to keep ever in mind the welfare of the church."

Catholic circles today were of the opinion that the action of the Mexican congress in limiting the number of priests in the federal district would be duplicated by all the Mexican states. Such action would mean not more than 350 priests for the entire republic, if the states allow only one for every 50,000 inhabitants, whereas there are more than 4,000 churches.

The government's view is that the limitation law recognizes that churches may exist without priests and that priests are unnecessary and the people are capable of managing their own religious affairs.

She Reduces 350 Pounds in a Strawstack Prison

Warsaw, Ind., Dec. 30.—[Special.]—While threshing on the Oscar Rebman farm, east of Warsaw, last July 15, a 500 pound sow was accidentally covered with straw. The discovery was made after a huge stack had been completed. Believing the sow smothered, no attempt was made to save her. Today, while workmen were pulling straw from the stack, they heard a grunt and finally located the pig 15 feet inside the stack. She came out walking, but had lost 350 pounds during her imprisonment.

FISTS TRUMPS FOR A WHILE IN BRIDGE MATCH

Mr. Culbertson Loses His Professional Poise.

BULLETIN.

New York, Dec. 31 (2 a. m.).—At the close of tonight's play, the 120th rubber, Culbertson had a net lead of 20,220 points.

New York, Dec. 30.—(AP)—The Ely Culbertson-Sidney Lenz bridge match waited 20 minutes tonight for Culbertson to regain his "emotional balance" after a shambles of epithets, threats, argument, and accusations.

Called a "coward" and "yellow," Culbertson offered to fight Sir Derrick Wernher, a 250 pound friend of Lenz, on the spot. He finally challenged him to wait outside after the night's session and then entered into a heated argument with Lenz and refused to resume the match until he had been assured that Sir Derrick had not been invited by his opponent.

Lenz became almost as heated. He assured Culbertson he did not invite Sir Derrick, but shouted:

"He is my friend and I invite him now."

"Let's start the play," ordered the chief referee, Lieut. Alfred M. Gruenther.

Not Mr. Culbertson.

"Not until Sir Derrick leaves the premises and I am assured that I will not be put upon the spot at some future session of this match," Culbertson persisted.

He paced the floor, shouting that the affair was a deliberate attempt to unsettle him. Lenz denied that he had anything to do with it.

"I can assure you that Mr. Lenz is above such a thing," declared Gruenther.

"I agree," said Culbertson, "but at present I am emotionally unbalanced."

Mrs. Culbertson was almost as angry, but not excited.

"Please sit down, Jo," pleaded Gruenther.

"No, I won't sit down," she declared, and joined her husband in pacing the floor of the hallway just outside the playing room. She remarked there was a plot to disturb Culbertson.

How Argument Started.

Sir Derrick, prominent in the American Bridge association, came to the match with George Reith and Lenz. Culbertson came in and shook hands with both.

Wernher told Culbertson he had accepted his challenge of last July and was ready to put up $2,000 against $1,000 on a bridge match, meeting Culbertson's challenge.

"I don't play with minor sharks," replied Culbertson, denying that he had ever challenged him. For a time the conversation appeared to be harmless banter. Shouts of "liar, coward, yellow" soon dispelled that supposition.

Culbertson ordered Sir Derrick to leave the place "with your contemptible English accent," and his parting shot was "you big yellow beefsteak, I bet you $500 you haven't got $2,000. I'll bet you a team of my assistants can beat you."

Exit Sir Derrick.

Sir Derrick left the press room. Culbertson was told that he had gone.

"Let me look for myself," he said. Others tried to stop him, but he stormed through the hall and ran into Lenz.

"Sidney, what do you mean by inviting that man up here? Was it to get my goat?"

"I beg your pardon," said Lenz, "I did not invite him."

"Then he came up her unsolicited to insult me and make a scene."

"I don't know that he came here unsolicited."

"Then you invited him?"

"No," shouted Lenz. "I didn't invite him, but since you put it that way, he is my friend and I invite him now."

During the evening Culbertson sent out a bulletin wishing everybody a "happy New Year, including George Reith and Sir Derrick Wernher."

The Night's Play.

When the match was resumed, the Culbertsons were 16,320 points in the lead after 112 rubbers. Progress of the play was as follows:

1st—Seven hands, won by Culbertson; Culbertson now plus 17,645.

2d—Four hands, won by Lenz; Culbertson now plus 16,990.

3d—Seven hands, won by Culbertson; Culbertson now plus 17,750.

4th—Five hands, won by Culbertson; Culbertson now plus 18,350.

5th—Three hands, won by Culbertson; Culbertson now plus 19,660.

6th—Seven hands, won by Lenz; Culbertson now plus 19,353.

7th—Eight hands, won by Culbertson; Culbertson now plus 20,535.

8th—Nine hands, won by Lenz; Culbertson now plus 20,220.

Miller, 22 years old, 3742 North Damen avenue, who was fatally wounded when he was caught in the cross fire of a gun battle between Policeman Olan Wheeler of the Hudson avenue station and Thomas Nolan, 3736 Washington boulevard, a bandit, shot to death by a police bullet, it was revealed at the inquest yesterday. Ballistics tests were employed to identify the bullet. The coroner's jury, in charge of Deputy Louis Nadherny, returned a verdict that Miller's death was accidental.

WARN AUTOISTS TO USE CAUTION OVER HOLIDAY

Christmas Toll Causes Revealed.

Safety organizations yesterday joined in warning motorists that a toll of automobile fatalities which may approach the twenty-six deaths of the Christmas week-end is to be expected during the next four days unless unusual care is exercised by all operators of motor vehicles. Heavy traffic conducive to accidents is traditional in connection with the New Year's celebration.

Each of the twenty-two accidents which caused the Christmas casualties was investigated by the Chicago Motor club and a chart of the underlying causes of each was made. It discloses the reasons for the accidents and the number of deaths ascribed to each as follows:

Careless driving	6
Careless pedestrians	6
Failure to observe trains	5
Reckless driving	3
Speeding	2
Failure to stop for traffic signal	1
Negligence of railroad gateman	1
Walking on wrong side of pavement	1
Defective pavement	1

Intoxication of drivers was blamed for none of the accidents and excessive speed played parts in only two of the fatal crashes. Hit and run drivers killed four persons.

Four automobile fatalities in Cook county yesterday raised the toll for 1931 thus far to 1,291. The victims:

William Leubbe, 49 years old, 1131 Grand avenue, Chicago Heights. Killed when his truck was smashed by a fast Chicago and Eastern Illinois passenger train at the 26th street grade crossing in the southern suburb. The heavy truck was dragged 500 feet before the train could be halted. Police said flash signals at the crossing were working.

Frank Ryan, 55 years old, 4918 Augusta street. Died at St. Anne's hospital from injuries sustained Dec. 27 when he was struck by a taxicab at Chicago and Cicero avenues. The driver was Alfred Damasco, 837 North Kildare avenue.

Daniel Karr, 60 years old, 1509 West 51st place. Died in the Holy Cross hospital from injuries he sustained when he was struck by an automobile driven by Harold Sexauer, 22 years old, 1419 72d street.

Miss Martha Roger, 25 years old, 3305 North Karlov avenue. Died at the Edgewater hospital from injuries received when struck by an automobile in front of 6100 North Clark street. The driver was Ray Lefeber, 20 years old, 1409 Byron street.

Double Crash; Two Hurt.

Dr. George H. Mammen, 2706 North Rockwell street, driving a woman to the Lutheran Deaconess hospital after she had been hit by an automobile, crashed his own machine into an elevated upright last night and was also hurt. The journey to the hospital was continued, but with the physician in the rôle of a patient.

The woman injured earlier and hurt again in the second crash was Mrs. Anna Bojcik, 55 years old, 3024 George street. She was struck by the car of John Schmetz, 23, of 2818 North Linder avenue, at Rockwell and Division streets. Her condition is serious.

M'KINLOCK III. ACCUSED BY HIS EX-WIFE; SEIZED

John McKinlock III., broker and wealthy heir, was arrested last night in his home at 540 Briar place on a warrant charging assault to commit murder, which was obtained by his former wife, Mrs. Mary Louise Quinlan McKinlock, of 2970 Sheridan road.

The warrant was served by Sergts. Rudolph Fremont and John Joyce. It complained that McKinlock struck his former wife on Christmas eve. McKinlock described the incident as only a "little tiff," following a holiday celebration, in which his divorced wife was his partner, and then accompanied the policemen to the detective bureau, where he was released on bond fifteen minutes later.

He said he and Mrs. McKinlock had gone out occasionally since their divorce last summer and that last week he presented his wife with $1,000.

"She'll never appear in court against me," predicted McKinlock last night when he was told to appear in Felony court this morning. But Mrs. McKinlock said:

"He kicked me. Of course I'll appear in court."

NEW YEAR RESOLVES FOR HUSBAND, WIFE; JUDGE MILLER'S IDEA

Judge Harry B. Miller of the Superior court, who has been hearing divorce cases and other matters appertaining to the domestic hearthstone, yesterday gave out a set of New Year resolutions for husbands and wives, to wit:

1. To bear and forbear.
2. When you find fault with your spouse remember your spouse could find fault with you; neither of you are perfect.
3. Remember your children. They are the innocent sufferers. They need the association and companionship of both father and mother.
4. Refrain from quarreling and from acrimony in the presence of your children.
5. When you are peeved hark back to your courting days and remember how anxious you were to marry the one you did marry.
6. Remember husband and wife are partners in the most important business of establishing and maintaining a happy, contented, and successful American home. Discuss all problems of the home frankly with each other.
7. Avoid incuring debts beyond the means of your revenue to meet.
8. It takes two to make a quarrel. The one with the most sense will keep still.
9. Divorce should be the last resort, not the first.
10. Make 1932 the happiest and most contented year so far of your married life.

Two Chicago and One Gary Man Sent to State Farm

Rock Island, Ill., Dec. 30.—[Special.]—John Collins and Edward Fanning, both of Chicago, and William Spurlock, former Gary, Ind., deputy sheriff, were sentenced to eight months at the state farm at Vandalia, Ill., by Judge Albert M. Crampton in County court today when they pleaded guilty to charges of carrying concealed weapons. They were arrested at Milan when firearms were found in their automobile. Pleas for probation were denied.

GARNER CHIDES ASSOCIATES FOR HASTY TAX VIEWS

Washington, D. C., Dec. 30.—[Special.]—Speaker Garner today took to task two party leaders, Representative Rainey [Rep., Ill.] and Chairman Collier [Dem., Miss.] of the ways and means committee, who he thought had been doing too much predicting about the tax proposals of the Democratic majority in the house.

Apparently a bit incensed over criticisms of the purported Democratic plan made yesterday by Ogden L. Mills, undersecretary of the treasury, Mr. Garner not only delivered the figurative spanking to the leaders, but again denied that the Democrats had evolved a revenue program.

Such views as already have been expressed are personal, he insisted, and whatever plan the Democrats finally adopt is yet to be worked out by the joint senate and house "policy committee."

Representative Rainey, who is party floor leader, and Representative Collier were closeted with the sepaker for nearly two and a half hours. Afterward, Mr. Collier remarked facetiously that he would not have "another tax program within the next 24 hours."

Some major steps in a tax bill have been gone over by the Democratic leaders, however, and are most likely to be presented among the revenue proposals. One is for repeal of the capital gains and losses provisions of the revenue act.

Asks Rehearing of Tax Appeal of Jack Guzik

Attorney William F. Waugh yesterday asked the United States Circuit Court of Appeals to grant a rehearing of the appeal of Jack Guzik from the five year sentence to Leavenworth prison for income tax evasion. The petition deals with the second count of the indictment and claims that Guzik filed a return and owes no additional taxes for 1928.

BURGLARS GET $3,000 LOOT.

Jewelry, silverware, and clothing valued at $3,000 were stolen last night from the home of Alfred Whitee at 7350 Phillips avenue. White operates the White garage at 7346 Exchange avenue. The thieves entered his home through the kitchen door.

VENGEANCE SEEN AS MOTIVE FOR GANG EXECUTION

Police Trail Clews to the Schneider Killers.

Three motives were under consideration yesterday by police in the investigation of the murder of Abraham Schneider, alias Abe Cooper, small time gambler, gangster and politician, whose body was found sprawled beside Wolf road, a half mile north of Grand avenue and a mile west of Franklin Park. Schneider, who was 42 years old and lived at the Stratford hotel, 4131 Sheridan road, had been shot seven times.

Belated gangland vengeance was held as the most likely motive by Sergt. Clarence Haskins of the state highway police. Schneider came to Chicago three years ago and assumed the name Cooper to throw East St. Louis gangsters off his trail after a gang dispute, Sergt. Haskins said. Schneider had been a newsboy in East St. Louis and drifted into minor gang company.

Recall Arrest in Bond Case.

Also considered as a motive was Schneider's arrest four months ago by the Hargrave Detective Agency when he and a companion, known only as Caldwell, attempted to dispose of stolen bonds issued by the Old Reliable Insurance company. The charge was dismissed when police failed to prove either of the men had the bonds in their possession.

The third motive, supported by evidence that Schneider was broke, is that he may have encroached on rackets of other minor gangsters in a desperate effort to get money. Only $3.41 was found in his pocket and inquiry at the hotel revealed he owed a $400 bill for his room. The room was found to contain only a few clothes—a top coat, underwear, several shirts, and a few ties.

Highway Police Find Body.

The body was found by Sergt. Haskins and State Highway Policemen Victor Edgren and Earl Krotz, who patrol the northern end of the county.

Schneider was identified by Joseph F. Chrash, an attorney, who lives at the Stratford hotel, whose card was found in Schneider's pocket. Schneider was a precinct captain of the 48th ward under the leadership of School Board Attorney Thomas V. Sullivan, who was active with the former city administration. Schneider, under the name Cooper, had been employed until three months ago as an investigator for the school board.

The card of Attorney Louis Piquett, who represented Schneider on the bond charge, was also found in the gambler's pockets. The attorney could not be reached. The card of Jack A. Laverne, personal bailiff to Municipal Judge Alfred G. Erickson, was also found in his pockets.

SEEKS WAY TO LEAVE WEALTH TO CONVICT SON

Topeka, Kas., Dec. 30.—(AP)—The 84 year old father of a man serving a life sentence in the Kansas penitentiary for the slaying of his sweetheart on the steps of a cathedral at Wichita eleven years ago pleaded today with Gov. Harry H. Woodring for executive clemency which would enable his son to inherit some of his property.

The aged father, Theodore Ossweiler Sr., is reputed to be wealthy, and the son, so long as he is under a life sentence, is "civilly dead" and unable to inherit property.

Theodore Jr., a former banker, was convicted of shooting Miss Caroline Cunningham to death.

MILK PRICE CUT GOES INTO EFFECT AT MIDNIGHT

Effective at midnight tonight, the retail price of milk will be 12 cents a quart in Chicago and nearby suburbs. This is a reduction of 1 cent a quart. The price of pints and one-third quarts will remain at 8 cents and 5 cents respectively. The third quart measure is sold mainly to restaurants. There is no change in cream prices.

The decision to cut the price of quarts was reached early this month after a five day conference between executives of the major Chicago dairy companies and heads of the Pure Milk association, which represents the farmers. The farmers agreed to accept 75 per cent of the 1 cent reduction and the dealers' 25 per cent.

The Chicago and suburban market uses about 1,400,000 quarts of milk daily.

FIRE DRIVES OUT 20 FAMILIES.

Fire starting from defective wiring swept through the basement of a 32-apartment building at 1302-28 West Madison street and drove more than a score of families to the street early yesterday.

TWO ILL WITH RABBIT FEVER; ISSUE WARNING

Two cases of tularemia, a rare disease known also as rabbit fever, have been discovered in the city recently. Dr. Herman N. Bundesen, president of the board of health, issued a warning yesterday to persons who handle wild rabbits that the only sure method of avoiding infection is to handle the animals with rubber gloves.

The two victims of the disease are Joseph Byrel, 2255 Diversey avenue, who contracted it on a hunting trip, and Ladion Cardwell, 5651 Calumet avenue, a student at Wendell Phillips High school, who contracted the fever while dressing rabbits in a butcher shop where he worked after school. Tularemia is characterized by persistent chills and fever and glandular swellings. It is contracted from the fur of rabbits or other infected animals through abrasions in the skin of the handlers.

Cooking destroys the organism which causes the disease, Dr. Bundesen said.

LEVEES HOLDING ON MISSISSIPPI; FLOODS RECEDE

Glendora, Miss., Dec. 30.—(AP)—Floodwaters which have deluged this town for the past ten days, lifted some of their pressure today and moved on southward.

Glendora residents topped the 11 mile levee protecting their home from the Tallahatchie river's fury with new sandbags and took a breathing spell in the belief that only an unsuspected weak point in the defense could turn the floodwaters in on them.

Water receded from the business district today, leaving the street passable for the first time since the levee broke Monday. Homes, which had been flooded, began to dry out as the floodwaters poured southward down the Tallahatchie valley.

Swan Lake, which sent out a call for help last night in fear that its levee would break, apparently had won its fight with the aid of forty Negroes hurried there to help strengthen the dyke.

ATTACK VALUE ON BANK'S BUILDING AT NELSON TRIAL

Debtors Continue to Tell of Their Loans.

BY JOHN BOETTIGER.

Evidence intended to support state charges that the building owned and occupied by the Waukegan State bank had been overvalued on the bank's books was given yesterday in the misfeasance trial of State Auditor Oscar Nelson before a jury in the court of Judge Edward Shurtleff at Woodstock.

Walter J. Parsons, civil engineer and real estate broker, testified that in his opinion the building and land was worth $217,000 in October, 1930. It was learned that the bank had put a book value of approximately $320,000 on the property, subject to a mortgage of $180,000 showing an equity of $140,000. The bank's valuation is indicated as $100,000 higher than that set by the state's expert witness. The cost of the building and land, the witness testified, was $388,000 in 1926.

Charges Insolvency in 1930.

This evidence was offered by State's Attorney A. V. Smith of Waukegan to uphold his charge that the Waukegan bank was insolvent in the fall of 1930, and that Auditor Nelson, having knowledge of its condition, should have closed it at that time instead of allowing it to remain open for nine months longer.

Prosecutor Smith also continued to present many witnesses who owe money to the bank and are not able to pay. The witnesses, some of whom have been business men in Waukegan for many years, are compelled to submit to a searching inquiry into their assets and liabilities.

The defense attorneys continued to make technical objections to much of the documentary evidence offered by Col. Smith. After Mrs. Dorothy Hines Walker, stenographer at the bank, had identified correspondence relating to a $500,000 transaction between the Waukegan State bank and the National Bank of the Republic of Chicago, a transaction which the state has charged reflected fraud, David H. Joslyn defense attorney, took up a cross-examination.

Questioned About Letter.

Mr. Joslyn picked up a letter supposedly written by William H. Miller, vice president of the Chicago bank, to Norman O. Geyer, president of the Waukegan bank. The signature on the letter had been identified by Mrs. Walker as that of Mr. Miller. The examination was as follows:

Q.—Did you see Mr. Miller sign it? A.—No, but I have seen his signature on many other letters.

Q.—Well, how do you know whether he signed it or had a secretary sign it? A.—It is on the bank letter head and his name is on it.

Q.—Then you don't know whether he signed it or not, except that it is on the bank letterhead? A.—Well, I didn't see him sign it.

When Is Letter Mailed?

Then the attorney referred to a copy of a letter written by Geyer to Miller, which Mrs. Walker had said she typed and put in the mail.

Q.—Do you know the letter was mailed? A.—Why, yes; I put it in outgoing mail tray.

Q.—Did you put a stamp on it? A.—No.

Q.—Did you place the letter in the mail box? A.—Why, no.

Q.—Then you don't know whether the letter was mailed or not, do you? A.—I told you I placed it with other outgoing mail.

This line of questioning was taken to mean that when the state offers the correspondence the defense will object on the ground it was not properly identified.

Nelson Absent At Session.

The defense has made many other objections to exhibits offered by the state. Reports of examinations of the Waukegan State bank, made by Mr. Nelson's own employés, were strenuously objected to by the defense, and Judge Shurtleff has kept the reports out until the state connects them up with other evidence.

Mr. Nelson was absent from the afternoon session of the trial yesterday. He explained that many duties piling up for him in his office at Chicago required his presence.

TWO NEBRASKANS FOUND DEAD; NO SIGN OF VIOLENCE

Beatrice, Neb., Dec. 30.—[Special.]—The result of a chemist's examination of internal organisms was awaited tonight to solve the mysterious death early today of two prominent Beatrice men.

The victims—Harry Whiteside, 48, suspended fire chief, and John Marten, 49, mill employé—were found in an automobile thirteen miles north of here by Dr. J. B. Klein, Dewitt, Neb., dentist. The car was in high gear. There were no signs of a struggle and both men were sitting upright. Apparently they had been dead but a short time. No wounds were found on the bodies, and Dr. Roy Noble believed the men had not been asphyxiated. An autopsy failed to reveal a cause for death.

The veteran fire chief was suspended recently pending trial of a robbery charge. He had declared the case was a frameup. Whiteside left home shortly after dinner yesterday evening, but did not tell Mrs. Whiteside where he was going. During dinner he received a telephone call and indicated he might be able to uncover evidence to present in his trial, which was set to start Jan. 4.

Marten left home about the same time. One theory is that the men became ill in Lincoln and started home immediately.

Youthful Burglar Sent to Jail for Gun Toting

William Wittenberg, 17 years old, 7304 Colfax avenue, was sent to the Bridewell yesterday by Municipal Judge J. William Brooks to serve out a $100 fine for carrying concealed weapons, and held to the grand jury on a charge of burglary. The youth was caught on Tuesday by Joseph Golonka, 2822 Cambridge avenue, as he was leaving Golonka's home with a valise containing $1,000 in Liberty bonds and other valuables.

BULLET IN A BOY'S HEART TRAVELS TO LEG VIA ARTERIES

Youngstown, O., Dec. 30.—(AP)—Shot in the heart, a boy here was saved when the blood pushed the bullet into an artery.

The bullet, a .22 caliber missile, finally lodged in the boy's groin, where surgeons said today it will be permitted to remain for a time.

The boy, Harry Besharre, was shot by a playmate Saturday. The bullet lodged in the wall of the heart's left auricle. Expansion and contraction of the heart muscles worked it into the auricle, with a blood clot building up behind it, preventing hemorrhage.

Once inside the heart, the bullet passed into the left ventricle, then was forced up the aorta [largest of the body], through another large artery leading through chest and abdomen and into the left iliac artery, which carries blood to the left leg. The missile now is in the femoral artery.

The physicians hope the bullet will work further down in the femoral artery to a point in the left leg where it can be removed without danger.

INDIANA POLITICS WARMS UP; G. O. P. TO MEET TODAY

Watson Says Congress Quits Party Lines.

Indianapolis, Ind., Dec. 30.—[Special.]—The Indiana Republican state committee will reorganize at a special meeting tomorrow afternoon.

Ivan Morgan of Austin, chairman of the old Third district, will be elected state chairman to succeed Elza O. Rogers, Lebanon, who is to be chairman of the executive committee.

Watson Sees Congress Harmony.

Reorganization of the state committee was decided on, it is reported when Senator James E. Watson arrived here yesterday after a holiday in Chicago. The senator tonight issued a statement in which he said:

"The problem before us in congress, is not partisan. Fundamentally, we are all agreed that we must work for the best interests of the country rather than for promotion of any party's success. We will fight out our partisan questions when the campaign opens.

"The passage of the moratorium is an illustration. As the Republicans loyally and unitedly supported Woodrow Wilson in a time of war, the Democrats and the Republicans will very likely harmonize in solving problems that confront us now."

Democrats in Conference.

At an informal conference of Indiana Democratic legislative leaders with Walter Myers, speaker of the house of representatives, it was decided to sound out sentiment among Democratic legislators on the proposed call for a special session of the general assembly in February.

Senator Walter S. Chambers, New Castle, minority floor leader, told the conferees he on his own initiative had written questionnaires to the Democratic senators. He had had replies from more than half and opposition was freely expressed to the tax revision plan advanced recently by Senator Joe Rand Beckett [Rep., Indianapolis].

5 CONDUCTORS OF C. & N. W. ON LAST RUNS TODAY

Five of the oldest conductors on the Chicago and North Western railway will make their last runs today before retiring on pensions. Their individual service averages fifty-two years, and their cumulative travel totals nearly 10,000,000 miles.

They are preceded in retirement by another veteran of the same road, Thomas Cosgrove, 70 years old, 4923 Washington boulevard, an engineer for forty-nine years. He piloted the Columbine, crack train. He was at the throttle yesterday for the last time when he took the Columbine from Chicago to Clinton, Ia.

The five conductors who retire today are: T. J. (Tim) Crowley of Milwaukee, whose fifty-seven years of service make him the dean of North Western conductors; Edward Carey of West Chicago, with fifty-four years of service; James W. York of Janesville, Wis., with fifty-one years; Frank D. Sughrua, 2435 Greenleaf avenue, with fifty years; and Emery B. Holmes of West Chicago, with forty-eight years.

REALTY DEALER IS QUIZZED AGAIN ON DEBT TO BANK

Victor J. Curto Tells of His Transactions.

Victor J. Curto, president of V. J. Curto, Inc., north side real estate concern, was the principal witness yesterday in Circuit Judge Michael Feinberg's court at the hearing to investigate the Sheridan Trust and Savings bank which closed last June.

Curto repeated his previous assertion that he was unable to pay anything in cash on the $150,000 which he borrowed from the bank before it failed. He was questioned at length concerning a $150,000 trust fund which he established in June, 1929, for the benefit of his wife and children. He declared again that the trust was irrevocable and could not be turned over to the depositors.

Tells Payments to Woman.

The real estate dealer testified that he had taken out a $50,000 life insurance policy with a Mrs. Rotert of Rogers Park, widow of one of his salesmen, as the beneficiary. He also said he deeded over property worth $70,000 to Mrs. Rotert and had been paying her $200 a month during the last six months.

"Why have you been paying this money to Mrs. Rotert?" the judge asked.

"She's the widow of a former salesman in my office," said Curto. "She married a man named Rotert this year. They live somewhere in Rogers Park on Loyola avenue. I sold her a piece of property for $74,000 and guaranteed her a 7 per cent return on her investment. I promised her she would never lose by the investment and I am a man of honor. I gave her the property, the life insurance and am making monthly payments to fulfill that obligation."

Willing to Deed Over Home.

Curto said he was willing to execute a deed to the bank receiver for his 14 room home and the half block of property at 2100 Pratt avenue on which it stands. He said that the furniture in the house, valued at $20,000, had been sold to his mother-in-law, Mrs. Elizabeth Paull, for $1,700.

He was told to bring in Mrs. Rotert and Mrs. Paull as witnesses.

Curto said that he and his wife had $310,000 life insurance in August, 1930, all of which has been borrowed on and allowed to lapse. The only insurance he now holds is the $50,000 policy of which Mrs. Rotert is the beneficiary, he said. He paid an income tax of $32,000 in 1929 but none at all in 1930, he testified.

Realty Transactions Told.

The witness then told of several real estate transactions he had engineered in which Edwin L. Read, then president of the bank, was involved. Read was chairman of the board of directors and F. E. Roney was president when the bank closed.

Curto said he sometimes advanced the cash for Read in these transactions. Among the deals were those involving the purchase of the 1020 Lawrence avenue building, the property at the northwest corner of Sheridan road and Lawrence avenue, and property at 5831 Sheridan road.

Curto agreed to execute a deed to the property at Sheridan road and Lawrence avenue to which he holds title. Mortgages totaling more than $500,000 encumber the property and the lawyers said it was doubtful if the receiver could realize much on it.

The hearing will be continued today.

W. C. T. U. Officer Quits; Wants Rum Referendum

St. Paul, Minn., Dec. 30.—(AP)—Mrs. W. O. Clayton today resigned as president of a local Woman's Christian Temperance union unit, because of disagreement with the national organization concerning a liquor referendum.

She believes popular vote should decide the prohibition issue and said the national union should not fight such a step, as it announced it would.

Aviation Notes

The Transcontinental and Western Air system will speed up its schedules between New York and Chicago, effective Jan. 2, reducing the actual time spent in travel to approximately seven and one-half hours, Richard W. Robbins, the president, announced yesterday. The faster schedules follow an increase of speed on the system's southern transcontinental route.

Shippers over Century Air Express are furnished with a report on the time of arrival of the shipments at its destination, and the consignee is notified of the shipment's progress along the air route, without extra charge, over the company's teletype system between cities.

During the last year, planes operated by United Air Lines day and night between forty-five cities in nineteen states have made 65,000 landings and the same number of take-offs.

Braniff Airways, operating between Chicago and Oklahoma City, yesterday announced a 10 per cent reduction on all round trip fares, effective immediately.

SIGN CONTRACTS FOR POWER MADE AT BOULDER DAM

Los Angeles Will Get Most of It.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Dec. 30.—[Special.]—Five contracts for Boulder dam power have been signed under the allocation made in April, 1930, it was announced today by Secretary of the Interior Ray Lyman Wilbur. These are the last contracts to be executed, it was said, until the states of Arizona and Nevada wish to contract for energy.

The contracts are with the municipalities of Pasadena, Glendale, and Burbank, Cal., and with the Southern Sierras Power company, and the Los Angeles Gas and Electric corporation. About $25,000,000 will be collected under them over a fifty year period if the present rate of 1.65 mills per kilowatt-hour is maintained, Secretary Wilbur estimated. The rate, however, is subject to readjustment periodically under the terms of the Boulder canyon project act.

Final Allocation.

These contracts, according to the announcement, make the final allocation of Boulder dam power as follows:

"Arizona and Nevada, each, 18 per cent to be contracted for whenever needed.

"Los Angeles and the other three municipalities, 19 per cent, of which approximately 15 per cent is taken by Los Angeles and approximately 4 per cent by the other three. In addition, Los Angeles will take and pay for one-half of the unused state energy until the states demand it.

Electric Companies Share.

"The Southern California Edison company, the Los Angeles Gas and Electric company, the Southern Sierras Power company, 9 per cent in all. In addition, these three companies will take and pay for one-half of the unused state energy until the states demand it.

"To the Metropolitan water district, 36 per cent.

"In addition, the Metropolitan water district can demand all unused state energy, although it is not required to take it and similarly demand all secondary energy, although not required to take it."

RISK COMPANY LOANS $100,000 ON UPTOWN SITE

Massachusetts Mutual Is the Lender.

A $100,000 loan was negotiated yesterday by Abraham Gumbiner on his property at the northwest corner of Irving Park boulevard and Sheridan road, with the Massachusetts Mutual Life Insurance company, for ten years and two months at 5½%. The property, 105x193, is valued at $275,000 and the three story building at $125,000, or a total of $400,000, according to Mr. Gumbiner.

The building contains seven stores, all rented, and to such tenants as Walgreen, Sally Frocks etc. and twenty-one flats, all but two of which are occupied. The new loan is to pay one maturing with the Continental Illinois Bank and Trust company.

Another Loan of $75,000.

Another loan was made by the Massachusetts Mutual Life Insurance company on the fee at the southwest corner of Lawrence and Sawyer avenues, to David Rolnick. This was for $75,000 at 5½% for a ten year term. The land is under lease for ninety-nine years to the S. S. Kreske company on a graduated rental running from $12,000 annually to $20,000.

The county records yesterday disclosed a loan of $200,000 on the leasehold estate and five story building at the northeast corner of Madison and Crawford, 79x116, to the Madison-Crawford Building corporation, by the Chicago Title and Trust company, for five years at 6%. The borrowing corporation is owned by the Walgreen company.

The National Tea company has leased the double store at 5823 North Clark street, for a ten year term beginning Jan. 1, 1932, at a reported aggregate rental of $18,600. The Harry Goldstine Realty company was broker.

Loop Corner Transferred.

Transfer of the leasehold estate and sixteen story building at the northwest corner of La Salle and Monroe streets, 188x75, from the National Bank of the Republic of Chicago to the Central Republic Bank and Trust company, was filed for record yesterday at the recorder's office. This is the final step in the merging of the two institutions, effected last summer.

The McCarthy Realty company, of 6209 North Western avenue, report selling the Clifton Manor hotel, at 4525 Clifton avenue, lot 116x100, for Leroy Schoen and wife to Edith V. Anderson, for an undisclosed consideration subject to a $50,000 first mortgage. The vacant northwest corner of Lincoln and Christiana avenues, 50x125, and the northwest corner of Glenlake and Jersey avenues, 100x179, were given in exchange.

ACTOR LANGDON HEAVY DRINKER, HIS WIFE SAYS

New York, Dec. 30. — [Special.]—Harry Langdon, comedian of the stage and screen, according to William D. Cunningham, counsel for Langdon's second wife, Helen Walton Langdon of New Rochelle, has recently taken to "drinking heavily of 'woof woof'" which is Langdon's name for liquor, and as a result his earnings "have probably fallen off."

Arguing in Supreme court today on Mrs. Langdon's application for counsel fees and alimony pending trial of her suit for separation, Cunningham declared that it is a practice of Langdon to go about with thousand dollar bills and thumb tacks in his pockets, and each night to tack the bills underneath tables and other pieces of furniture in places in which he may be staying.

This odd practice was made necessary because the first Mrs. Langdon, who is now trying to collect back alimony in the amount of $60,000, Cunningham told the court, always seizes money wherever and whenever he deposits it.

Mrs. Langdon No. 2, asks $1,000 alimony and $10,000 counsel fees. Counsel for Langdon said the comedian is willing to give his second wife a separation, so the court advised both sides to get together and agree on counsel fees and alimony. Meanwhile he reserved decision.

SPECIAL SESSION ON PUBLIC DEBTS FACES MICHIGAN

Various Bond Issues Over 850 Millions.

Lansing, Mich., Dec. 30.—[Special.]—The state of Michigan and its various governmental subdivisions had a total bonded indebtedness at the end of the fiscal year amounting to $850,648,694, it was revealed today by Howard C. Lawrence, state treasurer.

This huge bonded debt is seen by capitol observers as the underlying basis for a probable extra session of the legislature this winter to deal with certain phases of the financial problem.

The state's bonded debt amounts to only about one-tenth of the grand total, amounting to $83,259,000, according to Lawrence's figures. Municipal obligations constitute the great bulk of the total, aggregating $764,430,540, while the road bonds issued by the counties under the Covert road act, which have proved so burdensome in some cases that the taxes exceed the value of properties affected, total $44,603,126.

While the last regular session of the legislature placed several curbs upon extravagant municipal financing, the growing instances of bond defaults by cities and villages are seen as demonstrating a need for further legislation.

WIDOW AND SON SHARE ESTATE OF KNOWLTON AMES

Will Filed; Value Is Not Disclosed.

The will of Knowlton L. Ames Sr., late chairman of the Booth Fisheries and owner of the Chicago Journal of Commerce, was filed for probate yesterday with Oscar S. Caplan, assistant to Probate Judge Horner. Mr. Ames committed suicide by shooting himself on Dec. 23.

The will, which disposes of an estate of undetermined value, was executed Dec. 18, just five days before he ended his life. It gives the widow, Mrs. Ada Howell Ames, one-third of the property, and a son, John Dawes Ames, the remainder. The daughters, Mrs. Rosemary Meyer of London, England, and Emily Ann Ames, 5 years old, are beneficiaries of a life insurance trust, the amount of which is not mentioned. The older son, Knowlton L. Ames Jr., was not mentioned in the will.

Son Asked to Set Value.

When asked by Mr. Caplan to place a value on the estate, John Dawes Ames gave a figure of $50,000, as an estimate, but stated he did not wish to be bound by it. He said he could have no accurate idea of the value until making a further examination.

Mr. Ames was known to have been near prostration from worry over financial affairs. Friends described most of these worries as "imaginary" but they added that the publisher lost heavily in the market crash of 1929. Garnett & Co., a Boston brokerage house, has a suit pending in Superior court here, claiming that Mr. Ames owed the firm $350,000 as the result of market losses.

Other claims against the estate have not been made public. It has been reported since his death that Mr. Ames had a large amount of life insurance, some estimates placing it as high as $1,000,000. It is also said that the insurance is left, in a large part, to an insurance trust established for the daughter.

Denies $1,000,000.

John Dawes Ames denied last night that the trust fund approached $1,000,000. "Of that I am positive," he said, "but I don't know the exact amount." It was reported that one New York insurance company, with offices in Chicago, had insured Mr. Ames' life for more than $250,000 and that another company issued him a policy for almost the same sum.

Lawyers pointed out that the proceeds of life insurance policies accrue to the beneficiaries without liability for the debts of the estate.

Mr. Ames was fighting the Garnett & Co. suit bitterly at the time of his death. A hint of his feeling was contained in this paragraph at the close of the will:

"If at the time of my death the Garnett vs. Ames litigation is pending, I wish that my son, John Dawes Ames, would handle it, if it can be done at a reasonable expense.

Wants Case Investigated.

"I feel I influenced a lot of my friends to enter a syndicate and it is my work to find out if it is good faith for a so-called floor manager to buy a large amount of stock in the middle of a big strike and leave for Europe on one hour's notice. It seems that such actions should receive the most thorough investigation from the great New York stock exchange."

Attorney R. S. Tuthill, who filed the will, explained that Mr. Ames felt Garnett & Co. did not handle properly the stock pool formed for the Murray Body company of Detroit, an automobile concern in which Mr. Ames was a large stockholder. He was projecting a cross-suit asking $600,000 from the firm before he died.

Busch Gives Statement.

Francis X. Busch, former corporation counsel, is representing the Ames concern in its Chicago litigation. Informed of Mr. Ames' statement in the will, he said:

"This paragraph probably has reference to a syndicate pooling agreement which Mr. Ames had with a number of other stockholders of the Murray Body company of Detroit. He was the largest stockholder.

"Garnett & Co., and a New York firm, Jessup & Lamont, were hired by the syndicate as syndicate managers. One of Jessup & Lamont's floor men handled the stock for the syndicate on the floor of the exchange and Mr. Ames has claimed in his correspondence with Garnett & Co. that the syndicate lost heavily because of the incompetence of this so-called floor manager.

Blame Loss on Crash.

"Garnett & Co. has always claimed that the losses which occurred at the time of the stock market crash in 1929 were due to general market conditions and not to any fault of any trader or broker's representative.

"As a matter of fact, all the rest of the participants in the syndicate paid their losses. Mr. Ames is the only one who failed to pay. I don't understand the reference to 'Europe.' So far as I know, none of the brokers or their representatives went there. Mr. Ames, however, was in Europe during June, July and August."

HEAD OF HARLAN MINE UNION, 77, GOES ON TRIAL

Chief Lawyer for Defense Quits.

Mount Sterling, Ky., Dec. 30.—[Special.]—William Hightower, the bald headed 77 year old president of the Evarts local, United Mine Workers, in Harlan county, began his fight for life today in Montgomery Circuit court before a Back county jury composed of eleven farmers and a barber.

Hightower, quiet and seemingly unperturbed, was seated in court with his wife and three children, including a six month old baby. The defense received a body blow at the morning session when W. Bridges White, leading counsel for defense, retired from the case because the defense could not pay his fee.

The defense will be conducted by former Senator John M. Robsion and Capt. B. B. Golden, assisted by Sidney J. Caudill and Trumbo Snedegar.

At the afternoon session the opening statement of the commonwealth was made by J. B. Snyder of Harlan, who charged the defendant with joining a conspiracy and aiding and abetting in the murder of Jim Daniels, Otto Lee, and Howard Jones.

The statement for the defense was made by Senator Robsion, who denied all the statements of the state. He asserted that the defendant had never been in any trouble, was a Spanish-American war veteran, had spent his life in coal mines, had never made any threats against Jim Daniels, and knew nothing of the killings.

Senator Robsion made a strong plea for acquittal on the grounds of an alibi.

N. R. Denham, civil engineer, was first witness, describing Evarts and showing a map of scene of the killings.

GRUNDY COUNTY SHERIFFS FINED BY U. S. JUDGE

Sheriff John Perucca of Grundy county and Harry Y. Jones, former sheriff of the same county, pleaded guilty yesterday before Federal Judge Charles E. Woodward to allowing unusual liberties to Matt Blazer, Oak Park bootlegger, while he was in their jail at Morris under a federal sentence. Perucca was fined $50 and Jones $250.

At the same hearing Perucca was granted an additional stay until Jan. 15 on his three months' sentence to jail for contempt of court, which Judge Woodward had imposed previously. Perucca was found guilty of granting liberties to Anton J. Rench, former mayor of Stickney, alleged Capone lieutenant, who is serving a year's sentence in the Grundy county jail for violation of the prohibition law. Perucca is expected to present a petition asking for a reduction of his sentence on the contempt charge.

According to Assistant United States Attorney Edward A. Fisher, Perucca has agreed not to allow Rench any time off for good behavior. Rench could have been released on Dec. 26 with the good behavior allowance, but now will not get out until Feb. 26.

He died several hours later at St. Paul's emergency hospital. He had gone to the laundry to call for a package. EX-DRY AGENT STIRS SCANDAL IN SUICIDE NOTE

Ohio Officials Suppress Prominent Names.

Cleveland, O., Dec. 30.—[Special.]—Writing a farewell letter "for publication," C. C. Barton, 41, discharged state dry agent, today killed himself with a revolver in a downtown hotel room.

Barton had been dismissed by State Prohibition Commissioner E. G. Mathews on Dec. 18 when whisky was found in the agent's Columbus, O., hotel room. He was the father of six children.

The five page letter he left related drinking scandals involving state senators, prominent politicians, and officials of the prohibition department.

Two pages containing the names of public men were suppressed. The three pages that were released charged that five fellow dry agents had framed Barton.

Coroner A. J. Pearse stated that if the note was published in full it would result in a big scandal in the state prohibition department.

Part of the Letter.

That part of the letter made public follows:

"The true story of what happened at Hotel Fort Hayes in Columbus, O., follows:

"O. P. Davis brought in a gallon of brandy from his home in St. Clairesville, O. I was invited to the room of Tom Bush, where one quart was brought in by Davis and was drunk by Bush, Walters, Ward, Davis [all dry agents], and myself.

"Later Davis came to my room with another quart and two Columbus girls came in and had some drinks. Later in the evening Bush, Walters, and Ward, together with Charles Budot [another dry agent], came to my room.

"This concluded the party. The entire gang double crossed me and placed me in the light of the guilty party. I did not furnish a drop of liquor at any time during the evening.

"Mr. Mathews received an anonymous note about the party about a week later and set the hearing for the 18th of December. Davis came to my room on the morning of the 18th and wished to know what was to be told. I said, 'Tell the truth.'

Offers Him a Drink.

"I had a bottle containing some liquor and offered him a drink. He at once left my room and went to the office and reported that I had liquor in my room.

"Mr. Mathews came down to the hotel, and upon finding the bottle told me that I was 'fired.' I went on to the office and requested that I be permitted to sit in on the hearing. Mathews told me I was excused from the hearing. I left the room, and after the other agents had recited their stories I was invited back.

"Ward placed all the blame on me, which was acquiesced in by all the others present. Mathews at all times appeared to make me the guilty party.

"This is the truth, the whole truth as I may answer to my God, which I'm going to do."

THREE ARE HELD TO GUARD JURY IN HOLDUP KILLING

Judge Alfar M. Eberhardt, presiding in the Felony court, yesterday held three men to the grand jury on charges of murdering Harry Schmitt during a holdup of his delicatessen at 4728 Belmont avenue on Dec. 10. Schmitt tried to repulse the bandit trio by throwing pies at them and was shot down.

The men held are Charles W. Wuertz, 24 years old, 1114 North 9th avenue, East St. Louis; Walter Wozolek, 25, of 830 North Marshfield avenue, and Arthur Klein, 25, of 2916 Broadway. According to the police the three men have confessed the slaying. Wozolek and Wuertz were captured on Dec. 22 while fleeing from another robbery, and their alleged confession implicated Klein.

Two others arrested during the investigation were held to the grand jury in bonds of $60,000 on charges of robbery. They are Joseph Kopey, 26 years old, 1328 North Campbell avenue, and Walter Slova, 27, 2265 Diversey avenue. Joseph Raymond, 811 Rose street, who, police charge, kept the gunmen's revolvers when they were not carrying them, was held to the grand jury as an accessory to murder in bonds of $50,000.

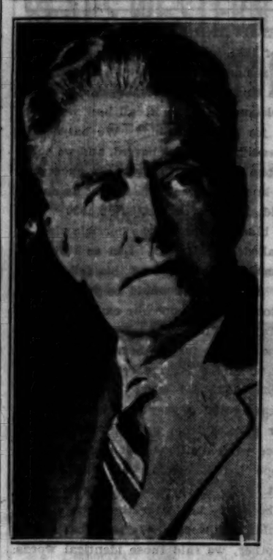
MUSSOLINI BARS NOISE IN ROME IN EARLY HOURS

ROME, Dec. 30.—(AP)—Premier Mussolini will test his power on New Year's morning by determining whether even he can keep noisy Rome quiet from 12:30 a. m. to 6 a. m.

He has instructed the city government to issue an ordinance forbidding the blowing of automobile horns within that time.

A commission long has tried unsuccessfully to cope with the problem of keeping Rome, with a reputation of being one of the noisiest cities in the world, quiet during those hours, so Il Duce decided to try his hand.

Stage Veteran Dies



TYRONE POWER.

Hollywood, Cal., Dec. 30.—[Special.]—Tyrone Power, for 45 years a well known actor on stage and screen, died suddenly of a heart ailment in his rooms at the Hollywood Athletic club this morning. He was 62. Funeral services will be held here Saturday in the chapel at 1201 South Hope street.

He had recently come here after a Shakespearean stage run, with William Faversham, Fritz Lieber, and Helen Mencken, in Chicago and New York, to revive the rôle of the patriarch in the talking movie version of "The Miracle Man," which was perhaps his greatest stage rôle.

Power was born in London in May, 1869, of a famous theatrical family.

Power produced, starred in, and directed plays, among his best remembered appearances being in "Hamlet," "Thais," "Wandering Jew," "Chu Chin Chow," "The Servant in the House," "The Tempest," "When Knighthood Was in Flower," "Becky Sharp," "The Rivals," and in Shakespearean repertoire.

MARY SEIZES HER MISSING 'BOND ADVISER'

For six days a week, Miss Mary Garten, who came to America three years ago from Weisbaden, Germany, is a governess in the home of Joseph Rosenberg, 984 Forest avenue, Glencoe, vice president of the Brunswick-Balke-Collender company. Wednesday is her day off.

One Wednesday evening three months ago she met "Dr. Harry Allen" at the Aragon ballroom. He danced perfectly, and won her confidence after meeting her five Wednesday nights in a row. So when he suggested that he could make some money for her by investment in bonds, she drew $186 from the bank and gave it to him. That was the last she saw of him for several Wednesdays.

She went to the police on one of her days off, but they told her that they could do nothing unless she knew where he lived. Yesterday Miss Garten went shopping in the loop. In front of the Palmer House she met "Dr. Allen." She seized his arm.

"Where are my bonds?" she demanded.

"Catch me and you'll get them," he retorted as he broke away from her grasp.

She chased him, screaming through the shopping crowd, to State and Madison streets. There Detectives Arthur Smith and William Fuller of the central police district collared him. At the detective bureau it was found he had been arrested on charges of selling fake stocks under the names of Louis J. Roycroft and George E. Adams. He gave his name yesterday as Harry Allen, 28 years old, 4640 Drexel boulevard, but admitted that the "doctor" was his own invention.

VETERAN'S WIFE, MOTHER OF 7, IN HOME BREW NET

Rock Island, Ill., Dec. 30.—[Special.]—County authorities here are perplexed regarding disposition of the case of Mrs. Frank Poma, wife of a disabled American world war veteran who is in the Hines hospital. She is the mother of seven small children. She was arrested by deputy sheriffs, who raided her home and found 460 bottles of beer.

She was released on her own recognizance in County court and Judge G. D. Long appointed the county's only woman attorney, Ruthy Miller Moline, justice of the peace, to defend her. Mrs. Poma pleaded not guilty and demanded a jury trial. Authorities are bothered because they can see no gain by sending her to jail and throwing the burden of the seven children on the public coffers.

Russia Closes Persian Border; Plague Kills 22

The reports said the plague had been in existence there for two months and 22 deaths have resulted.

CHARGE SHERIFF AND SIX OTHERS AS BANK BANDITS

Woman Among Suspects in Indiana Jail.

Hartford City, Ind., Dec. 30.—[Special.]—An affidavit filed in Blackford Circuit court today by James R. Emswiler, county prosecuting attorney, names seven defendants charged with conspiracy to rob the Citizens State bank of Hartford City. The robbery, it is charged, was planned for July 8.

Four of the defendants are Ira Barton, sheriff of Blackford county; Mrs. Hazel Green, Muncie, and Frank Valentino and Lorenz Capelli. All are held in jail at Portland. The other three have not been arrested and their names have been withheld. Authorities are searching for them and arrests are expected soon. These persons are all accused of the bank robbery here.

Under 20 Year Sentence.

Valentino is already under twenty year sentence for the Christmas eve robbery of the First State Bank at Dunkirk.

Authorities said no attempt would be made now to remove any of the prisoners to Blackford county.

Blackford and Jay county authorities and representatives of the state bureau of criminal investigation and identification tonight, sought further information which they assert will help to fasten guilt on Barton, held pending posting of $50,000 bond.

Mrs. Green, 42 years old, has been brought here to be questioned in the investigation of the Dunkirk and other bank robberies in eastern Indiana. She is said to have been a friend of Barton. Both have denied they were involved in the robberies.

Woman Is "Identified."

Mrs. Green was taken before the bandits who confessed their part in the Dunkirk robbery. Only the investigators were present. Frank Valentino, the bandit, is said to have said he knew Mrs. Green and that she "went south with the money we got in the Hartford City bank robbery July 8."

Lorenz Capelli, another bandit, is alleged to have said, "That's her. I'd know her anywhere."

Mrs. Green is accused of meeting with Barton and the bandits at a schoolhouse east of Hartford City, Dec. 24, to make final plans for the robbery of the Dunkirk bank.

A statement by Capelli, who faces trial Jan. 8 for the Dunkirk robbery, tells of a similar meeting prior to the holdup o fthe Hartford City bank. Other robberies involved are a second holdup of the Hartford City bank, the robbery of the First National bank at Montpelier in November.

Sentences of twenty years each have been imposed on Capelli's two companions, Albert Frabotta and Valentino, both of Chicago Heights, Ill., who pleaded guilty to bank robbery.

TINKHAM CALLS CANNON ATTACK DUTY TO PUBLIC

Washington, D. C., Dec. 30.—[Special.]—Declaring that he was actuated by a sense of public duty to expose the character of Bishop James Cannon Jr., who is suing him for $500,000 damages for alleged slander, Representative George H. Tinkham [Rep., Mass.] today in District Supreme court filed answer to the clergyman's suit.

Representative Tinkham in a speech on the floor of the House had accused Bishop Cannon of violating the federal corrupt practices act and was challenged by the churchman to divest himself of congressional immunity. The challenge was accepted by Mr. Tinkham and the bishop sued.

In his reply to the suit Representative Tinkham said that "such statement was a statement of fact and true and that it was privileged; that he was not actuated by malice, but on the contrary he was actuated by a sense of high public duty to expose the character of the plaintiff."

AL SMITH FINDS HE HAS 58TH BIRTHDAY; IS AT SEA ON POLITICS

New York, Dec. 30.—[Special.]—Today was former Gov. Alfred E. Smith's birthday—but on the spur of the moment he couldn't remember just how old he was. He had to stop and count.

AL SMITH.
[A. P. Photo.]

"Let's see," he said, "I was born in 1873, and this is 1931. That makes 58, doesn't it?"

"I feel happy today," he continued. "But hardly like a boy. You don't feel like a boy after 58 birthdays."

When asked his opinion on the political situation he replied seriously:

"I haven't anything to say. I haven't settled in my own mind yet what I want to say."

LEGION ASSERTS GLENN IS "HAZY" ON U. S. DEFENSE

Polls Congressmen on Army Plan.

The Cook county council of the American Legion has canvassed Illinois' senators and the congressmen from Cook county with respect to their views on national defense. The replies of Senator Otis F. Glenn and of two congressmen were "hazy and unsatisfactory," according to the council's finding. The results of the survey are being distributed to military and patriotic organizations throughout the state.

The senators and congressmen were asked for statements of their opinions on the national defense program adopted by the Legion at its national convention in Detroit. This program included increasing the regular army from its present strength to about 123,000 to 165,000 provided for in the national defense act of 1920; increasing the national guard from about 125,000 to 210,000, and increasing the number of officers in the reserve corps from about 82,000 to 120,000.

Report Is Approved.

The report of the survey was submitted by W. R. Matheny, chairman of the committee on military affairs, and unanimously approved by the county council.

The reply of Senator Glenn was: "The matters presented will have my careful consideration."

"Subsequently," the Legion report states, "Senator Glenn wrote that the extent of the Legion program was so great that 'there has not been time available since you submitted these matters to me for me to thoroughly consider them and to acquaint myself with the facts and reach definite conclusions.'"

The reply of Senator James Hamilton Lewis was: "I will oppose any legislation which will cripple the efficiency of the army and navy."

Hull Awaits Hoover's Views.

Congressman Morton D. Hull, one of the representatives whose response was held unsatisfactory, wrote: "I do not make any commitment in advance with respect to legislation. The question of national defense is one upon which recommendations will be made by the President and the secretary of war. After listening to the discussion of their recommendations I shall be guided by what seems to me to be the wise policy."

The reply of Congressman Adolph Sabath, also considered unsatisfactory, was: "I have been at all times for every proposition of aid and benefit to the American Legion."

The report expressed the belief that plans for national defense were not safe in the hands of Senator Glenn and the two congressmen.

All the other congressmen from Cook county expressed sympathy for the Legion proposals.

"The newspaper is an institution developed by modern civilization to present the news of the day, to foster commerce and industry, to inform and mold public opinion, and to furnish that check upon government which no constitution has ever been able to provide."

THE LINK TO THE SOUTHEAST.

The Baltimore and Ohio railroad several years ago formally abandoned its project of acquiring control of the Monon, but it appears that the effort has now been renewed.

The Monon is at present controlled jointly by the Louisville and Nashville and the Southern railroads and used by them as an entrance to Chicago and the northwest from below the Ohio river. Other railroads connecting Chicago and the southeast are in control of the east-west lines. Shippers in the Chicago region have joined those in Nashville, Chattanooga, Atlanta and other cities in protesting against the transfer of the Monon on the belief that if an east-west line gets it the growth of trade from north to south will be discouraged wherever possible and business will be diverted to the east-west route.

The southeast has coal, iron, cotton, and timber. Its resources have scarcely been tapped. It is probably destined to grow more rapidly than any other section of the country in the next generation both in wealth and population. For the prosperity of manufacturing and trading in our section of the country it is important that we have, leading to this rapidly growing market, a railroad managed by men whose sole objective is to develop trade along the Chicago-Atlanta route.

If the Monon goes to the Baltimore and Ohio the link will be snapped. The southeast will be encouraged, if not by rate advantages, then by superior service, to buy in New York and New England. The southeast will likewise be encouraged to ship its products northward rather than northwestward. Chicago and the north central states generally will be placed in an inferior position in both manufacturing and distribution.

There is no compelling reason for giving the Monon to the Baltimore and Ohio and there are manifold reasons for retaining it in its present relationship. The preservation of the Monon, free of eastern influence, will foster a healthy competition between the east and the north central states in the southern markets. The transfer of the Monon would tend to give the east a monopoly of southern trade. The east would benefit at the expense of the central states and the south. The issue is clear and it is to be hoped that the southerners and westerners in congress will have it impressed upon them by their constituents.

MAYOR WALKER'S LARGER INTERESTS.

It is reported in New York that President Machado of Cuba has invited Mayor Walker to Cuba next month to be supreme arbiter in a distressing government dispute. Confirmation is lacking, but the imagination Mr. Walker has already shown in increasing the legend of his own good works while the reputation of Tammany becomes more natural every day would give plausibility to any report that the mayor was being sought for altruistic work anywhere outside of his own city. When he went to California as a friend of humanity to plead for Tom Mooney it was recognized by all except some Californians as a brilliant offset to unpleasantness at home.

Mr. Walker's idea of diverting attention by conspicuous service elsewhere than in his job is sound. Many rulers have known that a good war was a cure for domestic troubles. Mr. Walker's policy is along that line, but he executes it with the intent of doing some one good and no one any harm. Europe is full of opportunities for an active friend of man. When the mayor has disposed of Cuba he may go abroad.

MR. BROWN TO MR. McFADDEN.

Postmaster General Brown has proceeded against Representative McFadden of Pennsylvania, who talked himself out of his shirt when he said the administration was playing the game of international banking. "Apparently you are under a misapprehension with respect to the relation of congressmen to postal administration," Mr. Brown wrote in apprising Mr. McFadden that the postoffice was breaking off friendly relations with him. Who in the world could be under any misapprehension as to such relations? When they are normal the village postmaster is the congressman's man. He is intended to be. He is a part of that great feudal organization called the American government which Senator Nye seeks to outlaw by making it illegal for a candidate to spend any real money in an attempt to defeat a member of congress. The congressman's man, the government employe who holds by political service tenure, will then keep his district against all comers.

This is one thing the postoffice is for, and if Mr. Brown would convey the idea that there is any misapprehension about it he must be regarded as quizzical and full of the Christmas spirit. "Legally," Mr. Brown continues to Mr. McFadden, "representatives in congress have no responsibility or voice in the selection of personnel in the postoffice or other executive departments, but sometimes their advice is accepted." "Sometimes" is neat humor.

Whenever the advice is not generally accepted something will happen to Mr. Brown which will make him think the roof has fallen in on him. In the case of Mr. McFadden his associates are willing to concede a point to Mr. Brown. They do not like their associate, Mr. McFadden. They are willing to throw him to the wolves, even if by so doing they seem to concede that a member who talks against the administration may expect to have his postmasters taken from him.

Consequently Mr. Brown is allowed to be vibrantly naïve and inform Mr. McFadden that the quality of his speeches on the floor reveals that the quality of his advice to the department on the appointment of public employes would be undependable; in fact, no advice the department would care to accept or be guided by. That condemnation of Mr. McFadden's advice would be stunning if it were not so funny.

KIPLING AT 66.

The news of the day reminds the English reading world that Rudyard Kipling is 66. Forty-two years have gone by since "Departmental Ditties," his first book, was published, the light verse of a young reporter giving little promise of the great tale teller and singer of empire. But only a year later appeared "Plain Tales from the Hills," and in the following two years "Soldiers Three," "The Story of the Gadsbys," "In Black and White," "Under the Deodars," "The Phantom 'Rickshaw," and "Wee Willie Winkie"—and readers in England and America knew that a master of the short story was at the gates of fame.

What the present generation of younger readers think of Kipling we do not know. Our guess would be that, in spite of the great changes in literary style and the pressure of new books, there is still a great public to whom the romantic appeal of Kipling's best work in prose is as strong as ever.

We suspect his romantic genius will preserve it long after the later triumphs of our realists are buried in the dust of forgotten shelves.

But for his generation Kipling was more than a teller of memorable tales. He was a great political force. He made the British empire a theme of glory and high emprise. He rebuked his fellow countrymen for an insularity which did not rise to the inspiration of mighty deeds and obscure heroisms in the far reaches of the empire. "What do they know of England, who only England know?" He idealized the best and strongest qualities of British character, qualities of unpretentious courage and devotion, of gentlemanly reserve, of justice and service to the ruled. The influence of such an evangel must have been very potent upon a generation.

We wish we might have such an influence for our nationality. It is, we think, more needed, for the diversity of our people, the numbers who have not yet had time to send the roots of thought and feeling deep into the traditions, the ideals, the essential nature of Americanism are still considerable. They are on the way, but there are many influences, more potent since the war than before, that confuse and retard the evolution of a nationality such as the centuries have created in the old world.

We would be the better, especially in these days, for the celebration of the best in the American character and the American dream. We are afflicted nowadays by something very like a neurosis of self-doubt. Too many of our writers are flagellants. The United States could never have been born, nor survived, under their ministrations. Self-questioning is wholesome and civilized. We are not likely to cease from it and did not even in more robust days. But a people who overdo it will never do their work in the world.

Kipling has lived into a generation of doubt and disaster. The shadow of the Boer war fell upon him. "The Recessional" was prophetic. Perhaps his voice would be more welcome at this time than in the brave days when he was 21. But he is 66, and it may be that he would not be heard even if he could recapture the inspiration of his prime. It would be rather a task to restore the vision of the empire, that glittering and mighty fabric, in part the substance of truth, in part the shining matter of his dream.

Once America, too, had her voices of patriotic inspiration and sons proud of her glory, confident of her manifest destiny. But today they are silent. In thought and feeling and in action those who assume to speak for us are dubious and full of apology. They do not express the virility, the self-respect, the faith of America in herself and her destiny. They are not the voice of America. That voice is the sorest need of our troubled time.

Editorial of the Day

PUTTING LABRADOR ON THE BLOCK.

[Des Moines Register.]

No one in this country was likely to take very seriously the offer of Newfoundland to sell Labrador to the Canadian government. Indeed, at the price of 100 million dollars, Canada herself could not have been expected to give the proposal more than a passing glance.

But that little item of news will inform a lot of people in this country who had forgotten it that we have on our north two British dominions, rather than only one, and that with its Labrador dependency the Dominion of Newfoundland is about three times the size of Iowa.

Of course if the fisheries and the undeveloped mineral resources of Labrador were worth 100 million dollars to Newfoundland today, she would not be selling at that price. The hint seems to be that the island dominion doesn't care a great deal about her northern ward, and—probably more importantly—that she could handily use the sum asked right now, for there is no reason to doubt that Newfoundland finds herself in much the same financial straits as the rest of the world.

But, for the same reason, Canada is not likely to be hazarding 100 million dollars on a relatively barren land all of which is farther north than her Hudson bay outpost of Moose Factory and which is not essentially different from all the rest of her near arctic millions of square miles.

Nevertheless, there is another side to the story, and it has to do with the likelihood that before many more generations the near arctic (if not the polar regions themselves) are going to prove valuable to mankind in a degree of which we even yet have no full conception. It has already been demonstrated that Labrador, for instance, and our own Alaska are fertile with an untold wealth in minerals that require chiefly extension of transportation facilities and a more complete victory over the snow and bitter cold.

As for Newfoundland, there is no more strategic spot geographically in the whole world to profit by eventual development of trans-Atlantic air travel, which may bring with it some of the same growth and good fortune that have been the lot of such ports as Boston and New York and Montreal.

These things are admittedly years ahead, but they are worth emphasizing at a time when the temptation everywhere is to sell out to counteract the pressure of temporary reverses.

FOUR OF THE SENSES.

When Prof. Rudolf Matas rounded out a half century in the practice of surgery the same year he celebrated his 70th birthday, a group of his old friends and students issued a volume of essays dedicated to Dr. Matas as evidence of their appreciation.

All of these essays were on surgical subjects, except one, Dr. W. J. Mayo wrote on the five principal senses and some of their relations to the progress of mankind. The following statements are extracted from Dr. Mayo's essay:

The sense of taste is a chemical one and, in man, is the least important of the special senses and the most imperfect. Most of the qualities known as flavors, prized by the epicure, are distinguished by the sense of smell rather than the sense of taste. It can detect only four types of food—sweet, sour, salty, and bitter. Taste alone cannot distinguish an onion from an apple.

The sense of smell is also a chemical one. It detects odors which are entirely beyond discovery by any known scientific apparatus. The sense of smell depends on certain cells which end in a hair. These cells are arranged in small bundles about the base of which are pigmented cells. These delicate hairs may be compared to the antennae of a radio. In man the organ of smell is situated deep and occupies a total area of about one square inch.

Sheep men will not raise albino lambs, but send them to the butcher because they have no sense of smell and, sooner or later, would die from eating poisonous material.

The sense of smell, unlike the senses of sight and hearing, does not diminish with age, but often becomes more acute. It is keener in women than in men. With the wind in the right direction the distance at which a deer is liable to detect danger by the characteristic odor of an enemy is almost incredible.

The sense of hearing in man is inaccurate. Whereas the senses of sight and smell will telephone, so to speak, directly to the brain, a sound, to reach consciousness, must be relayed through a number of extra stations, with all the possibility of confusion and inaccuracy that the process necessarily entails. One is impressed with the radio and its antennae as a possible explanation of the hair endings of the organ of hearing, as well as the sense of smell, and the principles which underlie their function.

The mechanism of the human eye is, in some respects, inferior to that of the eye of some of the lower animals. With the telescope vision of the eagle man could read fine print at 500 feet.

The higher mammals, including man, with binocular vision, see in three diameters—length, breadth and depth. One hardly need call attention to the fact that it is not the mechanism of the eye of man which is triumphant, but its relation to the intelligence of man. Vision has been the predominant factor in the evolution of the medical sciences.

WHITE SPOTS ON FACE.

G. M. writes: What causes white spots on the face a little smaller than a dime? I can't even cover them with rouge?

REPLY.

I presume you have reference to vitiligo. Walnut juice can be used to stain the spots so that they do not show. One physician tried dilute hydrochloric acid on himself with success.

UNPAID BALANCE.

Chicago, Dec. 22.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—Residing in Wisconsin in the previous two years, I bought a second hand car from a dealer for $775. Some months ago I lost my position. My contract stipulated not to take the car out of Wisconsin. While driving to Chicago in September an accident partially wrecked the car. I could not afford to pay all the costs of repairs. I paid $350 and told the company to take the car as I was unable to make any more payments. The balance due is $425. The company has $250 due them and the dealer the rest, wherefor I signed a note in the possession of the dealer. The company answers that the car will be sold at auction and I will be sued for the balance, plus expenses, in case of any deficiency. 1. Can I be held liable? 2. Supposing I pay the company $250 and the contract is therewith executed as between the company and myself, what can the dealer do? I now reside in Chicago.

K. S.

1. It seems probable that the contract is so worded as to authorise them to hold you for a deficiency.

2. We do not understand the exact facts as to the distinction between the two liabilities. In general any person whom you have promised to pay is entitled to collect.

TRIBUNE LAW DEPARTMENT.

NO GENERAL EXEMPTION.

Chicago, Dec. 23.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—Is a federal clerk exempt from jury service? W. F. B.

We do not understand what you mean by a federal clerk. There is no general exemption of government employes, if that is what you mean to ask.

TRIBUNE LAW DEPARTMENT.

BOTH ARE CITIZENS.

Galesburg, Ill., Dec. 28.—[Friend of the People.]—1. Please advise whether a child of a U. S. citizen, born in a foreign country and remaining there until he reached the legal voting age would be required to take out naturalization papers in the United States, and whether he could become President. 2. Please advise whether a girl born in the United States of Greek parents who claimed exemption during the war due to being alien is a citizen with the right to vote. J. C.

1. A child born out of the United States of America parents is a citizen of the United States under section 1,993 of the United States revised statutes and is a natural born citizen. With reference to whether such person could be President, the constitution provides that the President of the United States must be a natural born citizen.

2. A child born in the United States of foreign parents is a citizen under the 14th amendment to the constitution of the United States, which provides that all persons born or naturalized in the United States and subject to the jurisdiction thereof are citizens.

A LINE O' TYPE OR TWO

How to the Line, let the quips fall where they may.

THIS, FRIENDS AND FELLOW CITIZENS, is the last day of 1931. And we're glad it's the last day! Do you remember away back one year ago when we gave this bird 1931 a noisy and a warm and loving welcome? Do you recall how we fairly shed tears of joy at his coming? We hated 1930 with a deep, deadly, malignant hatred, and we could not make a big enough row over his successor. And then you know what happened. Let us not go into the sordid, horrible details. But 1930 was a sweet scented blushing rose to the horrible piece of cheese who called himself 1931. Bad as 1930 was, he wasn't a marker compared to this fellow that took his job. So maybe it would be just as well not to make too much whoopee or exult too much over 1932. Maybe he'll be good and behave himself and maybe he'll be just as horrible a washout as 1931. We will hope for the best, but, personally, after what 1931 did we're never going to believe in a year again. A year gets no kind words or eulogies or pansies from us until it's through and we can see what it's done. Of course, there's always the hope that the coming year will be better than the last. We go around saying that the new year is bound to be better than the old one because it couldn't be worse. We said that a year ago. Yes, brother, we said those identical words. We said that 1931 just had to be a good year; no year could be so doggoned lowdown and contemptible as 1930, it's predecessor. That's what we said, brothers, that's what we said. Oh, joy; oh, happiness, shrieked we; here comes gay, bright, happy little 1931. Oh, he's bringing good luck and good times and good cheer to everybody. Oh, welcome, you cunning little darling, you; rah, rah, rah for 1931. That's what we said. That's the kind of fuss we made over 1931. And look at the damn thing now! And here comes 1932. Do we kiss him or kill him? Let's wait and see.

REVELATION.

The same vaulted room. . . . Outside, the wan stars
Are fading again. The curtain's soft lace
Stirs gently again to the garden's sweet breath,
Oh, midnight-dark eyes—Oh, my heart's wayward pace!

. . . . . .

They said you were false—and the angry blood rose
And blistered my lips. Oh, it seared like a flame.
I can hear the sad waltz, and the scent of a rose
Floats back to my senses again, as it came
When they said you were false.
And they whispered a name.

It was one I had trusted and loved since my youth,
And Great God!—I had wagered my life on your truth.
Ah, the horror and shame!
And I fell on my knees and I cursed you—
You came.

Then I begged you to tell me; to rise in your pride
And say it was false; it was false—and they lied.

. . . . . .

But your dusky head drooped, and a tear quivered through
Your midnight-dark lash—
And I knew it was true.

MABEL GERON.

—:—

NEW YEAR'S EVE! Ah, could we but sit tonight at midnight as we did long years ago; the wind screaming a requiem to the old year outside and the white snow everywhere, with the yellow lights from the windows dancing across it. Andy Moynihan in immaculate white jacket on the other side of the bar lading out great, foaming, steaming mugs of Tom and Jerry and the Hungry Seven at the far end of the bar singing "Stille Nacht, Heilige Nacht." Ah, memories, memories!

—:—

AND IN THE DEAR OLD DAYS we used to make calls on New Year's afternoon. The world was all white with snow in those far away years and the sleigh bells jingled a glad and merry tune all up and down the street as the bright painted cutters swept along behind proud stepping horses. The boys would come in the big front hall unwinding their scarfs from around their necks, pulling off their caps and mittens and big overcoats, and stamping the snow off their feet. "Happy New Year, Miss Fannie!" "Happy New Year, Miss Anna!" (they weren't so darned familiar in those days). "Happy New Year, everybody!" Then there was hot tea and coffee and sandwiches and three or four different kinds of cake and a huge bowl of eggnog, and very often mulled ale and brandy slings. And everybody sang "Jingle Bells" and "Sweet Genevieve," and then the visitors made a noisy exit as another delegation arrived, and so it went all the long, happy afternoon. And it was the immortal G. Washington who said, "Whatever else changes (or words to that effect), don't let the beautiful custom of New Year's calls die out." But they're gone—no more New Year's calls. But happy is he who can remember them.

—:—

IT SEEMS that after all the federal dry sleuths will attend whoopee parties at the night clubs on New Year's eve disguised in evening dress suits and silk hats. But they can't fool us, not so long as they insist on wearing tan shoes with their dress clothes. "Oh, no, Watson, it is not wonderful at all. Merely observation, my dear fellow, merely observation."

—:—

MAKE your New Year's resolutions today! You won't keep 'em, anyhow, and it's good fun busting 'em. And while it sounds very mid-Victorian, the new year will be the leap year kind. Not that it makes much difference, because when a girl wants to marry a poor, unsuspecting man she goes right after him and usually captures him whether it's leap year or not. And it's presidential year. Which may help, and may not. Anyhow, we'll all get a new year, and it's the first new thing lots of people have had for some time. Think of that!

—:—

"THE YEAR is dying in the night; ring out, wild bells, and let him die." And another thing, wild bells, if he doesn't act as though he was going to die right quick jump down from the belfry and run over and soak him with a club; don't take any chances.

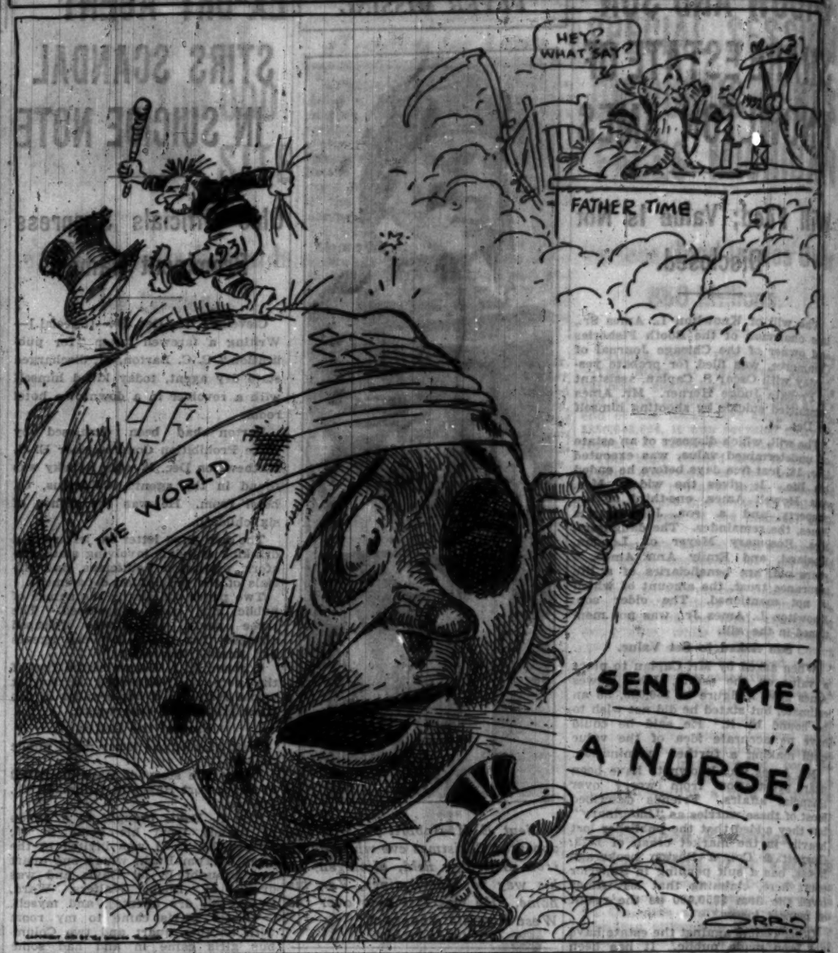
A UNIVERSAL REQUEST



FROM THE TRIBUNE'S COLUMNS

This nation has had other serious financial depressions, as the following excerpts from The Tribune files reveal. Each of these periods of hard times has been followed by periods of great prosperity.

1875.

Editorial.—It is doubtful if the general public have even yet a clear understanding of who it is that are killed and who are only scared in this panic. We think it can be shown that though business in this part of the country has been thrown into great confusion, the northwest really has an opportunity now to take an independent financial position in the present crisis. The business and speculation of the United States have heretofore been done on debts in the shape of checks, bills, notes, bonds, etc. As these obligations matured they have been "paid" with new ones. Credit is merely the ability to increase and expand debts, but now there has been a collapse of credit extending temporarily all over the United States. Old debts can no longer be paid with new ones and it is necessary to begin on a new basis. Our banks and shippers should cut loose from the New York banks. The reaction from this great coil pse will begin with the country banks in the northwest.

1894.

Massillon, O., March 4.—J. S. Coxey announced that his "Commonweal" arm of the unemployed will begin its march from Massillon for Washington on March 25. He announced the itinerary and the camping places of the army. The plan is to meet on the capitol steps in Washington on May 1. The army's commissary will gather contributions from the stores and people in the towns through which they pass. In a proclamation, Carl Browne, Coxey's chief aid, says that Coxey believes that liberty loving people "will respond in such numbers to this call of duty that no Hessian Pinkerton thugs, much less state militia or United States troops, can be hired for gold to fire upon such a myriad of human beings unarmed and defenseless, assembling under the aegis of the constitution upon the steps of the nation's capitol to assert their prerogatives."

1907.

Omaha, Neb., Oct. 29.—Five thousand men employed in construction gangs along the line of the Union Pacific were laid off.

16 YEARS AGO TODAY

DECEMBER 31, 1915.

LONDON.—The reply of the Austrian government to the second American note on the sinking of the steamship Ancona, with the loss of American lives, is forwarded to Reuter's Telegram company from Vienna. The note says the Austrian government agrees that the sacred laws of humanity should be taken into account and concurs in the principles that enemy private vessels, not offering resistance, "shall not be destroyed before the persons aboard are secured." The reply state that the commander of the Austrian submarine has been punished for not sufficiently taking account of the panic aboard the Ancona, which made disembarkation more difficult, but it includes the report to the admiralty denying the submarine fired on the Ancona after it stopped. In concluding the note says: "Hoping the Ancona incident can now be regarded as cleared up, the Austro-Hungarian government makes provision to submit for discussion these difficult international questions connected with submarine warfare."

30 YEARS AGO TODAY

DECEMBER 31, 1901.

HELENA, Mont.—Governors and other officials of five northwestern states met here to formulate action to prevent the merging of the Northern Pacific, Great Northern, and Burlington railroads in the Northern Securities company. Before the conference opened the news of the temporary injunction granted at Minneapolis, restraining the Northern Pacific company from retiring its preferred stock, was received. The news came as a surprise and was regarded as the first victory for the forces opposing the combine.

CONSERVATION IN ILLINOIS.

Chicago, Dec. 21.—In an article by Bob Becker on the sports page of Dec. 16 the undersigned is referred to as chairman of the new advisory committee in the Illinois department of conservation. The same article also states that Mr. Hassel is one of Chicago's most ardent duck hunters and owns an extensive shooting preserve on the Sangamon river.

Again, an editorial of Dec. 13 says "one member is described as one of Chicago's most ardent duck hunters, etc." This editorial is written entirely from information taken from a story by Becker.

I do not necessarily criticize the editorial, notwithstanding that it put the committee chairman in a very unfavorable light which is not deserved. Where Mr. Becker got his information that the chairman was an ardent or intent duck killer is beyond my imagination. It is not my good fortune to know Mr. Becker personally. I have read many articles written by him on song and game birds and admire the spirit of his articles on fish and game propagation and conservation.

My personal views and actions have always been very considerate of wild life. On most of my vacations I have gone without a rod or gun. I greatly enjoy the study of nature, especially fish and game.

Last summer, as a member of Gov. Emmerson's committee to change the open season on migratory birds from October to November, myself and the rest of the committee did not make this trip entirely in the interest of sportsmen [or duck killers]. The trip was also made in the interest of unemployment and the unfavorable condition of the farmers of the state of Illinois. These last interests were uppermost in Gov. Emmerson's mind and were the principal points we discussed with Secretary Hyde and President Hoover.

In conclusion, please realize that this editorial will make a very wrong and bad impression on the people of our state, sportsmen and otherwise. The real ideas and work that Gov. Emmerson had in mind when he appointed the committee were to give every citizen of our state an equal opportunity to enjoy the great outdoors with rod and gun as true sportsmen and not wanton killers and destroyers of wild life. You can be sure that as long as the chairman of this committee remains in office the recommendations made will need no apology from Gov. Emmerson, Director Bradford, or the committee.

O. H. HASSEL.

THE ROTTEN POTATO.

Chicago, Dec. 29.—An editorial in yesterday's TRIBUNE gave due credit to Senator Borah for his plan to save money for the taxpayers. Some two or three weeks ago the writer addressed an article to the editor of THE TRIBUNE making practically the same proposition as is contained in the senator's offering. Thereby THE TRIBUNE, together with myself, sidestepped a real scoop. Of course, I can't be sure, but if you care to investigate I think you will find the rotten potato in the editor's chair of "The Voice of the People." He often runs silly ones, passing up the worthwhile.

W. B. FREEMAN.

FROM DEAN MATHEWS.

Chicago, Dec. 25.—I want to express my appreciation of the front page of THE TRIBUNE on Christmas day. It was not only unique, but informing.

SHAILER MATHEWS.

THE CAUSE OF A LIQUIDATION.

Evanston, Ill., Dec. 12.—Your comment editorially on the retirement of Franklin MacVeagh from business stressed the point that the were taxed out of business. I wonder if this was the fundamental reason? I am sure their reason for going out was no different from the one that caused John V. Farwell & Co. to do the same thing and J. V. Farwell & Co. quit in 1925 before the tax muddle.

Couldn't it be possible that the Frankenstein, big business, for the benefit of a few sponsors of this system of mergers, consolidations, chain stores, and prohibition, which they so glibly tell us is the product of modern progress, had something to do with it?

There is no doubt about that, and as long as this nefarious system of chain stores and concentrated buying is permitted by the government, in spite of the Sherman law, all these good old concerns will have to go.

But fortunately big business has failed and the depression proves it; nature, they say, abhors a vacuum, evidently nature's laws of sound economics abhor monopolies, thereby causing the depression, and this depression, by the way, won't be over until big business has been dissolved. As to the tendency along that line, just watch the stock market and see the blue chips go. A. C. ENGM.

REVENUE RELIEF.

Chicago, Dec. 14.—To relieve the muddled tax situation I suggest:

1. Reduce real estate taxes about 10 per cent by reducing the value of real estate a corresponding amount.

2. Have the payment of all real estate taxes accruing up to Dec. 31, 1931, spread over a period of twenty years in 240 equal monthly installments.

3. Have all real estate taxes payable monthly, commencing Feb. 1, 1932, at the same time as water bills, and in default of the payment of taxes have the water supply on the premises in question shut off. For prompt payment of taxes allow a discount figured at the same rate as the discount now allowed on water bills. Vacant property owners are also to pay their taxes monthly.

4. Provide for a luxury tax.

H. W. BUSHOVT.

A MENACE TO THE MERCHANT MARINE.

Chicago, Dec. 22.—Your editorial of Dec. 20 is very much to the point, but should go farther. With a practicable seaway from the head of the lakes and from Chicago to New York harbor, why expend $500,000,000 more or less, and probably more, to develop a new waterway which will permit foreign vessels almost exclusively to serve this country? American ships on a strictly cost basis cannot compete with Canadian boats, and much less can they do so with Japanese and Norwegian and Swedish vessels. Such entry of foreign vessels into the great lakes will drive out our own.

"A burglar, m'lady!"

BRITAIN HURLS GAGE OF BATTLE AT GANDHI'S FEET

Forbids Him to Renew His 'Seditious' Campaign.

CALCUTTA, India, Dec. 30.—(AP)—Viceroy Lord Willingdon in unmistakable terms today laid the gage of battle at Mahatma Gandhi's feet, but adorned it with an olive branch.

In an address before the European association he said British authorities would invoke every means within their power to resist a possible renewal of the civil disobedience campaign by the Indian Nationalist congress, and expressed the hope that Gandhi would call off his activities, "even at this eleventh hour."

"I want to make it perfectly clear," he said, "that we are determined to go ahead as rapidly as possible with the work of constitutional reform, and that noncooperation will not be permitted."

Charges Seditious Activities.

"Every measure will be taken to maintain order and to prevent any party from paralyzing the administration, whether its activities take the form of no rent campaigns or a boycott of British goods as a political measure, or defiance of the laws of this country."

Outlining the efforts of the government to develop constitutional reforms in India and pledging their continuance, he continued:

"At the same time we find that determined efforts are being made by some leaders of the Nationalist congress party, the only active political organization in the country, to destroy, by speech and action of the most seditious character, any possibility of creating a peaceful atmosphere, and to renew the campaign of noncooperation and civil disobedience, the disastrous results of which are so fresh in our minds."

Hope for Peace with Gandhi.

Appealing to the whole of India to put aside distrust and suspicion, he said:

"I venture to hope that even at this eleventh hour Mr. Gandhi will call a halt to his activities and will agree to cooperate with us with his powerful influence."

The congress' working committee on Sunday was reported to have had a secret session as the result of the presence of the former mayor of Calcutta, Subhas Chandra Bose, a militant Nationalist. He was understood to have told the committee that, with or without cooperation or without, he intended to launch a campaign in Bengal which would boycott British goods, banks, insurance companies, and other organizations.

The committee debated means of carrying on the struggle against British rule and was said to have shown considerable opposition to the views of Bose. The members adjourned until tomorrow in the expectation of a reply from Lord Willingdon to a request for an interview by Bose.

Peshawar Is Quiet.

In Peshawar and other districts of the North-West Frontier province, where turmoil has raged for the past year and many have been killed as a consequence of the "red shirt" movement, the situation was reported to be greatly improved. In fact, it was said, the tribal menace to the North-West Frontier is definitely ended.

In Madras the all-India women's congress went on record against child marriage, enforced widowhood, the curse of "untouchability," and the sacrifice of human beings in religious rites.

INDIA SHOWERS RICHES ON TWO CINDERELLA GIRLS

Gifts and Banquets Await Brides.

BOMBAY, Dec. 30.—(AP)—Two newly married princesses, equipped with costly trousseaux acquired in Paris, were bound tonight for Hyderabad, where they will go immediately into "purdah," which means that they must wear only the somber hued costumes required by orthodox Mohammedan custom.

The princesses are Dureshawar and Nelufar, the daughter and niece of the former caliph of Istanbul. They are the brides of Crown Prince Azamjah and Prince Moazvan, sons of the nizam of Hyderabad, who probably is the richest man in the world.

Granted Special Dispensation.

The bridal couples left Bombay by imperial train. Arriving tomorrow, they will be welcomed with a series of sumptuous festivals, for this is their official homecoming. They were married at a double ceremony a few weeks ago at Nice, France.

By special dispensation of the former caliph and the nizam the princesses will be allowed to go without veils when they are borne in state procession from the railway station. They will pass along streets lined with troops and gay with flags and they will be unveiled, that the people may see what beauties their princes have won.

Both the princesses were raised in France, where they lived more or less according to western standards. Thus, they were permitted to go about without the veil. But in Hyderabad, whose nizam is considered one of the most devout of all Mohammedans, they will be required to live according to the Islamic way.

Plan Great Banquets.

Distinguished British officials and Indian princes will attend a great banquet in their honor Jan. 4. On Jan. 8 there will be another feast, with only ruling maharajahs and highest dignitaries of the state as guests.

Many gifts will be showered on the young people. The nizam, heir to the untold wealth of the Mogul emperors, has a vast store of ancient jewels on which he can draw. But the caliph, who has been living on the charity of the faithful since his expulsion from Turkey, has little more than his blessing to impart. The nizam has already given dowries of $300,000.

SHEPPARD SECOND DRY DEMOCRAT TO DODGE BEER QUIZ

Washington, D. C., Dec. 30.—[Special.]—A second dry Democrat, Senator Morris Sheppard of Texas, co-author of the eighteenth amendment, sidestepped the coming senate inquiry into prohibition modification today by declining to sit on the subcommittee named to consider the Bingham beer bill and other anti-prohibition measures. His withdrawal followed that of dry Senator Henry F. Ashurst [Dem., Ariz.] yesterday.

SENATOR MORRIS SHEPPARD.

Senator Sheppard's action was taken shortly after Chairman Jesse H. Metcalf [Rep., R. I.] of the subcommittee on the beer bill announced that hearings would commence on Jan. 8.

Senator Sheppard gave lack of time as the reason for his withdrawal, but said that he fully agreed with the statement yesterday of Senator Ashurst, that attempts to modify the dry laws are a waste of effort and would get nowhere.

Senator Hiram Bingham [Rep., Conn.], author of the beer bill and other wet measures, announced that he would introduce a new beer bill next Monday, providing for beer of 3.2 per cent alcoholic content by weight and differing from previous measures in that it stipulates that the beer must be made entirely from the products of American farms.

HOLD UP 2 MILK WAGON DRIVERS.

Three men with pistols held up two drivers for the Borden Dairy company in quick succession yesterday, obtaining $25 from Howard Leisberg in the rear of 387 Hirsch street and $38 from Sam Budd in front of 1541 South Kedzie avenue.

RADICAL WAVE REAPS WESTERN DEMOCRATS, TOO

Dill, Wheeler et Al. Boost Roosevelt.

Washington, D. C., Dec. 30.—[Special.]—Western Democrats in congress today seized upon the third party talk of the radical Republican group to press for the nomination of Gov. Roosevelt as the Democratic party's candidate for President.

SEN. C. C. DILL.
[Acme Photo.]

Senator Clarence C. Dill [Dem., Wash.] declared the nomination of Gov. Roosevelt was the Democratic party's best answer to the third party threat.

"No other Democrat appeals to the disappointed millions of independent voters in the United States as does Gov. Roosevelt," he declared.

"Roosevelt's policies," said the senator, "stand out in such striking contrast to the record of the Hoover administration that the people will vote for him by great majorities in every part of the country."

"Democrats' Opportunity."

"Those Democrats," he said, "who want their party to seize the opportunity which fate itself seems to have provided should quit speculating on whether or not those who have led them to defeats in past campaigns can stop Roosevelt, and begin boosting for him as the man under whose leadership victory is certain, regardless of whom the Republicans nominate or what may be done about a third party."

Representative Henry T. Rainey [Dem., Ill.], majority floor leader of the house, predicted that the third party movement would amount to nothing. Roosevelt, he said, was the Democratic party's logical candidate and one liberal enough in his views on prohibition to satisfy any reasonable wet demand.

Senator Burton K. Wheeler [Dem., Mont.] asserted that unless Roosevelt or "some liberal" were nominated by the Democrats a third party was inevitable.

Norris' Opinion of Hilles.

Senator George W. Norris of Nebraska, one of the radical leaders, took issue with attacks on the insurgents attributed to Charles D. Hilles, Republican committeeman for New York. "If Hilles succeeds in driving out all the Republicans dissatisfied with Hoover," said the senator, "he won't have enough left to furnish pallbearers to carry out the corpse."

COUZENS FOR CUTTING SENATORS' SALARIES AT OUTSET OF SLICING

Washington, D. C., Dec. 30.—[Special.]—If the salaries of federal employes are to be cut, the cutting should begin at the top, said Senator James Couzens [Rep., Mich.] today.

"I suggest," he said, "that we begin by cutting the pay of senators, representatives, and cabinet members 25 per cent. This would not be such a great hardship because senators and representatives have from six to nine months of free time annually."

While Senator Couzens' suggestion was being made, Senator William E. Borah, insurgent Republican of Idaho, who started the talk of federal pay cuts, was completing his own pay reduction program. According to this latest plan, Senator Borah advocates a 5 per cent cut for federal employes with salaries between $5,000 and $5,000, a 10 per cent cut for salaries between $5,000 and $10,000, and 20 per cent for salaries from $10,000 up.

COURT FAVORS ANNULMENT OF 47 DON'TS BOND

Camden, N. J., Dec. 30.—[Special.]—An annulment for Mrs. Rebecca Ross, Teaneck school teacher who gave her husband 47 marital commandments to live up to, was recommended today by Special Master in Chancery William J. Kraft after two days of testimony.

Mrs. Ross, daughter of a Gloucester minister, sued Albert K. Ross, accountant, on the ground that their marriage was not a real marriage.

The courtroom was packed with women and girls on both days while Ross revealed the details of his kissless honeymoon and his wife denied his accusation of coldness.

Kraft's recommendation will go to Chancellor Edwin R. Walker for approval.

WOOD ACCUSES DEMOCRATS OF VIOLATING LAW

Cites Alleged Breach of Corrupt Practices Act.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Dec. 30.—[Special.]—Charges that the Democratic national committee violated the federal corrupt practices act during the 1928 presidential campaign were made today by Representative Will R. Wood [Rep., Ind.].

WILL R. WOOD.

Representative Wood's charges were based on the alleged failure of the treasurer of the committee to report the names of persons to whom the committee paid a total of $348,000. The sum was reported, Mr. Wood claimed, as having gone to meet the pay roll of the New York office of the Democratic national committee.

Attacks Nye Report.

Mr. Wood also assailed the recent report of the Nye committee on campaign expenditures, which recommended additional laws covering expenditures in political contests.

The Indiana representative asserted that strict enforcement of the present corrupt practices act would serve the "cause of honest elections."

"Naturally," Mr. Wood said, "a committee which has expended $150,000—an unusually large portion of which went to enrich Pullman and dining cars, high class hotels and cafes—felt it had to recommend something in order to make a pretense of giving the public taxpayer a run for his money. But why more laws? Why not simply rigid enforcement of the existing corrupt practices act relating to campaign expenditures?"

Cites "$10 Clause."

Mr. Wood cited a clause from the act which provides that the treasurer of a political committee file with the clerk of the house a statement containing the name and address of each person to whom expenditures of $10 or more has been made, with the amount, date and purpose of such expenditure.

Mr. Wood held that in reporting as a lump sum the expenditure of $348,000, as going to employes of the New York office of the committee in the form of pay, the Democratic national committee had not fulfilled the requirements of this clause of the act.

Federal Funds for Relief Demanded by Labor Chiefs

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Dec. 30.—[Special.]—Labor's conservative leadership as typified by the American Federation of Labor and its communistically inclined left wing, speaking through the leader of the recent hunger march, both demanded federal funds for unemployment relief today before a senate subcommittee.

E. F. McGRADY.

Appearing before the subcommittee headed by Senator Robert M. La Follette Jr., insurgent Republican of Wisconsin, Edward F. McGrady, legislative representative of the American Federation of Labor, estimated that 7,500,000 persons will be jobless next year.

An emergency exists, he declared, which can be met only with the help of the federal government.

The subcommittee has before it the La Follette and Costigan bills making federal relief appropriations of 250,000,000 dollars and 375 million dollars, respectively.

The federation estimated, said Mr. McGrady, that by the first of 1932 there will be at least 7,500,000 unemployed. There were not less than 1,000,000 out the first of December and 6,000,000 more were only getting from one to three days work during the week, he explained.

Standard Statistics estimates that in 1930 wage earners' incomes were below 1929 by $3,400,000,000. Mr. McGrady testified. In 1931 wage earners incomes were below 1929 by $11,000,000,000, according to the American Federation of Labor estimate.

"It is the belief of the American Federation of Labor that the national lawmakers should not shirk this responsibility. Indeed, it is a great opportunity for the federal government to renew the faith of the people in their government, a faith that has been badly shattered in the last three years."

Demands To Be Heard and In.

Herbert Benjamin, who was barred from the capitol when the hunger marchers came to Washington three weeks ago, in a lengthy statement filed with subcommittee rhetoric demanded government unemployment insurance for all workers. Benjamin interrupted the proceedings with demands to be heard and was finally allowed to testify when the witnesses regularly called had concluded.

Punctuating his testimony with communistic outbursts against "the Hoover-Wall street administration," Benjamin urged the federal government to set up an unemployment insurance system which would grant full pay for the full term of unemployment to all persons without jobs through no fault of their own. The money, he said, was to come from that now used for military purposes and by taxing the rich. The workers would pay nothing, he explained, but would administer the fund.

He attacked the American Federation of Labor, the American Legion, and the "cold blooded fraud" of the President's relief program.

FERLANE FREED OF CHARGE OF KILLING WIFE

Frank McErlane, gangster and publicity seeker, with a police record going back to 1911, was freed on a charge of murdering his wife, Elfrieda, in the Felony court yesterday by Judge Abner M. Stoertzel. Assistant State's Attorney Barry Jacobsen asked that a bill of prosecution into the court records when Judge Ebersteiner refused to grant a continuance. The prosecutor indicated that his evidence against McErlane was insufficient.

FRANK McERLANE.

The body of McErlane's wife was found in the rear seat of her husband's car in front of 8129 Phillips avenue on Oct. 8. Two dogs, also shot to death, lay beside her. McErlane's hat was in the car. His fingerprints were taken off the car door by police.

Since McErlane's drunken sprees were well known to the police, he was sought for the murder. McErlane, disclaiming any knowledge of the murder, surrendered later in Madison, Wis.

MILLION MORONS ROAM SCOTLAND, SCOTS ARE TOLD

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Dec. 30.—A million morons roam the Scottish highlands in permanent condition of slow witted ness, Dr. John Harvey told a section of Scottish teachers at Perth today.

"They are permanently dull or feebleminded," he said. "It would be a long and slow process to effect any improvement."

The total population of Scotland on census day this year was 4,842,554.

Slays His Girl Wife and Flees Into Kentucky Hills

Mount Sterling, Ky., Dec. 30.—[Special.]—Lane Plummer, six foot farmer, was sought today after he shot and killed his sixteen year old bride of a year, at her home near Forge Station. Plummer fled into the hills. Mrs. Plummer was known as the prettiest girl in Bath county.

STEAMSHIP MEN MEET CHANGES ASKED BY HOOVER

New York, Dec. 30.—[Special.]—The American Steamship Owners' association, the members of which include the leading ship lines of the country, replied today to President Hoover's recommendation for changes in the government's methods of dealing with shipping with the offer to save the government from $2,500,000 to $4,800,000 annually in the operation of privately owned ships in place of the transport services of the war and navy departments.

Nine ships in the army transport service and six transport and freight ships of the navy department are costing the government from $10,000,000 to $12,000,000 annually, according to H. B. Walker, president of the association. Private lines are prepared to serve the government more efficiently than these ships at a cost of 25 to 40 per cent below the government's outlay, Mr. Walker said.

R. V. OULAHAN, DEAN OF CAPITAL NEWS MEN, DIES

Prominent Correspondent for Twenty Years.

Washington, D. C., Dec. 30.—[Special.]—Richard Victor Oulahan, 64, chief Washington correspondent of the New York Times for nearly twenty years, "dean" of the Washington newspaper correspondents, died at his home today. He was stricken with pneumonia a week ago.

Funeral services will be held at 10:30 Saturday morning, and burial will be in Rock Creek cemetery here. Mrs. Oulahan, two sons, and a daughter survive.

Mr. Oulahan's notable reportorial record was longer than that of perhaps any other American correspondent. He was born in Washington and was educated in public schools here. He began his newspaper work when 19 on the Washington Critic.

Served in Europe Also.

After other preliminary newspaper work in Roanoke, Oulahan was with the United Press from 1889 to 1897, and from 1897 to 1912 was Washington correspondent and chief European correspondent of the New York Sun.

He became head of the New York Times bureau here in 1912, a position he held until his death. His notable newspaper assignments included the Russian-Japanese peace conference at Portsmouth, N. H., in 1905, as head of the Sun staff, and the world war peace conference at Paris in 1918 and 1919, representing the Times.

He was a past president of the Gridiron club and a former chairman of the standing committee in charge of the press galleries of congress.

Influential with Scribes.

On any question of procedure or ethics within the newspaper corps, the word of Dick Oulahan carried more weight than that of any other individual.

It was through a dispatch by Oulahan that Woodrow Wilson gave notice he would send for the steamship George Washington and return to the United States from Paris unless there was modification of the peace terms then under consideration. It was through a dispatch by Oulahan that Philander Chase Knox was persuaded to accept the position of secretary of state in the Taft cabinet.

He was arrested on information from a houseman in the upper north side residence district where the man asked for food. The McLean girl was last seen with a "dark complexioned man" in the tenement district where she lived.

He denies responsibility for the affair, but is held incommunicado. He gave his name as John Carter, twenty, no address.

Detectives said they had established that he came to Indianapolis from Cincinnati the day the girl's body was found.

BLIND MAN'S 'PUNCH MARK' WILL IS VALID

Los Angeles, Cal., Dec. 30.—(AP)—A will consisting of a series of holes punched in soft paper disposing of a $15,000 estate of a man blind most of his life was admitted to probate by Superior Judge C. S. Crail today.

Considered one of the strangest instruments ever presented in a Los Angeles court, the will was written by Milton E. McCallister in September, 1929, a few months before he died.

Attorneys contended the perforations were McCallister's own handwriting. Eight persons were named in the will.

Picture Books Offer Chuckle as 1931 Dies

If You Like to Spend a Quiet Evening.

BY FANNY BUTCHER.

FOR a solitary New Year's eve by the fireside (if anybody is to be found thus charmingly watching out the old and in the new year) seven books of drawings (funny ones), two volumes of gleanings from popular magazines, an anthology of American jests in prose, poetry, and picture, and two volumes of pictured and described days that are quaintly gone but have not yet settled into the authenticity of antiquity) ought to be an evening's gayety de luxe.

The picture books are of varying degrees of humor from the perfectly proper to the politely purple. There is Peter Arno's annual, this year called "Peter Arno's Circus" [Livewright], which may be taken to mean either that Mr. Arno had a circus doing it or that the "reader" (if one can say a reader of pictures, "eyer" sounds so sort of leering for one's glances at the printed page) has a circus looking at it. In either case the title fits.

Helen Hokinson, who draws the funniest fat ladies with sealyhams being attended by supercilious butlers in the American pen-line business, called her collection of drawings "So You're Going to Buy a Book" [Minton Balch]. It contains that priceless picture of a very staid lady tourist whispering to a clerk in a Paris bookshop, "Are vous Ulysses?" And others as chuckly. O. Soglow, whose little king and his antics are not to be forgotten, has a volume called "Pretty Pictures" [Farrar & Rinehart], and a grand sarcastic title that is, too. Alan Dunn has gathered his "Rejections" [Knopf] into a volume with that title. Some of them were rejected because they were a little—as it were—frank for the hoi polloi. But if you want "frankness"—you all alone there in your comfortable chair while every one else is out getting a headache and attacks of appendicitis and apoplexy—you'll find it in "The Stag at Eve" [Farrar & Rinehart]—you can drink your fill of very staggish pictures in this volume, if ever. John Held Jr. has gathered some of his most amusing vendcuity cuttings in "The Works of John Held Jr." [Washburn]. And in "The Fourth New Yorker Album" [Doubleday Doran] you will find samples of the work of all of the artists who have this year published separate volumes of their opera.

If, after "eyeing," you also yearn in person, there is "The Vanity Fair Book" [Day], which is made up of some of the most amusing articles that appeared during the year in Vanity Fair, and pages of attractive photographs, and reproductions of paintings and drawings, and all sorts of assorted humorous rose petals and essence to make a gay potpourri.

"The Book of Ballyhoo" [Simon & Schuster] is a collection of items from that publication with a paragraph in its foreword which "explains" the genius of the magazine. It is due, according to the editors of this volume, to "the good, clean, wholesome love of good, clean, wholesome fun by good, clean, wholesome Americans." There's a good, clean laugh right there in that sentence. "The Cream of the Jesters," edited by J. B. Mussey [A. and C. Boni] is a collection of bells from the caps of many of America's most famous jesters, Ring Lardner, Robert Benchley, Dorothy Parker, Heywood Broun, F. P. A., Will Rogers, Newman Levy, and others, and pictures from the wielders of assorted pens dipped in laughing ink. There is one picture in it which barred it from Boston's firecider, but that picture had previously appeared in a "New Yorker Album" or Peter Arno's annual or some place (maybe both places) without getting the constabulary called out.

"This Was England," by Alan Bott, and "It Seems Like Yesterday," by Russel Crouse [Doubleday Doran], ought to get you well started on a very happy New Year. "This Was England" is a pictorial record of English history from 1870 to 1900, a period in which there was more chronicling with the pen (pictorially) than perhaps any other period in English history, for the so called civilized world and came to its flowering of interest in what it was doing every day and photography had not yet achieved the popularity for such chronicles that it enjoyed later. Du Maurier, Brangwyn, and other famous artists were daily contributors to the publications of the period. Mr. Bott's title page reads, "Manners and Customs of the Ardent Victorians: a survey in pictures and text of their history, morals, vices, inventions, sports, heroes and social and sexual distinctions between 1870 and 1900." Mr. Bott also contributes some amusing little essays on the subjects treated in each chapter, and he has illuminated the pictures with quips from contemporary sources.

Russel Crouse has done much the same thing—with more text and not so many pictures—for "yesterday" (not too recent) in our so called United States (as B. L. T. used to say). Mr. Crouse's volume is called "an album of dust covered ladies and gentlemen with a few sprigs of rosemary for their remembrance." He, too, has taken all of his illustrations from contemporary sources.

With all of these volumes you'll have a happy New Year, all right!

Good morning!

Way down on the Mississippi river, it seems there used to be "shanty towners"—sort of primitive American river rats—who lived in rickety houseboats and were at constant and deadly odds with steamboat captains who couldn't stand the sight of them.

This odd, slow moving picture—ycleept "Heaven on Earth" for no reason under heaven or on earth so far as I could see—gives you a peek into the lives of these queer folks who were, apparently, as unreasoning, vindictive, and superstitious as savages. Interesting—this glimpse of people whom most of us never knew existed.

A narrative thread runs through the pictorial disclosures and you discover Lew Ayres as States, the supposed son of a river captain. He learns that, by right, he is one of the "shanty-towners" he despises, so he deserts his foster father and returns to his people, where he meets a girl—and so on and so on.

Mr. Ayres gives an honest performance in a rôle that is hard to take seriously. As a matter of fact, the story, as pictured, seems just a story and not such a good one at that. "Mississippi" is the name of the novel from which the picture was adapted. Ben Lucien Burnam wrote it.

All of the acting is commendable and some of the scenery is beautiful, but the film as a whole drags, and the watery last reel seems just out and out movie stuff. You don't believe it for a minute.

"WORKING GIRLS."
Produced by Paramount.
Directed by Dorothy Arzner.
Presented at the Castle theater.
THE CAST.

Waldo Ferguson	Paul Lukas
Louise Adams	Frances Dee
June Thorpe	Judith Wood
Boyd Wheeler	Charles "Buddy" Rogers
Max Thorpe	Dorothy Hall
Pat Kelly	Stuart Erwin
Violet	Alberta Vaughn
Loretta	Dorothy Stickney
Miss Johnstone	Mary Forbes
Lou	Frances Moffett
Jane	Claire Dodd

One who has survived "Working Girls" realizes why Buddy Rogers has said good-by forever to the movies and gone to join a band; that Paul Lukas, with a reproachful backward glance at the producers who had valued him so lightly, might desert these shores for his native Hungary, and how Zoe Akins, who wrote the screen play, and Dorothy Arzner, who directed it, could moan "Never Again!" and go in for raising grapefruit.

See you tomorrow!

Maxwell Anderson's drama, given at the Studebaker theater, Dec. 30, 1931, with Elisabeth Risdon in the title rôle, under the management of Acme Productions, by arrangement with the Theater Guild.
THE CAST.

Sir Walter Raleigh	Arling Aleine

Sir Robert Cecil	Brandon Evans
Francis Bacon	Earl McDonald
Lord Essex	George Blackwood
Elizabeth	Elisabeth Risdon
Lord Burgley	G. Welsh Homer
The Fool	Howard Inches
And Others.

BY CHARLES COLLINS.

ELISABETH RISDON is one of the most accomplished actresses of the American stage. She may not have the strangeness and flamboyance of personality that make a star, but she has an all around proficiency in the practice of her art that many a star should, and perhaps does, envy. For proof of these statements I submit her performance as Lynn Fontanne's successor in "Elizabeth the Queen," the Theater Guild's trump card of last season which is now on view, with the Guild's setting and costumes if not with the Guild's auspices, at the Studebaker.

Miss Risdon follows Miss Fontanne's brilliant study of the erratic and erotic queen-crone of the English Renaissance, of course—follows it closely, but like an artist rather than a copyist. In facial makeup I think she surpasses Miss Fontanne's portrait; the eagle beak and the whitened, withered cheeks of the imperial hag seem to come closer to the historical traditions of Elizabeth, flaming at 50 over her noble gigolo. Merely as a picture Miss Risdon is something to see.

The pointing of the performance and the vocal tricks are a duplication of Miss Fontanne's interpretation. You may remember that Miss Fontanne was given to occasional squawkings, which blended neatly into her treatment of the fantastic monarch as an amorous, quick tempered cockatoo.

Miss Risdon has remembered and recorded every squawk. As an achievement in mimetics, this characterization is surprising. But while adopting her predecessor's eccentricities of speech, Miss Risdon keeps her diction clear. I caught every word of Elizabeth's chatter in this performance, but I missed a few when Miss Fontanne was on the throne.

The others are merely the members of a touring company. George Blackwood serves as a handsome and boyish Essex. In the rôle of Francis Bacon one may discover Earl McDonald, of last year's repertory company at the Goodman.

The holidays brought two other revivals into Chicago. At the Blackstone, you will find "Strange Interlude," in the interpretation recently seen at the Great Northern, and you will discover again that Mabel Julienne Scott, playing the lady who dragged three incredibly infatuated males through a lifetime of mournful muttering, is a decorative and well-poised young actress. . . . Incidentally, if you intend to renew acquaintance with O'Neill's double-voiced soul-clinic, it might be well to hasten, for the drama will desert the Blackstone at the end of this week.

"The Beggar's Opera," John Gay's ballad opera, or singing satire, two hundred years old but still a novelty, is lodged at the Eighth Street theater for the week. This is the revival's sixth American tour, but the show looks as if it had just jumped out of a bandbox. Several of the veterans of the first phase of this restoration are still in the cast; the singing is excellent and the performance gives full value in musical charm.

The Eighth Street theater is not on the regular playgoing map, but apparently Bertha Ott, the concert manager who booked "The Beggar's Opera" there, knows how to sell tickets.

"I'M JUDGED FOR MY OXEN," KIPLING SAYS IN SUSSEX RETREAT

[Copyright: 1931: By the New York Times.]

LONDON, Dec. 30.—Rudyard Kipling, poet of the British empire, but never poet laureate, is 66 today. He spent his birthday quietly at his home in Burwash, Sussex. He comes to London only on some occasion of special interest to him.

His public appearances have been chiefly confined to meetings of the Burwash parish council. There he warmly defends old Tory land tithes and such other hereditary feudal rights still existing thereabouts.

To one interviewer who sought him out in his retreat today he said:

"Here I am, judged by my oxen, not on my gift for writing values."

BURWASH, Sussex, Dec. 30.—(AP)—Maj. Gen. L. C. Dunsterville, the original of Kipling's "Stalky," in "Stalky & Co." and president of the society, will preside at tonight's meeting of the Kipling society in London, but the noted writer himself is not expected to be present.

[In "Stalky & Co.," the character of "Beetle" is supposed to have been Kipling himself.]

Teachers Ask for $37,500,000 School Fund from State

Springfield, Ill., Dec. 30.—(AP)—An increase in the state school fund from $10,500,000 to approximately $37,500,000 a year was recommended by the Illinois State Teachers' association in the closing sessions of its meeting here today.

The teachers also endorsed the state income tax now pending before the lower house of the general assembly. The report of the school fund committee said the income tax would decrease the tax on real estate for elementary school purposes at least one-third.

Creation of a commission to study ways in which the schools of the state may aid in preventing crime and in training a larger percentage of students to be law-abiding citizens was left to the executive committee of the association.

On the motion of Robert C. Keenan, Chicago high school teacher, the association went on record as favoring the Adamowski bills which have been passed by the house and are awaiting action in the senate. The bills would permit insurance companies to purchase tax anticipation warrants of cities and school districts.

In recommending the increase in the state distributive school fund, the association committee reported that the $10,500,000 appropriated by the last general assembly will be inadequate to pay all claims in full.

Recall Terrors of the Iroquois Fire and Panic

Memorial Society Meets; Talks of Dec. 30, 1903.

A small number of persons, members of the Iroquois Memorial association, met at the Iroquois Memorial hospital yesterday and recalled the disaster of Dec. 30, 1903, when the new crowded Iroquois theater, caught fire and a panic followed, with the loss of 575 lives. The association has met annually since the fire.

MRS. HERBERT W. SNOW.

"I was there with my sister, who was engaged to be married New Year's day," said Mrs. Herbert W. Snow, 1358 Sunnyside avenue. "Her fiancé was ill, and to cheer her up I took her to the show. We had balcony seats.

"When I found myself, carried with the crowd, safe outside, I realized Emmy [Emelyn Geick] wasn't with me. I rushed back in, saw her lying on the stairs, then people fell over her. I could not pull her out, could not reach her. I was driven back and after searching all that night and the next day we found her body in a morgue."

A scorched gold watch, with three photographs under the glass face, left in a dressing room and recovered by the police, was exhibited at the meeting by a guest of the association. Frank J. Holland of the Harrison hotel. Holland, who is an actor and producer, was one of eight men who with eight girls, were dancing and singing "Let Us Swear It in the Pale Moonlight" in Eddie Foy's production of "Mr. Blue Beard," when the fire broke out directly over the stage.

"I whispered," he recalled yesterday, "to the young woman I was dancing near, 'Something's happening, but don't stop dancing and singing.' We kept on, too, until Eddie Foy ran out on the stage in his undershirt and trousers. People had noticed the flames. He urged them to keep calm and asked the orchestra to keep on playing.

"As Foy ran off stage to search for his little son, Byron, the asbestos curtain was lowered. It stuck half way, however. Then our act broke formation and tried to jump for the curtain. We couldn't make it, however. We ran below and made our way out a rear door. Only Nellie Reed, the dainty little leader of the flying ballet, was killed. She tried to come from her overhead dressing room by a stairway instead of using the elevator.

"I remember rushing down Michigan avenue in a white hussar uniform and magically found my mother, pushed by the crowds two block down on State street, in the rear of a jewelry store."

George E. Smith, druggist, 561 Surf street, was with his wife on the first floor, he recalled. He made his way around the crowd, which was piling up, killing each other in an attempt to get out, and with his wife approached an exit. To his left, he said, he saw a young girl raise her arm, then sink down as persons fell on her. She was caught, but she gave him one arm, then the other, and he pulled her free. Her clothing was left behind, and the girl, naked and bruised, was led out by Smith and his wife.

Yankees' Tests Help Einstein's Theory of Time

Millikan Directs Work and Praises Results.

New Orleans, La., Dec. 30.—(AP)—A new proof of Einstein's relativity, the first practical experiment ever to show that time is the strange thing Einstein believes it to be, was reported to the American Association for the Advancement of Science today in the physics section.

Explaining the meaning of this work in one sentence, Dr. Robert A. Millikan said:

"This is a test under conditions which allow time to be a variable and is a more general test of relativity than any that has been made before."

Einstein's relativity idea of time means that time is not something "absolute" which exists independently of space, but that in some mysterious manner time is part of space, or vice versa. He has claimed therefore that no experiment in physics ever can separate time and space.

This has been tested in a new way at the California Institute of Technology by using the earth's annual trip around the sun like a gigantic merry-go-round.

The "rider" on this vast wheel is a robot made of quarts, having for a "brain" a beam of light split into halves. Both halves travel measured paths within the quarts brain, but one path is five times as long as the other, and takes five times as long to make its trip. It is this difference in length which finally produces the new and first test of time in relativity.

The robot is sensitive to certain things in the earth's annual whirl and its daily spinning motion on its axis. These things were reported by Dr. Roy J. Kennedy, builder of the instrument and originator of the idea, and by Edward M. Thorndike. For nine years they worked in the Norman Bridge laboratory of physics which is under direction of Dr. Millikan, Nobel prize winner.

The merry-go-round earth speeds along about 19 miles a second in its annual orbit. In winter it goes one direction; in summer the opposite. This enabled the split light beams in the quartz head to test whether there is any difference in the velocity of light when traveling with, against, or across the direction of the earth's flight.

What they did was try the famous Michelson-Morley "ether drift," experiment in a new way, on an enormous scale, and with time (the difference in the two light paths) included for the first time.

Einstein originally, on the strength of the Michelson-Morley drift experiment which showed there is no "ether," assumed that the velocity of light is absolute, never changing, and this led to his strange discoveries about time and space.

Joos of the University of Jena, using a still different method, recently confirmed the Michelson-Morley experiment.

Kennedy confirms both Michelson and Morley and Joos, those two used merely the earth's daily spin to pit as a measuring rod against the velocity of light. Kennedy's quartz man confirms that and then finds the same thing again on the celestial merry-go-round scale. There his measuring rod to lay alongside the speed of light is 70 times as fast as in the other experiments.

Prof. W. F. G. Swann, director of the Bartol Research Foundation of Philadelphia, pointed out today that the idea electrons are little bits of matter originated in the fact that they could be observed to "bombard things, like rain." He proceeded to show that a "pocket" of wave motion could travel around and do exactly the same tricks.

So he concluded "there is a possibility that electrons are creations of radiant energy." This seemingly makes all solid matter originate in waves made up of radiation."

Neon gas along with argon, krypton, exnon, helium, and carbon dioxide form only one per cent of the atmosphere, but Dr. Willard J. Hershey of McPherson [Kansas] college reported today that animals die in an atmosphere lacking that one per cent.

Trees can "feel" heat and cold. An electric shiver passes through them. This is due to a unified electrical system found running through tree cells by Prof. E. J. Lund of the University of Texas.

NEW LENS MAKES U. S. TELESCOPE RANK WITH WORLD'S BEST

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Dec. 30.—[Special.]—One of the chief disadvantages of the reflecting, or mirror type of astronomical telescope, as compared with the refractor, in which a lens focuses the rays of star light, has been overcome by a new auxiliary lens invented by Dr. F. E. Ross of the Yerkes observatory.

In a paper presented here today at the concluding session of the 47th meeting of the American Astronomical society, the improvements resulting from the use of his lens were shown. Dr. Ross was not present, but his paper was presented by his colleague, Dr. G. W. Moffitt. It was also announced that the Ross lens will be applied to the 200-inch reflecting telescope being constructed for the California Institute of Technology.

Dr. Ross tested his lens on the 60-inch telescope of the Mount Wilson observatory, an instrument exceeded in size by only three others in the world. The lens of a refracting telescope can only be supported around the edge, and this limits its size, but the concave mirror of a refractor may be supported all over its back. Thus, the mirrors may be made larger without any danger of bending of the glass affecting their shape. But the reflector cannot focus sharply over a very large area of the sky.

The Bride's Boat

By Coralie Stanton and Heath Hosken

SYNOPSIS.

Kit Lenoure, receptionist in a London family hotel, accepts the offer of a post in the Grand Africa hotel, Soydoret, Kenya. Theo Sable had gone there two years before, when Kit had broken her engagement to him. But Kit still wanted him more than anything in the world. She sails on the "Bride's Boat." Jess North, her cabin mate, is going out to be married. Lal Crowhurst, the biggest landowner about Soydoret and a most attractive bachelor, is on the boat. He is attentive to Kit. Soydoret proves to be a paradise with many serpents and terrible powers of demoralization for weak natures. Jess is married to Noel Graham, who manages Crowhurst's coffee plantations. Kit adapts herself to her new surroundings. Theo Sable, who has taken up big game hunting, arrives in Soydoret. Kit and Theo are overjoyed to have found each other again. But there are inexplainable changes in Theo that Kit can't understand. Ariel Grieve, the widow, who, scandal has it, owns Lal Crowhurst, sticks has her tentacles secretly around Theo. A dance and entertainment, to wind up the season, is given at the hotel. Next morning Ariel Grieve is found dead from an overdose of a sleeping drug. She left a letter obviously written to a man she was in love with and who had let her down. Every one suspects Crowhurst. Theo is accused of cheating in a card game. He declares his innocence, but Kit alone believes him. He leaves next day on a hunting trip. Jess Graham calls on Crowhurst, and tells him that she overheard Ariel Grieve threaten to kill herself when Theo Sable told her of his engagement to Kit. Jess gains a promotion for her husband by promising not to reveal what she had heard. Kit meets Crowhurst while she is out riding. They are caught in a storm and Kit returns with him to "Moon Fields," his estate.

INSTALLMENT XI.

THE ONE WOMAN.

They were drenched, and the girl's coat and teral hat had to be dried. She now wore a wonderful Chinese robe of the softest blue silk, lined with dark sables.

"I have had no news of Theo," Kit said. There was slight awkwardness in her manner. She had not been alone with him since she had so abruptly left him on the station platform, turning down his offer of help, and placing him, so to speak, on the side of her enemies. She wishes she had not come, and yet she could hardly have refused. "I don't suppose I shall hear until he can get back for a few days," she added.

"There is no regular communication, of course," he said. "But often natives come through. And I should think the expedition would send runners every now and then. But there's a bad bit of country to get through this time of the year. I expect you are missing him very much, Miss Lenoure."

His arm went around her shoulder.

"Yes. And I am longing for him to come and prove his innocence!" She looked pale, and in repose her mouth was sad. "It gets worse every day. I ought never to have let him go. Think, Mr. Crowhurst, it's more than a month now—and all these people here still believe him to be a cheat! They will get so used to the idea. O, it's more than I can bear sometimes!"

As he looked at her, he saw signs of intolerable strain in that face so much more lovely than any other he had seen in all his life, so desirable, so compelling that it was torture to him to gaze on it. A torture he had never known; the one supreme gift that life had withheld from him. The one woman he loved, had ever loved. The one woman who could change his life and make it whole.

"You mustn't take it so hard," he said in a voice that plainly showed his distress. "What can I say? I will do anything I can to help you. If only there was something I could do!"

"Thank you—there is nothing. I am silly, I know. I—"

The rich voice faltered. To his dismay the sweet lips began to quiver piteously, and great tears dropped silently from her eyes. To see Kit Lenoure give way like this was so startling that he could only stand and stare at her like an awkward boy.

When she gave a strangled sob, he caught her hand in a flash of understanding.

"There is something else that is making you unhappy!"

"I—I feel so lonely. Please don't mind me! I had some bad news yesterday. My young brother has had an accident. He wants to be an airman. He works in an aeroplane factory. He has been learning to fly. And he—crashed, and has hurt himself badly. My poor little mother! England seems so—so far away!"

His arm went round her shoulder.

"You poor, dear child! I am so sorry. Is it very bad?"

"Mother says he will get better—but they don't know yet how bad it will be. But I was not to worry. O, Mr. Crowhurst, it seems so cruel! Bill worked so hard! And he doesn't think about anything but flying and aeroplanes."

"I'm sure Bill will come through all right," said Crowhurst firmly. "I'm absolutely positive. I know he's a great lad and you'll be awfully proud of him."

Kit tried to smile.

"You are kind!"

The man hardly dared breathe. She was standing with his arm round her. She did not seem to notice it. It was so natural. The slight, protective clasp seemed to him more wonderful than the wildest, most passionate embrace. She was accepting his help, his attempt to comfort her. How lovely she was, inside as well as out! Her face when she spoke of her brother, her mother! O, why—why? Why could it mean nothing at all to him, her loveliness, her sweetness, her golden heart?

She loved Theo Sable. All this was for him. Crowhurst raged silently as a man rages who has never had anything denied to him. What use was his secret knowledge about Sable? None at all. Kit loved Theo Sable. He had a mad longing to cry to her 'I was not the cause of Ariel Grieve's death. You wronged me. I was ready to marry her.' Then she would ask—'Who was?' Could he answer, 'The man you love, the man you are going to marry!' It was because of him that she died. She loved him to insanity! He had deceived you all along!' No, he could not. Just because she loved Theo Sable he could not.

No. She must keep her beautiful dreams. He must keep them for her.

His eyes were fixed on the sheets of rain outside. He was was engaged in deadly conflict with himself. He had known her from the beginning, from the moment when he picked up her bag on the Marseilles train. The one woman. But not for him.

Kit stirred. The spell was broken. The man's arms released her.

But—what was it? What had happened to her? What was that strange feeling? She had known it before—that day of the picnic when she had nearly fallen from the rock into the Waters of the Moon and he had saved her. It was terrible—like being engulfed, like losing your will, your power, yourself.

But it was finding something—today, now, she had suddenly found something. A fire ran through her; the room blazed with light; she floated on air. She knew herself to be made for something immense, something that would take entire possession of her, that would last for ever.

Was that—love? Was it not love that she felt for Theo? Was she mad? Was this the reason of those doubts that would keep coming into her mind? Was it why she had felt so uncertain, so ignorant? So relieved when Theo went away? Was this the meaning of everything—of life itself?

She found Crowhurst's eyes fixed on her, in amazement, in stupefaction, in blazing triumph.

He came toward her. She gave a strangled cry. She was seized by the primitive instinct—to escape. It could only be madness. She clutched wildly at the things that were.

"I must really be getting back, Mr. Crowhurst. Thank you so much. I'm afraid I've made a silly fool of myself! Would you be so kind as to find out if my things are dry?"

Anti-climax! The man's lips grimly set; a look of panic in the girl's eyes.

The Man in the Moon shrugged his shoulders and rang a bell. Of course, she was the same Kit Lenoure. She knew what she wanted. She had chosen what she wanted in life. He must have been seeing visions and dreaming dreams.

. . . . . .

It was three weeks later. Theo Sable was on his way back to Soydoret. A note had come through for Kit, forwarded from the railway works to the northwest, on the line that was being constructed and that would ultimately lead to Soroti in Uganda. A native runner from the expedition camp had taken it there, and a young official had made a detour on his motor bike to bring it to its recipient. He had gone out of his way more than two hundred miles. These are the little kindnesses they do in Africa.

Is Your House Made for the Children or Are They Made to Fit It?

By GLADYS HUNTINGTON BEVANS.

You can do one of two things, if you have children. You can either have a home just as you like it and make your children fit into it. Or you can have children and build your home around them, making it durable and flexible enough to serve their needs.

In one case—the first one—you will have a child surrounded by things he must not damage and must not use and by things which are solely for the use of grownups—except, perhaps, for a few toys. This doesn't make for freedom and happiness and a sense of confidence.

In the other case you will have children who feel it is their home, not only yours—who know that THINGS are not more important than PEOPLE—who have respect for possessions in an intelligent way. These children will have toys and plaything, too, but they will not be confined to those for their interest and amusement. Children who have the intelligent freedom of their homes gain in contentedness and inventiveness.

This is especially true where little children are concerned. For them home should be a playground and a toy store. Think of the fun and interest they can find in the kitchen when you are out there working—fitting covers to pans, helping you empty the bags and boxes containing your groceries and vegetables, helping you polish silver, taking half a dozen saucepans and learning sizes by telescoping them—the same sort of thing that is done under the Montessori system of education with its made apparatus.

In the living or dining room they can help set the table at a surprisingly early age—or help you "pick up." Chairs in a row become trains, or blankets and chairs a lovely dark tent—temporarily disturbing to the effect of the house, but a delight to the children.

This doesn't mean that you can't have a charming and well-kept house, but it does mean that you must consider your children more important than an effect of department-store orderliness and perfection.

Newsboys Give Gold Medal to Hoover and Receive His Thanks

Washington, D. C., Dec. 30.—(AP)—Nearly 500 newsboys met with President Hoover today on the White House lawn, gave him three cheers and a medal, and received his thanks and a photograph in return. The President first greeted boys from the Brooklyn Daily Times, to whom he said:

"I am a sort of mayor in this part of the country," the President said, "and if you boys don't have a good time here let me know."

Mr. Hoover next met trimly uniformed members of the New York division of the junior naval militia. Under the command of Capt. Harry Zelner, the fifty boys between the ages of 10 and 18 are on an educational tour.

Then the President moved to the largest group of all, more than 400 members of the American Newspaper Boys' association, gathered from almost every state in the union.

"Let's give the President three cheers," said Richard Townsend of Atlanta, Ga., and they were given with considerable vim.

Harry Plowman of Alexandria, Va., then made a brief address, explaining this was "the second annual patriotic pilgrimage" of the newsboys' association.

Presenting a gold medal, he said it was a token of "love and affection from the boyhood of America."

"It is very beautiful, and I thank you," the President replied, smiling and bowing to the group.

THREE MEALS A DAY From the Tribune Cook Book

Food Talk

Holiday time is certainly jolly when a house boasts an open fireplace, particularly if there are children in the family. Telling stories, asking riddles, singing songs, gathered around a fireplace where there's a crackling fire is one of the pleasures of life that never loses its glamour. It's always a greater one if there's a little something to eat or drink.

Popcorn is an old favorite for that time. Some people use electric corn poppers, but there is no popcorn like that popped over an open fire. I remember a hotel I stayed in once where there was an enormous rocky fireplace in the lounge. Every night—it was summer, but the nights were cool—a bellboy popped corn there. What a popper he had to do it with! A huge affair of iron, so heavy that it hung from a chain and the boy swung it over the flames with actually pounds of popcorn in it.

A big bowl of buttered popcorn ought to turn the trick, but, of course, it won't if the family has a sweet tooth. In that case there are popcorn balls, either the plain kind or maple ones. The corn popper may be used for roasting chestnuts, too.

Apples and marshmallows are fun to roast. So that there will be no combats about whose turn it is to use the fork, we suggest a small expenditure for long handled forks for each member of the family.

The English are fond of mulled drinks. There is no reason why we shouldn't be, because they are simple and great sport to make at the fireside. Cider, longanberry juice, or grape juice are adaptable. Take a large saucepan that you won't mind having smoked, and put in, for each drink, a stick of cinnamon, a pinch of nutmeg, a clove or two, and a pinch of mace. Add a half cup of water for each portion and heat ten minutes. Remove the spices. Add a tablespoon of sugar and a half pint of juice per portion and reheat. This may be done over the open fire or—chillingly delightful to youngsters—by plunging a red hot poker into the liquid.

NEW YORK SOCIETY

New York, Dec. 30.—[Special.]—Mr. and Mrs. John W. Davis are passing the holiday season at Mattapan, their country home on the Overlook, Locust valley.

Mr. and Mrs. John Hay Whitney, who were at Llangollen, their estate at Upperville, Va., for the early part of the winter, have joined his mother, Mrs. Payne Whitney, at Greentree, Manhasset, for the holiday period.

A son, Basil H. Davis, was born on Dec. 23 to Mr. and Mrs. R. Nevill Davis at the Doctors hospital. Mrs. Davis was Miss Priscilla Chisolm.

Mr. and Mrs. L. Hamilton McCormick left today for Palm Springs, Cal.

New Year Styles More American, Say New York Designers

New York, Dec. 30.—(AP)—A distinct American influence will be seen in 1932 fashions and American designers are busy preparing for it.

Among the prominent designers in Manhattan, Nettie Rosenstein predicts that the molded silhouette of the past winter will carry through the entire year with a number of changes. The waist, she says, must be "easy" with just a suggestion of fullness, and the skirt will have all the fullness at the bottom, below the knees.

T. J. Simpson says there is a tendency to make all soft dresses for daytime wear longer. Short sleeves from one-quarter to three-quarter length will be worn with a wide variety of trimming details.

Although printed crepes and chiffons are not extensively featured in Paris for the approaching season, they are regarded as a necessity here on account of our long, hot summers, Simpson said today.

In designs, the prints will be the small and conventional patterns for day wear and larger and more elaborate patterns for evening. Some will be multi-colored but, he said, there is an increasing liking for large two-toned effects.

Skirt lengths, in the opinion of Miss Elizabeth Hawes, one of the younger designers, will be twelve or thirteen inches from the ground. Evening things will be long. Sports clothes will be quite short, not more than two or three inches below the knee.

Junior League to Give Art Show Jan. 7

SUCH a talented lot of young women as the Chicago Junior League boasts among its members! We are sure no other chapter of this large and powerful organization has such a large percentage of talented members as the Chicago chapter.

On Thursday, Jan. 7, the league is having a musical and an exhibition of painting and sculpture at the Casino, the musical to be given at 3 o'clock by two leaguers, Mrs. Albert T. Madlener Jr. and Miss Elizabeth Poole, who are pianists, and Jurien Hoekstra, baritone.

Exhibiting paintings will be Mrs. Frederic C. Bartlett Jr., Miss Martha Fitts, Mrs. James B. Mullen, Miss Catherine Molloy, Mrs. Walter Paepcke, Mrs. Philip Maher, Miss Henrietta Counties, Miss Elizabeth Stuart, Miss Florence Higinbotham, and Miss Emeline Bush. The young sculptors who will show examples of their work are Miss Margaret James, Mrs. John I. Shaw, Miss Jeannette Peterkin, and Miss Dorothy Morehead. Miss Marguerite Foster, who does the charming costumes for the league's children's theater, will exhibit some of her drawings; Mrs. Duncan Hodges and Miss Sophia Harrington also will show some drawings; and Mrs. Norman Pritchard will exhibit examples of modern photography, in which art she excels, so we are told. Miss Alice Rouiller and Walter S. Frazier and John Storrs are to be judges of the exhibition, which will be open from 11 to 6 o'clock on the day of the tea.

Mrs. Alfred M. Wolfe is chairman of the committee in charge, the other members of which are Mrs. Shreve Badger, Mrs. Ambrose C. Cramer, Mrs. Stephen T. Hord, and Mrs. Marion T. Martin.

Junior Assembly Tonight at the Casino Club.

The big affair of the holiday season for the younger set is the junior assembly to be held tonight at the Casino and not only will the school girls and boys be there, but most of the debutante set as well. It isn't often that the "sub-deb" set and the "deb" set mix, but both crowds are invited to the junior assemblies each year.

Before the dance there will be numerous dinners, among the hosts and hostesses being Mr. and Mrs. Samuel D. Rowe who will entertain for Mr. Rowe's daughter, Betty, at their residence, 1415 State parkway; Mrs. Robert Hixon and Mrs. James B. Forgan of Lake Forest who will give a dinner at the Casino for their daughters, Peggy Hixon and Louise Forgan; Mr. and Mrs. Carl D. Kelly whose party for their daughters, Marjorie and Patricia, will be at their residence on Indian Hill road in Winnetka; and Mr. and Mrs. Edward J. White who will entertain for their daughter, Marjorie, at the Lake Shore Drive hotel.

The crowd, a wee bit older than the debutantes, that is the girls who came out last year or the year before, and the younger marrieds, will celebrate New Year's eve at the Onwentsia club which is being opened tonight for a dinner-dance that A. Watson Armour III. and John Simpson will give for Miss Hortense Henry and Gordon Kelley who will be married on Jan. 16.

The young Irving Osbornes, who returned from their honeymoon yesterday, will be at the party, of course, for Mrs. Osborne was Elsa Armour and is a sister of young Watson Armour. The Osbornes are at the Drake temporarily while they find a house in Lake Forest in which to set up housekeeping with all the lovely gifts they received. It will have to be a large house, we are sure, if all the gifts are to be used, but probably some of them will be packed away and kept for future use, which is what most of the brides have to do who have such hosts of devoted relatives and friends to shower them with presents as this young couple have.

There will be parties galore for the popular Hortense Henry and her equally popular fiancé before their marriage, including a luncheon tomorrow given by the Philip Swifts at their residence in Lake Forest. Miss Henry is Mr. Swift's niece, her mother, Mrs. Huntington B. Henry, being the only daughter of the Edward F. Swifts, and Philip Swift being one of their sons.

The older members of society will celebrate the passing of 1931 and the coming of 1932 at parties at their residences, clubs, hotels, etc. Some of the clubs that are having dances are the Saddle and Cycle, the Tavern, the Opera club, Exmoor, the South Shore Country club, and the Country club of Evanston.

Debut Decorations Change Room Rapidly in Few Days.

The ballroom of the Blackstone which was "Le Rat Riant," a Montmartre café the night before, for Miss Marjorie Horton's debut, and which has been about everything a ballroom could be in its history, was a jungle last night for the ball given for Miss Barbara Graf by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Robert J. Graf.

Life-size papier-maché animals added to the illusion and the supper tables were decorated with smaller jungle animals. Miss Graf wore white satin with white and green crystal trimming and green slippers and carried gardenias and white orchids, and her mother was in wine color velvet with a shoulder bouquet of orchids.

The guests, most of them young people, numbered about 500. Miss Graf is one of the few "debbies" who had a debut tea and a ball this year; she was introduced at a tea at the Woman's Athletic club on Nov. 11.

Mr. and Mrs. Samuel D. Rowe and Mrs. Rowe's youngest daughter, Muriel, have returned from a holiday visit with Mrs. Rowe's brother and sister-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Charles V. Hickox, in New York City. Mrs. Hickox is the former Katherine Barker Spaulding.

Mrs. D. Mark Cummings will be in charge of the home dressmakers' sale at the White Elephant Rummage shop today. Assisting her will be Mrs. Secor Cunningham, Mrs. Charles C. Adsit, Mrs. Howard Bartling, and a few other women who are interested in this little shop at 27 East Ohio street which helps to support the Children's Memorial hospital.

The Joseph T. Ryersons and their children, Mary, Annie Laurie, and Joe Jr., left last night for Lucerne-In-Quebec to indulge in some winter sports for their New Year's celebration. Mr. Ryerson and the girls will return to Chicago on Jan. 6, and Mrs. Ryerson will take young Joe back to school at St. Mark's directly from Lucerne.

Mr. and Mrs. William D. Cox of 1366 North Dearborn street are being congratulated upon the birth of a son, William Deshler Cox Jr., on Dec. 29 at the Passavant hospital. Mrs. Cox was the former Helen Nicholas of Columbus, O., and Mr. Cox is the son of Mrs. Rennsselaer W. Cox of 1539 Astor street, and the nephew of Mrs. Charles Edward Brown.

Announcement was made yesterday of the engagement of Miss Frances Bosworth, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles H. Bosworth of Evanston, to Dr. Charles Trevor Stamp.

Tells Romance

[Copyright: 1931: By the New York Times.]

LONDON, Dec. 30.—Miss Frances D. Bosworth of Evanston, Ill., a cousin of Ambassador Charles G. Dawes, is engaged to Dr. Trevor Charles Stamp, second son of Sir Josiah Stamp, famous economist and one of the directors of the Bank of England. Sir Josiah and Lady Stamp will go to Evanston for the marriage in April.

Sir Josiah told today how Ambassador Dawes was indirectly responsible for his son's romance.

"Last spring I went to Canada to act as chairman of the grain futures inquiry," he said, "and on the way home I was introduced to the Bosworths by Brig. Gen. Dawes, their cousin. The Bosworths and their daughter came to stay with us in London. Then my son and Miss Bosworth met, and now they are engaged."

Dr. Stamp, who is 30, is an expert on tropical diseases, holding a position in the London School of Hygiene and Tropical Medicine.

Social Worker Voted Most Useful Citizen of Tacoma for 1931

Tacoma, Wash., Dec. 30.—(AP)—Very modestly does silver haired Mrs. Frederick C. Thompson take the honor of designation as the city's "most useful citizen" for 1931.

"Nothing has ever made me feel so humble," she said after her fellow citizens had thus rewarded her ten years of work among the city's poor. She is assistant superintendent of the Tacoma Community house.

"I was a Methodist minister's daughter," she said today, "and always said I would not marry a minister, because I wanted a home. But now I have homes in every part of the district the community house serves.

Movie Gossip as It's Heard in Hollywood

BY GEORGE SHAFFER.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Hollywood, Cal., Dec. 30.—The Hollywood film business celebrated its eighteenth birthday today, but the only persons who celebrated it were a little group who gathered around a table in the studio restaurant on the Paramount lot for luncheon.

On the morning of Dec. 30, 1913, Cecil De Mille cried "camera" to order the first scene of "The Squaw Man," which was both Hollywood's first feature motion picture and the initial production of the vast film corporation then known as the Jesse Lasky Feature Play company, and now known as Paramount-Publix corporation.

Events which led up to the selection of Hollywood as site for the movie industry occurred at a meeting in New York in autumn of 1913 between Jesse Lasky and Cecil De Mille, who were talking over plans for the 1913-'14 vaudeville season, in which both were financially interested.

Lasky prudently proposed to De Mille that the pair take a flier together in the new motion picture industry and they adjourned to the Lambs' club to talk it over. There they met Dustin Farnum, who had just finished a tour in the stage run of "The Squaw Man."

Lasky and De Mille united to form a film company and each posted $5,000 and offered Farnum a third interest. Farnum declined—a decision of the moment which he afterward regretted bitterly for it cost him many millions, for Farnum asked to have a weekly salary instead.

De Mille came west from New York at first intending to pick a spot in Arizona to become his movie making headquarters, but it proved too cold and cloudy in northern Arizona that winter, and C. B. came on to Hollywood, where he rented use of a citrus grove, which De Mille, with his far-seeing eyes, had chosen for the cradle of the movies, sold by the way, for $25,000,000.

"The Miracle Man," now being filmed in sound version at the Paramount studio, is exactly the 750th picture made by that film concern since it started with "The Squaw Man" in December 1930.

BY ANTOINETTE DONNELLY.

Yesterday we were talking about the beautiful blondness of our best blond beauties of the moment. Just to prove the brunettes are not being backseated from the pictorial standpoint, this little conversation took place in the lobby between the second and third act, when the parade is on. "Say, that gorgeous looking girl over there against the wall was painted by that big French artist—what's his name! O, to be an artist!" sighed the six-foot cavalier.

"That blond one, you mean?" said I. There was a blond stunner a foot away from the other.

"No, lord no!" protested the gentleman." Artists don't like that type. They're too flat, uninteresting. No—the black-eyed, blue haired sister is the one I mean."

Well, hair prejudices, like political and religious ones, are things not to be argued about among friends. Pick an enemy and wham away, if you want to, but let your friends enjoy their own convictions, is my motto. Anyway, the brunette was a gorgeous looking picture. And what hair that girl had! Blue-black just like the sonnet-ears pin on their favorite.

It looked as if it had been brushed within an inch of its life. Hair parted in the center, beautiful ears fully exposed. That single knot at the back raised just high enough to show a grand line of neck. Hair as flat to the head as it could be, hiding nothing of the perfectly sculptured head outline.

A dead white satin gown, white shoes, small pearl earrings; no necklace; white skin untouched by rouge; brilliant lipstick, and eyes highlighted with silver flecked blue shadow! You do see some grand looking sisters on an evening 'round. Not that the daytime is cheated, either—but those evening things are beauties' stage properties, aren't they?

The lacquered wigs that were brought over by one of the better known Paris hairdressers bob up, here and there. One seen the other evening at the theater was orchid of color and worn with a purple evening coat. Striking, all right. Everybody looked! Costume-ballish, kinda. But most awfully decorative—in the ultra modern manner. Only an ultra should dare them.

BEAUTY ANSWERS

H. A. S.: NO, MASCARA DOESN'T injure the eyelashes. On the contrary, the daily brushing involved with its use is beneficial.

M. N.: FOR ENLARGED PORES I suggest, instead of the glycerin, a few drops of benzoin added to the face rinse water. Use more cold water on the face.

Peasant Blouse Seen in New Coat Silhouette

BY BETTINA BELDWELL.

PARIS.—[Special.]—Rustic fabrics, peasant blouses, and such rural details of costume are invading Paris fashions. Every day some dressmaker brings out another creation that smacks of the picturesque garb of the European proletariat.

Sweaters with peasant sleeves, skirts with peasant trouser tops, etc., etc., have ceased to be startling novelties in Paris, being adopted by the smart world. The latest garment to get its inspiration from the same source is the midseason coat that is to be worn for the last months of winter and the first days of spring. Worth designed this coat and gave it the silhouette of a workman's blouse, made glorious and elegant by fabric and fur. You may see it in our sketch today.

The material of this coat is Bagheera velvet in a ruby red color. The upper coat, sleeves and all, is cut like the blouse of the peasant with its modest collar held close to the throat by a single button, with its drop shoulders and baggy lower sleeves, and by its loose, blouse waist.

The skirt is a trim wrap-around that gives the impression of being very narrow. Two bands of silver fox trim each sleeve, one making the cuff and the other being placed at the edge of the dropped shoulder. A band of silver fox makes the hem, also.

The belt of this coat is made of Bagheera, and is four inches wide. It buttons in the center front over a single button. At both sides of the belt are silver studs set in the velvet like nails are set in harness. The result of all this is the smartest and most novel coat in Paris.

Official Contract

By Charles True Adams

(International bridge authority; author of "Official Contract at Sight.")

Sport, to my mind, essentially is based on competition. Mere non-competitive skill never thrills to the same extent as a hard fought contest. There are times that 52 cards are so distributed as to give both partnerships strong hands. Yesterday's play-a-problem was one of these. Here it is:

NORTH
♠—K,Q,J,8,7,6,5,3
♥—7,4
♦—7,6
♣—J

WEST
♠—2
♥—A,K,J,9,2
♦—J,5,4,2
♣—8,7,4

EAST (Dealer)
♠—10
♥—Q,10,8,3

SOUTH
♥—6,5
♦—K,10
♣—K,9,6,5,3,2

East dealt and bid one diamond. South bid two clubs, West two hearts, and North three spades. I believe that the soundness of all four bids may be accepted without explanation.

East now bid four hearts, South four spades, and West five diamonds. While East had supported West's heart bid, West nevertheless was forced to bid five of either hearts or diamonds to overcall South's spades. Since he had not previously had the opportunity to show East that he could support his diamonds, as well as play hearts, he bid the diamonds. There was game at either bid, and if East preferred to go back to hearts he could do so without raising the declaration. The bid was left at five diamonds, however. North, East, and South all passed.

South opened the ♠ A, West played the 2, North the 8, and East the 10. South then led the ♥ 6, West played the J, North the 7, and East the 8. Dummy now led the ♦ 2, North playing the 6, and East taking with the A, while South played the 10. East now played the ♥ Q, South the 5, dummy the 2, and North the 4. Now East made the play that he had planned from the first lead—a play which must be successful if his reading of South's hand was at all correct. East led the ♦ 8, South played the K, West the 4, and North the 7. From here on the play depends entirely on South's lead.

If South should lead a club, East will make both the ♣ A and Q and discard the 10 on dummy's last heart. If, on the other hand, South should lead a spade, dummy would trump and East would discard the ♣ Q on dummy's last heart.

Before putting South in with the ♦ K, East had led the hearts twice. Since both North and South followed suit, South could have no more hearts. This same procedure was followed with the diamond suit—the last lead of diamonds putting South in the lead.

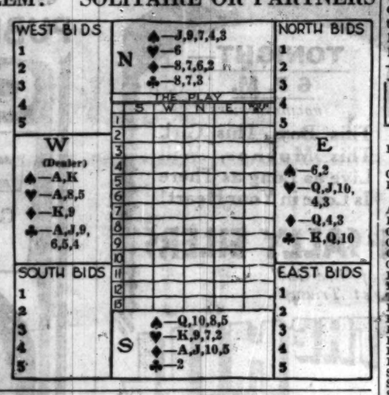
It was not chance that forced South to lead either a club or a spade. East, seeing that he must use the so-called elimination play, had carefully "eliminated" the hearts and diamonds from South's hand before placing him in the lead.

As the hand was originally played, South returned the spade, which dummy trumped, East discarding the ♣ 10. East then led out all of dummy's hearts, discarding the ♣ Q on the last heart. Nothing remained for him to do but cash in the ♣ A and the remaining trumps.

PLAY-A-PROBLEM: SOLITAIRE OR PARTNERS

Play this hand tonight at your bridge game. Keep a record of the bid and play in the spaces provided. Numbers in the bidding squares are for successive rounds. Check your results with tomorrow's answer.

To play "Solitaire": Record the bids you think each hand would make in the bidding squares. After the final declaration has been made start the play, leading from the hand at declarer's left. As you play each card cross it off of the diagram and record it in the proper square, as 3, 3, 6, K, etc. In the last column indicate the hand which won the round and lead from that hand on the next round.



Send your bridge problems to Charles True Adams, The Chicago Tribune; inclose stamped, addressed envelope.

PATTERNS BY CLOTILDE

[Registered U. S. Patent Office.]

JUNIOR GIRL'S DRESS.

Sharp contrast in material or color wins the approval of the younger set; and this model is particularly pretty. The wrapped front is smart and the circular skirt has just the right snugness of fit at the hips. Brown and red, navy blue with red, and green with brown in the new woolens are ideal for this design. For a dressy dress, brown velvet with Spanish tile crêpe de chine is effective.

The pattern, 2558, comes in sizes 12, 14, 16, 18, and 20 years. Size 16 requires 2⅛ yards of 39 inch dark, with 1¼ yards of 39 inch light material and ¼ yard of ribbon for the bow.

Boys Admire Girls Who Aren't Too Easy, Doris Relates to "Ona"

BY DORIS BLAKE.

"Could you or would you write an article on kissing? What about a girl kissing a young man the first time she goes out with him? Most boys seem to expect it. They don't ask, either. They just help themselves.

"Do young men get a wrong impression of girls who kiss the first time they take them out? I mean an impression of cheapness? Or, if a girl has had an enjoyable evening, is it then O. K. to give a young man a good night kiss on the first time out with him? Please, I'm not fooling. I honestly want to know.

"It's awfully confusing to know what and what not to do, these days. That's one count on which our aunts and grandmothers had it over this generation of ours. They had a good form standard to go by. We haven't. Boys tell us other girls kiss. The girls themselves either lie or evade the question. I honestly want to know.—ONA."

I gather a number of you young women ask for honest enlightenment. And I believe you do want to know. I believe all you tell, "Ona," about the confusion. I run into it often enough here, heaven only knows. To kiss or not to kiss is not the lightweight problem some folk view it. It's just about the most serious one confronting young folk. If it were something like shaking hands, it could be dismissed lightly. But handshaking does not stir up the emotions—well, not often, anyway. Kissing does that very thing—sometimes dangerously.

And right here is where the dynamite enters into what some of our young folk regard as a perfectly harmless pastime. Any rite, or pastime, or habit that earns on its own record the "be careful" caution is not a thing to throw to the untutored, inexperienced young. Morals have undergone a change. Habits, behavior—pastimes. They're all, if not more lax, a little different, of recent years.

But human emotions vary not a whit in either man or woman. They respond to the same old impulses, physical contacts, and so on. Plainer than that I can't be here. But enough to know that kissing carries dynamite! And that's why the promiscuous, first evening out practice of it is not to be recommended.

I won't go into the male reaction phase, except to say that girls are far more glib about, more ready to fall in with the modern idea of behavior than our young men are. They may not all be caddish about the oft-kissed maid, but give them one who has held herself nicely aloof and hear them gloat!

SHAMROCKS WIN, 2-1; HOLD TIE FOR 1ST PLACE

MAROONS LOSE FIRST GAME IN NEW GYM, 33-29

Carleton Holds Its Early Lead.

College Basketball

Carleton, 33; Chicago, 29.
Wisconsin, 32; Maryland, 30.
De Pauw, 26; Indiana, 19.
Pittsburgh, 29; Southern California, 26.

With small regard for the proprieties attendant upon the first appearance of the Maroon basketball team in the new fieldhouse, Carleton college of Northfield, Minn., last night defeated the University of Chicago, 33 to 29. Carleton thereby ran its string of pre-season victories to five.

Coach Norgren found some solace in the performance of Byron Evans, sophomore forward just returned to school, who served notice on Scott Rexinger that Paul Stephenson may have another running mate during the regular season.

Carleton Starts Fast.

Carleton opened the contest with a display of speed and well executed plays that gave it an 11 to 2 lead before the game was five minutes old. Chicago opened up with the belated attack which has characterized its play in the last two games, and fought itself up to a 4 point deficit, 15 to 11, at the half.

In the second period the pace became faster, with Stephenson, Porter, Parsons, and Evans contributing goals. Parsons, who led the scoring, put the Maroons into a 26 to 25 lead with a long one handed shot.

The Chicago lead lasted about 10 seconds, when Strom sank a pair of long tries in quick succession. A free throw and a long basket by Rexinger tied the count, but Raasch poked in a fellow shot for the Northerners and free throws by Raasch and Taylor settled the affair.

Jim Porter Stars.

Jim Porter played a fine game at guard for Chicago, holding Arney, who had scored an average of 15 points in each of Carleton's four victories, to two goals. A crowd of 4,000 witnessed the game. Lineup:

BADGERS, 32; MARYLAND, 30

Madison, Wis., Dec. 30.—[Special.]—Wisconsin defeated Maryland, 32 to 30, in an overtime game here tonight, which was won when Capt. Marvin Steen of the Badgers sank three baskets in the extra period.

Maryland started fast and, displaying a pro style of basketball, ran up ten points before the Badgers scored. After 14 minutes of play Steen broke the ice for the Wisconsin team with a medium distance shot.

At the half Maryland led, 14 to 7, but, starting the second half, Wisconsin began to function and scored five points in the first four minutes of this period.

The game seesawed back and forth from that moment, but, with less than 30 seconds to go, Maryland led, 26 to 24. Coach Meanwell sent in Doug Nelson, and he sank a long shot to tie the count a second before the gun sounded to end the game.

Stan Rewey, sophomore forward, was the scoring ace of the Badgers with 13 points.

DE PAUW WINS, 26-19

Greencastle, Ind., Dec. 30.—(AP)—De Pauw led Indiana all the way to win a basketball game, 26 to 19, here tonight. Grabbing a four point lead before Indiana scored, De Pauw ran its advantage to 20 to 8 at half time.

In the last period De Pauw appeared content to rest on its comfortable lead and resorted to a deliberate, defensive style of play. Hodson, forward, and Dickey, center, led an Indiana rally that cut down the De Pauw lead.

Eubanks, center, and Copeland, guard, led the De Pauw attack. Lineup:

American, Czech Draw in International Chess

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

HASTINGS, England, Dec. 30.—I. Kashdan, United States, and S. Flohr, representing Czechoslovakia, today drew in the International Chess Masters' tournament. In the other contest played today, G. Stoltz of Sweden, was defeated by E. M. Jackson, England.

UGH, UGH, UGH, UGH, UGH!

MR. LONDOS WINS, BUT HIS METHOD IS MOOT QUESTION

Some Say Dusek Is Victim of Illegal Hold.

BY CHARLES BARTLETT.

Scientific wrestling circles were in a furore last night and several student riots on the old campus at the Coliseum were narrowly averted following a revolutionary experiment conducted by Prof. James Londos, the noted authority on the study of grappling.

Using one Rudy Dusek, a graduate student from Omaha, Prof. Londos twice demonstrated his latest discovery, the neck hold, before a class of 8,103, much to the satisfaction of Joseph Coffey, who had arranged the lecture. Dusek was convinced in ten minutes and seven seconds of the first portion of the lecture, but it required 11 minutes and 54 seconds for Prof. Londos to get the idea across before class was dismissed.

The cause of the dissension among the students assembled at the Coliseum might be charged to Al Smith, the class announcer, who stated at the conclusion of the two demonstrations that Prof. Londos had used a reverse headlock to render Dusek level.

Maybe It's Just an Old One.

Many students claimed that this has been a part of the curriculum for years; others said it was nothing but a new version of the old strangle hold, and still others maintained that it was beyond the limits of their science. However that may be, Prof. Londos' new hold, if it be so, is one that is sure to make wrestling classrooms buzz throughout the next semester.

Dusek made so bold as to argue with Prof. Londos several times, attempting to submit a little theory of his own, called the Omaha split. Midway through the second fall, he was in a fair way of convincing the professor, causing the latter much agony by endeavoring to separate him from one leg while standing on the other. At another point in the lecture, he deposited the prof on the ropes and left him clinging and swinging there much like a monkey. The deadly neck hold proved too much, however, and Rudolph was led away, like a man who has suddenly been relieved of the main rôle in a lynching, sputtering and rubbing the region of his windpipe.

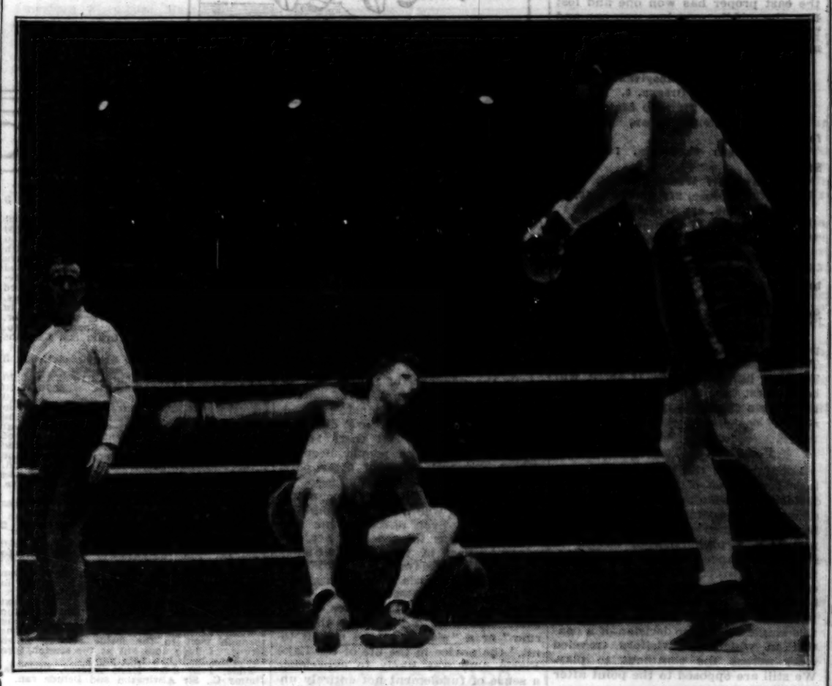
Kampfer and Zaharias Draw.

Until the Londos-Dusek lecture, all of the other sessions had been decisive, and the students became quite uneasy, since all of their previous courses have included a draw. They were accommodated by George Zaharias, the pouting prodigy from Colorado, and Hans Kampfer of Germany, who went for 30 minutes without proving a thing.

The most interesting debate of the evening was delivered by that veteran teacher, Toots Mondt, and young James McMillen, who studied football at Illinois before he took up wrestling. The class marveled that Prof. Mondt, after all these years, could stand up before one so young as McMillen, for he showed Jim and the class that somewhere along the way he had taken a bit of post graduate work in boxing. The former Illini finally caused him to hold still, however, consummating the lecture in 13 minutes and 43 seconds with a body slam, preceded by a series of flying tackles.

Earl McCready of Tulsa, Okla., had little difficulty in instructing a one man class composed of Jack Roller of St. Louis in the mysteries of the body hold, doing so in 8 minutes and 47 seconds. Fred Grobmier, who has done much research work in the body scissors field, applied the fruits of his studies on Jack Lewis of Texas in 20 minutes and 13 seconds.

THE BEGINNING OF THE END



Don Petrin falling to the floor in the fifth round of his fight with George Nichols in the light heavyweight tournament at the Chicago Stadium last night. Nichols crashed a left to Petrin's chin and the Newark battler dropped for a nine count. Referee Ed Purdy is rushing up to start the count while Nichols backs away. A moment later Purdy stopped the fight. [TRIBUNE Photo.]

Jones Beats Johnson; Olin, Calmes Win Tourney Bouts

BY FRENCH LANE.

Billy Jones, a Negro from Philadelphia; Bob Olin of New York, a Golden Gloves tournament graduate, and Baxter Calmes of Chicago scored sensational victories which kept a crowd of 5,600 in a turmoil at the Chicago Stadium last night.

They were fighting in the light heavyweight tournament. As a result of their triumphs, they go into the semi-finals of the competition which decide a world's champion in the division.

Jones Upsets Dope.

Jones upset the dope and cost backers of Larry Johnson, south side Negro, a big part of their bank rolls. Until the Philadelphian came along, Johnson's backers believed he was unbeatable. They would have backed him against any fighter with just such reckless abandon as they backed him against Jones. And they would have collected nothing, just what they collected when Mr. Jones got through with Mr. Johnson last night.

The Jones-Johnson ten round encounter was saved until the final number. And it was a right fitting climax; except that Mr. Johnson, sort of a pale Negro, could never get in a damaging blow.

Johnson Badly Beaten.

Johnson was down early in the battle, but weathered the storm, although he took an awful beating from there on. Johnson's rooters, hidden away in the second and third galleries, began to groan as early as the fifth round.

Johnson's lips and eyes were beginning to swell and his face began to resemble a well chopped hamburger steak. He was barely able to peer out through his swollen eyes as the battle neared the finish and he had to be a game fellow to be on his feet when it ended.

Olin's terrific punching got him the decision over Clyde Chastain. Willie Stribling was in Chastain's corner and talked frantically, but Chastain is just one of those old timers without a punch and when Olin clipped him he flinched in pain.

Crowd Boos Olin.

The crowd was with Chastain, probably because Willie Stribling was in his corner, but Olin carried the fight to him all the way and was a strong man at the finish while Chastain, beaten down by the lefts and rights, probably couldn't have knocked a feather over. The decision was booed. Olin grinned into the faces of those who hooted him. He knew he had won.

A rough and tumble slugging match, which brought Calmes and Roscoe Manning of New Jersey together, came out of the third bout. Calmes was an overwhelming favorite, but met the toughest kind of an opponent in the Jersey Negro. Manning knocked Calmes down for a nine count in the third round and frequently had the more rugged Calmes in distress in the later sessions.

Calmes Wins.

Calmes pecked away with his left until he had Manning's face puffed all out of shape. But he couldn't come near to knocking out the Negro boy. He couldn't even knock him off his feet. It wasn't by much of a margin, but Calmes got the decision.

Charley Belanger of Toronto, veteran of many ring battles, won the decision over Willie Bush of Hartford, Conn., in the bout which opened the program.

The spectators were bewildered before the scrap ended and before the decision went to Belanger. In the eighth round, after a furious exchange of blows, the fighters went into an old fashioned rough and tumble clinch and before Referee Ed Purdy could pull them apart, both rolled out of the ring.

At the count of eight Bush had clambered back into the ring. Belanger was trying to get back and for a second Referee Purdy went into a mental lapse. He lifted Bush's hand indicating victory at the count of ten.

Overrule Purdy's Decision.

Belanger was back in the ring at the count of 14. The rules in Illinois allow a boxer 20 seconds to get back into the ring after being knocked or pushed out of it. So the members of the Illinois Athletic commission overruled Referee Purdy's decision and ordered the bout continued. At the end, Belanger was awarded the decision although Bush had knocked him down for an eight count in the first round.

George Nichols, Buffalo, left hander, after taking considerable punishment in some of the early rounds, scored a technical knockout over Don Petrin of Newark, in the fifth round of the second bout. A terrific left to Petrin's chin sent the Newark battler down for a nine count a minute after the fifth round started. When he came up, Nichols swarmed all over him with rights and lefts and all but knocked Petrin out of the ring. Referee Purdy stopped it to save Petrin from further punishment.

Berlinger of Penn Is Voted Best Amateur

New York, Dec. 30.—[Special.]—Barney Berlinger, one of the greatest athletes ever developed at the University of Pennsylvania, today was voted the James E. Sullivan Memorial award, given annually to the outstanding amateur athlete chosen by a board of 600 sports leaders.

Berlinger was chosen as the outstanding American athlete by one of the closest margins of the last several years. Berlinger polled 424 votes, winning by only two votes.

Helene Madison, who holds several swimming records, was voted second place. The 18 year old Seattle, Wash., girl received 422 votes.

PETROLLE KNOCKS OUT TOWNSEND IN 7TH ROUND

New York, Dec. 30.—[Special.]—Billy Petrolle, Fargo, N. D., knocked out Billy Townsend, Vancouver, in 1 minute 58 seconds of the seventh round in Madison Square Garden tonight. The bout drew 16,000 customers for estimated receipts of $40,000.

Petrolle had Townsend down with left hooks to the jaw for counts of nine in the first and fifth rounds. A left hook to the jaw put Townsend down again in the sixth but the bell saved him at the count of six.

Townsend was weak coming out for the seventh and Petrolle bided his time until he found a spot to shoot in a left and right hook to the jaw. Townsend fell in Petrolle's corner and rolled over on his back. There was no need for a count. Petrolle bent down and lifted his opponent to his corner upon the referee's indication that he had won.

CALIFORNIA GRID SQUAD GUEST OF ALUMNI HERE

More than 250 alumni will greet the University of California football team, which defeated Georgia Tech last Saturday at Atlanta, Ga., tonight at the La Salle Street station. The squad will be taken to the Allerton house, where it will be honored at a New Year's eve banquet. The team will remain in Chicago for two days.

Fireworks on New Year's Eve? Yeah! Irish vs. Wildcats

Northwestern's basketball players take their second fling of the season at Notre Dame tonight at Patten gymnasium. The Wildcats, defending champions in the Western conference, were defeated in the first game of the series, 32 to 25. That defeat was the first this season and the second in two years for Northwestern.

Notre Dame is represented by one of its strongest cage teams in years and has ambitions of breaking a five year jinx. Not since 1926 have the Irish won both games in one year. Since the advent of Coach Dutch Lonborg at Northwestern the Wildcats have won six out of nine games. In the total games played since the start of the series in 1921, Notre Dame has won twelve, against seven for Northwestern.

Two former Chicago prep school stars are members of the Notre Dame quintet. Johnny Baldwin, who starred at Englewood High several years ago, is holding down a regular guard position again this year. Although one of the smallest guards in college basketball, he won a regular job in his sophomore year last season. Ed Krause, who, in his sophomore year on the football team last fall, clinched a regular tackle position, is as effective as a cage player. He is a center.

Lonborg will probably start the same lineup that opened against Notre Dame a week ago. This consists of Joe Reiff and Elmer Johnson, forwards; Bob McCarnes, center, and Bus Smith and Paul Farber, guards. McCarnes, who played his first full game of the season against Notre Dame, seems to have completely recovered from the ankle injury which kept him on the sidelines during the early games.

CRANFIELD WINS JUNIOR POCKET BILLIARD TITLE

Arthur Cranfield, 15 years old, of Syracuse, N. Y., won the national junior pocket billiard championship last night by defeating Robert Moore, 14 years old, of Grand Rapids, Mich., the defending titleholder, 75 to 30 in 14 innings, at the Lincoln-Belmont Y. M. C. A. Cranfield's high run was 22, against Moore's 8.

Cranfield went through the double round robin tournament without losing a game. Moore won four and lost two, both defeats being administered by Cranfield.

Cranfield went to the front with a run of 22 in the fourth inning of the final game and never was in trouble. He received a cup, emblematic of the championship, from C. A. Storer, president of the National Billiard Association of America.

In the first game yesterday afternoon Cranfield defeated Charles Cacciapaglia, Rockford, Ill., 75 to 25 in 25 innings. In the second afternoon game Moore triumphed over Nicholas Oliva, 75 to 63 in 18 innings. Cacciapaglia defeated Oliva, 75 to 65 in 26 innings in the third game. Final standing:

	Won.	Lost.	High Run.	Best Game.
Arthur Canfield	6	0	36	9
Robert Moore	4	2	26	9
Charles Cacciapaglia.	2	4	34	21

Mr. Dui Had a Yen for Snow; He Went South

BY WESTBROOK PEGLER.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Dec. 30.—There occurred the other day in a place called Lake Placid, Fla., the death of a queer old man named Melville Dewey, or Melvil Dui as he sometimes signed himself in the pursuit of one of the amusing crotchets of a strong and constructive and in some respects pesky character.

Although in recent years he had fled to the somewhat tropics at the first approach of winter in the Adirondacks, he had been for many years a nut on the subject of winter sports and had done more than any other individual in this country to popularize cold weather and the sports thereof, such as skating, skiing, and sliding down hills on sleds. You may say that cold weather is not noticeably popular even now, and that skating, skiing, and sliding down hills on sleds were old established sports long before the birth of Mr. Dewey, or Dui, eighty years ago.

It Was Dewey's Idea, Anyway.

That is quite true, but nevertheless old Mr. Dewey actually did found a cult of American winter chasers which has grown to considerable size. Some of the members follow the snow and ice, and take as great delight in 30 degrees below zero as those people who follow the sun to the south enjoy in the sunburn latitudes."

It was old Mr. Dewey's contention, and it seems foolish to argue against it, that persons of normal health were better off in the cold country than in the tropics and could have as much fun if not more. There was this about it that a man or woman out of doors in cold weather would be certain to keep hustling to keep reasonably warm and would not smoke much tobacco while thus engaged or drink many Martinis or Bacardis, whereas one taking the sun in the tropics would be likely to yawn and take things easy and smoke and get tight on drinks made from gin and rum. I believe this tendency is generally recognized.

He Didn't Have Much Luck.

Well, so, anyway, having this idea, Mr. Dewey about thirty-five years ago bought a big tract of beautiful timber land in the Adirondacks and founded a sort of hotel and resort development which he called a club. He was a reformer at heart and he liked to interfere in pestiferous little ways with the pleasures and habits of others. He would not permit ladies to smoke in the club, even in the privacy of their rooms, and he would not permit either the ladies or the gents to absorb any stimulating beverages even in the privacy of their rooms if he could help it.

In fact, there was a tendency to pull censorious snoots at members who dropped into little places off the limits of the reservation to absorb intoxicating beverages, but he never was able to enforce this ism of his any better than the prohibition department has been able to enforce it in the country at large.

They Buried the Dead in Snow.

Persons who have stopped at the Lake Placid club have told me that

Duluth, Minn., Dec. 30.—(AP)—The Chicago Shamrocks scored a 2 to 1 victory over Duluth here tonight in a fast American league hockey game. The victory was the first for the Shamrocks on the Hornets' ice since they joined the American league last year, and kept them in a tie for first place with the Kansas City Pla-Mors, who defeated Tulsa, 1 to 0.

Duluth got the first score of the game midway in the opening period, when Laurie Scott beat Goalie Karakas on a close shot for the first goal of the season.

McFadyen Ties Score.

Later in the period the Shamrocks evened the count when McFadyen skated in fast to take Buswell's pass and flipped the puck into the net.

The winning goal came late in the second period, by Tip O'Neill, who fired the puck from the blue line. It evaded Goalie Turner, who was unprepared for the shot.

Karakas Stops Hornet Attack.

Duluth held the upper hand in offensive play in the final period, but Goalie Karakas gave a splendid exhibition in the cage and stopped every attack the Hornets made. Lineup:

PLA-MORS WIN, 1 TO 0

Kansas City, Mo., Dec. 30.—(AP)—Ken Dunfield's solo shot in the second period gave the Kansas City Pla-Mors a 1 to 0 victory over the Tulsa Oilers in an American Hockey league game here tonight.

Dunfield's shot, propelled through a mass of players in front of the cage, came after Kansas City had three times failed to take advantage of opportunities when Tulsa had two men in the penalty box.

Ski Entries Close with 125 Enrolled

Although entries mailed yesterday will be accepted for the second annual ski tournament of THE TRIBUNE, which is scheduled Sunday afternoon at Riis park, it is probable that most of the entries have been received. Approximately 125 boys have signified their intentions of competing.

Of course, it may be necessary to postpone the meet. In that case, it will be held Jan. 10 at the same slide. However, weather prognosticators last night still were hopeful that there would be sufficient snow between now and Sunday to hold the meet on the original date. If the tournament is postponed it will be announced Saturday morning.

Publish Names Sunday.

The names of all contestants and officials will be in Sunday's TRIBUNE, providing the meet is not postponed. Otherwise, all entries and their numbers will be published the following week.

These 125 boys, divided into four age classifications, are seeking the gold medal award in each class emblematic of the championship.

How Title Is Determined.

The title is determined on length of the jumps and form. Each contestant will be required to jump at least twice, and it will be within the jurisdiction of the judges to require three jumps.

The time of the tournament, as well as the hour at which contestants must report for their numbers, will be announced later.

SLEIPNER CLUB POSTPONES ITS SKATING MEET

The Sleipner Athletic club's annual ice skating Derby scheduled for tomorrow at Humboldt park was postponed yesterday for the first time in 40 years, but skating officials are still hoping it will be possible to stage the Norwegian-American A. A.'s city championship meet Sunday at Mills stadium.

TULANE BATTLES TROJANS IN ROSE BOWL TOMORROW

Green Wave Supporters Still Confident.

BY GEORGE SHAFFER.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Pasadena, Cal., Dec. 30.—Power against passes and speed.

That's the way the championship college football battle of 1931 between the Trojans of Southern California and Tulane university's undefeated Green Wave from New Orleans, looked today when the teams finished practice for Friday's intersectional clash in the annual Tournament of Roses game.

Coach Bernie Bierman of Tulane sent his team through its paces behind barred gates in the Rose Bowl today. It was Tulane's first step on the field that saw four previous southern elevens come west unbeaten and go home the same way, in previous games in the annual Rose Bowl series.

Trojans in Bowl Today.

Southern California moved from training quarters at a Santa Monica beach club to a Pasadena hotel today and will practice in the Bowl tomorrow. The Bowl is not so unfamiliar to the Trojans as to Tulane, for a number of Coach Howard Jones' players, including the complete regular back field of Pinckert, Shaver, Mallory and Musick, and Arbelbide, end; Capt. Williamson, Johnny Baker of the educated toe, and Substitute Tackle Hall, ran riot there only two years ago when Southern California triumphed over the University of Pittsburgh, 47 to 14, on Jan. 1, 1930.

Aside from pessimistic predictions of a 28 to 7 defeat, spread here by Coach Bierman of Tulane, who is remembered in the central states as a great Minnesota player and a good football diagnostician, nobody is conceding either team a great edge in the game.

Odds Favor Trojans.

The odds favor Southern California, and it would surprise no end of people to see the Trojans upset, but there are no agreed odds to manifest pregame assumptions of superiority, for some of the betting has been at even money, some at odds ranging to 2 to 1, and some with Tulane supporters asking a margin of points.

The Trojans will play a six man defensive line when Tulane has the ball, and will be expected to stop the Tulane running plays themselves without near support of the Trojan secondary, because the secondary has been given the primary mission of watching for passes. Jones has told his line he knew they can stop Tulane line plays and told his backs they can stop the passes if they played properly.

If Jones' strategy works out the game is expected to be a test of Tulane's ability to stop perhaps the hardest running game in America, which Jones has interspersed with a good passing game.

POWER MEETS SPEED

San Francisco, Cal., Dec. 30.—(AP)—With the annual east-west football game two days distant, fans here expected a contest of power against fleetness of foot and passing ability, with power favored to win.

Convinced that the eastern team, possessing a forward wall of giants and the hard hitting Hinkle and Russell, is vastly stronger than the western aggregation on plays between the ends, westerners who hope for another victory are planning their faith on wide open and aerial plays.

That the west will rely on the air to a considerable extent was confirmed in practice yesterday. Mason and Toscani were the key men as coaches, Locey and Bible drilled the squad in an aerial attack designed to overcome the ground gains the players coached by Kerr and Hanley are expected to make.

Bob Kleckner, University of San Francisco half back, shared in tossing the ball, as did Merle Hufford of Washington.

The eastern backs continued to develop a system of reverses, spinners and power drives calculated to smother the western defense.

The weather continued unfavorable. After a respite yesterday morning, showers developed in the afternoon and were expected today.

ROMANO, PANDORA QUINTETS WIN IN WINDY CITY LOOP

The Romano Triangles and the Pandoras remained tied for the lead in the Windy City Basketball league last night by scoring victories in the third round of games at the 132d armory, Madison and Rockwell streets. The Romano squad won from the Drivers, 27 to 21, and the Pandoras triumphed over the Hannin-Did-Its, 19 to 17.

A basket by Kewezs in the final minute enabled the Eller Big Five to defeat the Lindstrom All-Stars, 17 to 15. It was the second consecutive victory for the Eller squad. In another contest, the Roszcnialski team defeated the All-Chicagos, 19 to 17.

ROSE BOWL GAMES.

TULANE university of New Orleans will send its football eleven against University of Southern California at Los Angeles tomorrow in the annual Rose Bowl contest. This contest will be seventeenth of that series, although the fifteenth of intersectional competition. Two games during the war were played by service elevens.

Of the fourteen intersectional games played, the far west has won six, the east (including the south and middle west) five, and three resulted in ties. More strictly speaking, geographically, the east proper has won one and lost five, the middle west has won one and lost one, and the south has won three and lost none. Here is the record:

1916—Washington State, 14; Brown, 0.
1917—Oregon, 14; Pennsylvania, 0.
1920—Harvard, 7; Oregon, 6.
1921—California, 28; Ohio State, 0.
1922—Washington-Jefferson, 0; California, 0.
1923—Southern California, 14; Penn State, 3.
1924—Navy, 14; Washington, 14.
1925—Notre Dame, 27; Stanford, 10.
1926—Alabama, 20; Washington, 19.
1927—Alabama, 7; Stanford, 7.
1928—Stanford, 7; Pittsburgh, 6.
1929—Georgia Tech, 8; California, 7.
1930—Southern California, 47; Pittsburgh, 14.
1931—Alabama, 24; Washington State, 0.

Football critics in general think the power and speed of the well rounded Trojans will prove too much for Tulane's lighter eleven. If so, it will be the first time a Pacific coast eleven has beaten the south in this particular series.

Point After Touchdown.

Looking over the Rose Bowl series, it is seen three of the eleven games decided have been by point after touchdown, a play against which The Wake has campaigned for years. That is too large a proportion of games of such importance to be determined by this one feature. There were three ties, two of which could have been lost by failure to kick goal. Thus five of fourteen games were dependent on this single factor for decision of a contest in which the visitors traveled clear across the continent to play. We still are opposed to the point after touchdown.

Advent of 1932.

This is the night when we see the new year in or kick the old year out. A year ago we sat in with a group which were "kicking out the old year" because 1930 had been so sad in business and profits. We met several of the group and asked whether a similar program was in sight for tonight. One replied, "I'm afraid to kick anything again. We thought 1930 was bad, but look at 1931, much worse. Perhaps 1932 will be still harder." What a cheerful optimist for a time like this. But whatever else happens, we have no "kicking out" scheduled for this evening.

GLENBARD WINS NORTH CENTRAL CAGE TOURNEY

Glenbard High school basketball team last night defeated West Aurora 26 to 20 to win the championship of the North Central college tournament at Naperville. The score was tied 11 to 11 at half time but Glenbard drew ahead in the last period on long shots.

West Aurora lost its chance for victory when it missed seven free throws. Glenbard outscored Aurora in field goals, 9 to 8.

Burdick starred for Glenbard with four baskets and Holty led Aurora with five.

La Grange defeated Lemont, 31 to 21, in the final game of the consolation round. Both these teams were eliminated in the preliminary by one point.

Naperville closed the tournament by defeating Libertyville, 30 to 28, to win third place. Capt. Spiegler of Naperville was one of the outstanding stars of the tournament, scoring eight goals in the final game.

Mr. Dui Had a Yen for Snow; He Went South

every year come springtime, when the soft snowdrifts vanish from beneath the windows of the guests' or members' rooms, numbers of bottles of various distinctive shapes, pinched, dimpled, and all such, are disclosed upon the ground. But there is not much of that. The people sleep as though drugged at night after playing in the cold all day.

Further exemplifying the man's character, he was a nut on simplified spelling and even devised some new letters or signs for the alphabet, the general effect of this spelling when first encountered on the menus and the bulletin boards being very confusing, indeed. Reading that there would be "pe sup" for dinner or that there would be a "dans in the balrum" or a "slaride in the munlit tonit," the novice in the life of the Lake Placid club was likely to experience a sense of fuddlement not entirely unlike the sensation of being jolly well plastered on ri wiske.

He was also a remarkably fine librarian and I would not be at all surprised to hear that he could make shadows like rabbits and elephants with his hands. The old man had many gifts.

Nevertheless, there were enough people who were not exactly Y. M. C. A., but who liked the winter and the deep snows and smooth ice and were very glad to forego the forbidden vices in quarters at the club. So the place prospered and the old man bought more and more o the beautiful woods and lakes in the Adirondack county. He even established a prep school on the grounds whose students when I saw them, little kids of fourteen, or so, calmly stepping off into space on the shocking descent of the ski jump, seemed the healthiest I had ever seen anywhere.

They Got Him a Fur Coat.

This is the place where now the Olympic winter sports program will be held and it is unfortunate that the old man could not live to see it come off, for the Olympic show will be the triumph of his career.

He began to hedge away from the cold a few years ago and for persons of advancing years who couldn't stand it any more he established the Lake Placid club in Florida where he died.

When he was leaving for Florida for his first winter out of the snow in his first surrender, his employes at the Placid club in the mountains took up a collection to buy him a present and when the presentation was made, what had they selected for the old man who was bound for the tropics but a huge, fuzzy overcoat?

They Go Even Farther.

The winter sport cult at Placid is not much written-about but there are some members with sufficient income —or there were until last year—who actually chased the winter. When the thaws come in the spring and the ice rotted on the rinks and the sculptured polar bear on the snow monument dwindled to the size of a fox-terrier, they would be off to the Canadian northwest for a little more cold weather and the last possible miles on their skis, the last few roaring descents down the mountains on the huge mechanized bobsleds which are always such an astonishing revelation to the man or woman whose notion of sledding is a childhood reminiscence or belly-floppers on strawberry hill oack home.

DE PAUL MEETS CARLETON FIVE HERE TONIGHT

De Paul university's basketball team will celebrate New Year's eve by clashing with Carleton college at the De Paul gym. De Paul already has whipped Southern California and St. Viator.

Though it has slowed down its whirlwind style of last season, because of new material, De Paul has shown to advantage with its deliberate system of attack, of which Capt. Joe O'Connor and Heine Coan are the focal points.

THE WORLD'S GREATEST NEWSPAPER

Commerce

THURSDAY, DECEMBER 31, 1931.  17

NATION STANDS FIRST IN WORLD STEEL OUTPUT

Produces 25,597,000 Tons During 1931.

Security and commodity exchanges, banks, and other business will suspend operations tomorrow in observance of New Year's day. The grain markets, including the Chicago Board of Trade, will remain closed until Monday, but the New York and Chicago Stock exchanges and other security markets will reopen Saturday. Chicago live stock markets will be open tomorrow and Saturday.

BY O. A. MATHER.

In this age of steel, there is satisfaction in the fact that the United States stands supreme by a wide margin in production and consumption of iron and steel. It augurs well for a continuation of this country's position as the chief manufacturing nation of the world.

While the use of steel declined to a greater degree in this country than in other countries this year, due to the world-wide depression, still we made and used considerably more metal than any other country. This and other information is set forth by the magazine, Steel, in its annual statistical review.

World production of steel in 1931 is estimated at 68,662,000 gross tons, compared with 92,877,000 in 1930, and 117,339,000 in 1929, which marked the high record. The United States produced 25,597,000 tons this year, with Germany ranking second with 8,380,000 tons, then France with 7,850,000, Great Britain with 5,300,000, and Russia with 5,000,000 tons. This ranking is the same as in 1930.

Production of U. S.

The United States produced 37 per cent of the world output, compared with 42 per cent in 1930. It also made 38 per cent of the pig iron, compared with 49 per cent in 1930. World output of pig iron totaled 55,312,000 tons, compared with 78,485,000 in 1930, and 92,720,000 in 1929.

The United States consumed 461 pounds of steel this year for every inhabitant, after adjustment is made for exports and imports. This per capita usage marked a sharp drop from the 721 pounds consumed per capita in 1930; in fact, it was the smallest consumption since 1921 and with that exception, the smallest since 1915. Great Britain was second with a per capita consumption of 301 pounds, compared with 356 in 1930. France passed Germany with an average of 338 pounds, against 298 in 1930. German consumption averaged 198 pounds, compared with 301 in 1930.

The American steel industry is doing a little better this week and further improvement is expected with the turn of the year, according to the midweek review of the Iron Age. It estimates average operations at 22 per cent of capacity, compared with 21 per cent last week, and predicts a gain next week to approximately the rate in effect prior to the December decline.

Some Bright Spots.

"Developments relieving an otherwise drab year-end are substantial orders for sheets and strip steel, placed principally with mills at Detroit and Cleveland; increased specification for tin from farm implement manufacturers in the Chicago district; a rise in fabricated structural steel lettings to 18,500 tons, making it the best week since September, and an inquiry from the Erie railroad for its 1932 rail requirement, estimated at 40,000 tons," the review continues. "Steel companies are making an effort to check the decline in prices."

Comparative figures on electric power production last week are more favorable than those of the preceding week. While output was 3.3 per cent under a year ago, in the previous week it was 5.3 per cent under the corresponding week in 1930. Output in the Chicago district last week was 6.4 per cent under a year ago, whereas, the decline in the preceding week was 14 per cent.

Spending by Governmental Bodies Adds to Tax Burden

BY SCRUTATOR.

As the year ends there is increased activity in the camps of those who make it their business to analyze economic developments to find out the whys and wherefores.

When it comes to deciding how the monkey wrench got into the machinery in 1931 there will probably be as many solutions advanced as there are economists.

Some of the remedies proposed will be sound and constructive, but if history repeats itself most of them will be based on this or that plan which proposes as a cure another and larger dose of the very medicine which has aggravated the illness.

Inasmuch as the idea behind most of the plans that have been suggested since 1929 has been to get government bodies to spend more money it is interesting to see how this movement to sell something to the government has been reflected in steadily increasing tax burdens.

Estimate 14 Billions.

The total expense of all government in the United States in the fiscal year 1931 has been estimated at approximately fourteen billion dollars. This compares with twelve and a quarter billions in the prosperity year 1928 and less than three billions in 1913.

"Taxes, like water, always seek a level," says Col. George T. Buckingham, vice president of the Illinois Power and Light corporation. "The ultimate taxpayer and the ultimate consumer, in the last analysis, are almost identical, and they are the final burden bearers and final taxpayers."

The railroads are a good illustration of this. R. H. Aishton, chairman of the Association of Railroad Executives, in a year end analysis of the railroad situation estimates that in the aggregate all the earnings of the railroads in the United States up to May 1, 1932, will be required to pay the railroads' taxes for 1931. He finds that the carriers' taxes now average fourteen per cent higher than they were ten years ago.

Seek to Protect Credit.

Higher taxes partially account for reduced railway earnings. And the railroads have sought to protect their credit by raising freight rates $125,000,000 per year and reducing their wage earners' pay $215,000,000 per year.

The $50 millions per year of railway taxes is ultimately paid by the consuming public although it is not listed as taxes when the bill is presented. So is the rest of the 14 billions that it costs to run the national, state and local governments.

Unlike most other costs the expense of government does not diminish when the ability to pay is reduced. Instead, it increases.

A bulletin published by Ernst & Ernst presents figures showing the increase in the cost of federal, state and local governments since 1925. They are as follows [in millions]:

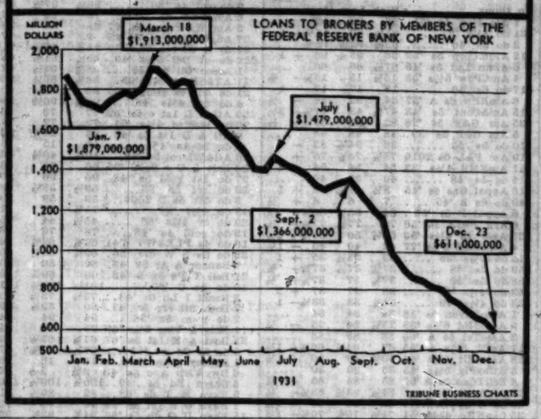
	1925.	1928.	1931.
Federal	$3,580	$3,644	$4,220
State	1,532	1,826	2,500
Local	5,828	6,813	7,280

Rise in Bonded Debt.

The national industrial conference board in its annual study of the cost of government in the United States points out that the reductions in the federal debt since 1920 have been largely offset by a tremendous increase in state and local net bonded debt which, it estimates, now totals more than 15 billions, against 12.7 billions at th close of the fiscal year 1928.

"The reversal of the trend in federal debt during the fiscal year 1931," the board states, "is of some significance, since federal debt no longer exercises a balancing effect upon the combined total of all governmental indebtedness in the United States."

BROKERS' LOANS HAVE DECLINED THROUGHOUT THE YEAR



RAILWAY UNIONS MEET JAN. 12 TO ACT ON PAY PLAN

Expect Approval of Wage Parley.

BY PHIL HAMPSON.

The next move in the efforts of the railroads to get their unionized employés to accept a reduction in pay will be made here on Jan. 12. On that date some 1,500 general chairmen of the twenty-one unions represented in the Railway Labor Executives' association will meet in the Palmer House to report on the attitude of their respective memberships with respect to the resolution adopted by the general union meeting here on Dec. 11.

This resolution provided that the proposed ten per cent wage cut be presented to a committee of railway union officials and railway presidents empowered to negotiate to a conclusion on wages, unemployment relief and the stabilization of employment.

Vote on Authority.

The general chairmen will vote on Jan. 12 on the question of granting authority to the Railway Labor Executives to enter negotiations. It is believed that in cases where union memberships are opposed to entering negotiations the chairmen will remain away from the meeting. The unions are expected to approve the proposal.

On Jan. 13 union officials, under the directorship of D. B. Robertson, president of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen and Enginemen and chairman of the executives' association, will tabulate the poll.

Then on Jan. 14 the members of the executives' association, together with subcommittees from the twenty-one unions—about two hundred in all—will meet the railroad presidents. The roads will be represented by three presidents each from the eastern, western, and southeastern divisions of the country, under the chairmanship of Daniel Willard, president of the Baltimore and Ohio.

Expect Unions to Accept Cut.

Reports in railroad circles in Chicago yesterday were that the unions will accept the 10 per cent wage reduction for the period of one year.

If the unions refuse to accept a voluntary reduction of 10 per cent the railroad presidents are prepared to push their demand for a 15 per cent cut without limitation as to duration before the railway labor board.

PREPARE TO OPEN NATIONAL SHOW IN FURNITURE MART

Preparations for the semi-annual national furniture market and style show, which opens next Monday at the American Furniture Mart, 666 Lake Shore drive, were under way yesterday with the arrival in Chicago of the executives of several of the nation's leading furniture manufacturing companies. The remainder of the week will be spent in getting the exhibits ready for the huge show.

Long lines of trucks laden with the new furniture that will make its debut at the Chicago exhibition, were being unloaded at the Furniture Mart yesterday. Designers and craftsmen for 582 factories, located in 235 cities in thirty states, have devoted months to the construction of the new products, upon which the sales efforts of the companies for the next six months will be based.

The first buyers for retail furniture stores will also reach Chicago this week-end, and before the show closes on Jan. 16 it is anticipated that approximately 5,000 will have seen and made their selections from the new merchandise. The Furniture Mart exhibits are wholesale only and the entire building is closed to the public.

The market opens a new year and, in the opinion of many manufacturers and retail merchants, may mark a new deal for the furniture industry, which has been hard hit by the depressed conditions of the last two years. Indications are that prices may be somewhat higher than when the last exhibition was held in June. If this is true, it will mark the first advance since the start of the period of deflation—which came in the furniture industry before the stock market crash of October, 1929.

FARRELL SAYS TRADE RECOVERY SURE TO COME

[Copyright: 1931: By the Associated Press.]

New York, Dec. 30.—(AP)—Looking hale and hearty—and cheerful—James A. Farrell, president of the United States Steel corporation, today cast an experienced eye over the business horizon and declared he did not see anything about which to become panic stricken.

"In my life I have witnessed a number of major depressions," he said. "In each one the public believed we would never recover. But we did. And, while I cannot venture to say when we will emerge from this one, there is no doubt that we will come out of it stronger and better than we were before.

"America has suffered with the rest of the world. In fact, there are economists who believe that our troubles have been largely due to the unsettlement abroad.

"The steel business has had its share of adversity. But that doesn't mean the steel industry cannot right itself.

"No one can tell when prosperity will return in full measure. There are foreign problems that affect this country's welfare vitally. We are hoping that the various outstanding questions will be answered for the good of all countries."

MILWAUKEE RD. REVISES RATES TO FIGHT TRUCKS

The Chicago, Milwaukee, St. Paul and Pacific Railroad company yesterday announced a revision of freight rates between this city and Milwaukee, which will become effective early in February providing the interstate commerce commission approves. The move is made in an effort to recapture traffic lost to the truck lines.

E. B. Finegan, freight traffic manager, said the plan consisted of the authorization of special low rates on freight loaded in box cars by shippers and tendered to the railroad in lots of 10,000 pounds, with still lower proportionate charges on units of 25,000 and 40,000 pounds.

The rate will also be available, Mr. Finegan said, to commercial truck lines operating between Chicago and Milwaukee, enabling them to confine their operations to the pickup and delivery in either city.

Chicago Stocks Show Gains as Tax Selling Period Ends

BY THOMAS FURLONG.

Stocks on the Chicago exchange moved forward in irregular formation yesterday as the period elapsed during which tax losses could be taken in the regular way. Prices of the Insull securities were firm and in some instances slightly higher, following dividend action taken by directors of Middle West Utilities company.

Ignoring the recent declines in the market values of the stocks, directors authorized the usual quarterly disbursements on the common and 6 per cent preferred issues. The regular quarterly dividends or 2 per cent in stock on the common and $1.50 on the preferred were declared payable Feb. 15 to stockholders of record Jan. 15. Middle West common was a bare fraction higher at the close of the market, while the preferred gained more than a point on the announcement of the dividend.

May Act Today.

Directors of Corporation Securities, Insull holding company, have taken no action thus far on the preferred or common stock dividend. The meeting of directors which was expected to take place yesterday was not held, John F. O'Keefe, secretary and treasurer, said last night. Some action may be taken today, he added. Quoted yesterday at 3⅞, the stock is still nominally on a $3 annual dividend basis. The common, which is on a 6 per cent stock basis, closed yesterday at 1⅝.

Halsey, Stuart & Co., as fiscal agents, reported that funds have been received for payment of the Jan. 1 interest of Insull Utility Investment, Inc., 6 per cent debentures of 1940, of which there is $53,703,000 outstanding. The interest to be distributed totals approximately $1,600,000. The debentures, which have been severely depressed in the market recently, were quoted yesterday as low as 25¼ and closed at 28¾, a slight loss for the day. Turnover in the issue represented debentures of a par value of $130,000.

With the Insull securities moving ahead slightly, other active shares generally brought better prices at the close of the day, but tax selling was still in evidence among the less active stocks. A few issues scored sharp gains as the tax selling lifted. Notable among these was U. S. Gypsum, which moved up nearly two points on good buying. Another was E. L. Bruce common, which spurted 3 points to 15 despite that the directors at their meeting yesterday failed to take any action on the preferred dividend which is due Jan. 1.

Will Pay Dividend.

Hall Printing company shares appeared on the tape at 11½ as the company announced that the usual quarterly dividend of 30c a share will be declared at the meeting to be held early next year. Charles Oliff, treasurer, said that earnings for the fiscal year, which will end Jan. 31, will cover current dividend requirements by a safe margin.

SWIFT & CO. HEAD EXPECTS BETTER BUSINESS IN '32

Belief that "general business conditions will improve in 1932," was expressed yesterday by G. F. Swift, president of Swift & Co.

"During the last two years the packing industry has been suffering from the fall in wholesale meat prices, which are now at the lowest point in many years," he said. "Operations in recent months suggest that meat prices have practically reached bottom.

"One of the outstanding features of the packing business during the current depression has been the continuity of its operations. There has been no slowing down for lack of a market. The meat from all live stock which comes to market must be consumed whether the purchasing power of consumers is high or low. In years of depression and low purchasing power, meat will be consumed only at low prices."

Speaking for his own company, Mr. Swift said it "completed its fiscal year last October in an unusually strong financial position, with operating and merchandising costs substantially reduced to conform with the low level of meat prices. We are going ahead with our normal development plans for improvement and betterments," he added.

BY FRED HARVEY.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Dec. 30.—As if to show there was one more kick left in its creaky old frame in spite of the unkind things the killjoys have been saying about it, the share market up and staged the smartest kind of a little rally in the late trading today.

Prices went skipping up 1 to 2 points all over the board and the range of operations was the broadest in weeks. It looked as if the list was trying heroically to fulfill popular but all but abandoned hopes of a real rebound as a flourish of good will to th departing year.

Realization that the year-end strain of tax selling was about over probably inspired the belated spurt. This was the last day for such sales to be counted as complete under regular delivery. It will be possible to make sales to this account tomorrow, but all such transactions must be on a cash basis, the delivery of regular dealin, not being due until Monday, Jan. 4, too late to get in on the 1932 books. Tape followers have been expecting a heavy volume of tax sales this week and a steady sagging of price tendencies as a result of the strain. It had been hoped, however, that the offerings might run their course by Tuesday night and that the market would be enabled to start its New Year's celebration this morning.

Weak at Start.

It did not take long after the opening, however, to show that too much confidence had evidently been placed in such hopes. At any rate the feebler tone which crept into trading shortly before the close yesterday reappeared after a mild upturn in the initial dealings and prices continued to work irregularly lower until well in the afternoon. It was not until around the opening of the final hour that the advance got really under way.

The turn, when it did come, developed in promising fashion. High grade stocks were prominent and the most impressive gains were made by the recognized leaders such as American Can, Allied Chemical, American Telephone, Atchison, Standard Gas, General Motors, Johns-Manville, Consolidated Gas, and Public Service, all up from 1 to more than 2 points. United States Steel, after scoring a gain of more than a point, eased back in the last few minutes of trading to close at 38¼, up only a small fraction on the day.

Rails Get Some Help.

Railroad shares got some measure of help from the news that the Southern Pacific shopmen had agreed to a 10 per cent wage cut and a general belief that this might be the forerunner o. more such agreements to the advantage of the sorely pressed railroads of the country. A report was current, in fact, that representatives of the union workers had definitely agreed to accept a cut when they meet with the executives of the lines about the middle of next month, but the disposition of the rank and file seemed to be to await an offici.l announcement to this effect before pinning too much credence to it.

Southern Pacific gained a point on the score of its wage victory, but the progress on the group taken as a whole was only fractional.

Motor stocks counted themselves in on the advance and the oils managed to hold firm. Exceptional movements here and there attracted attention. One of the most remarkable was Eitington-Schilds, Inc., first preferred, which took a nose dive of some forty points in a few sales. Heime tumbled over four points on a single transaction and Ludlum Steel preferred dropped 5 points on two sales. On the other side, General Gas 6 per cent preferred gained 7 points on a nominal turnover. Money rates firmed up a bit, the call rate rising to 3½ per cent. Volume was around 2,000,000 shares.

Top yesterday, $6.15; average, $5.50.

Estimated receipts at Chicago today: Cattle, 5,000; hogs, 45,000; sheep, 17,000.

Yesterday's hog receipts at 35,000 were second largest for Wednesday since early in the year and the opening had all the earmarks of a lower market. However, lightweights cleared quickly under brisk competition between order buyers and smaller local packers, and some buyers were forced into the medium weights to fill out. The extreme top came down only 5c at $4.50, while the general average held steady at $4.30.

Weights of hogs are getting heavier and it is more difficult to hold the average weights of hogs down. A few weeks ago, when the country was liquidating lightweights and pigs, buyers were seldom able to keep the average weights of their droves as heavy as their orders called for. Larger houses were unable to buy at Tuesday's lowest quotations, so filled only short orders. Most of the 5,000 left were held off the market.

More Action in Futures.

There was more life in the hog futures market yesterday, but offers and bids were too far apart for trading. All January contracts were bid $4.90. February hogs carried bids of $4.35. March and May hogs were offered at $5.50@5.75 and bid $5.00.

Cattle prices held up surprisingly well considering the size of receipts yesterday. Offerings at 9,000 compared with 5,727 last Wednesday. When several large eastern interests put in an appearance weakness vanished and the position of the market improved as the day progressed. All classes shared in the better action, some selling unevenly higher than at the low time the previous session. Local houses were also more aggressive and several of the big packers were in search of prime weighty beeves.

Armour took the top load at $10.50 that averaged 1,413 lbs. The range of prices is much narrower than early in the month, but it is still wide and settle of practically the same quality and finish sell far enough apart to confuse both buyers and sellers in many instances. Some fair quality 1,425 lb steers sold at $7.00 and plainer kinds averaging 1,300 lbs sold as low as $6.25. Poorest grades ranged down to $4.25. Cows and heifers ruled steady to 25c higher. Best calves were steady, but packers obtained the bulk at 25@ 50c decline.

Lambs Get Drubbing.

Yesterday's increase in sheep receipts gave buyers the chance to erase some of the gain scored in lambs lately. Prices were subjected to a drubbing that carried values down fully $5@50c and movement of supplies was extremely slow at the reduced list of quotations. It was late in the afternoon before the bulk of the supply went over the scales and many arrived in packing houses too late for slaughter.

Larger houses took most of the good grades at $5.50@5.75, paying up to $6.00 on eastern account, while city butchers paid $6.15 for a load of 90 lb fed westerns. Aged sheep and yearlings sold steady. Feeder lambs were scarce and in demand at strong prices. One shipment of 300 head averaging 59 lbs brought $4.85, equaling the highest price of the month for feeding stock.

SUGAR.

NEW YORK, Dec. 30.—(AP)—SUGAR—Raw, was firmer again today and prices advanced 3-32c to the basis of 3.16c for spots.

The only sale confirmed was 14,000 bags of Porto Rican for prompt shipment to a local refiner at 3.16c delivered.

Price changes in sugar futures were somewhat irregular and after showing net advances of 1 to 3 points, reactions followed the market closing 1 point higher to 1 net lower. Approximate sales, 18,500 tons. Prices follow:

WHEAT PRICES END DAY WITH MINOR LOSSES

Snow and Rain in West Temper Buying.

BY CHARLES MICHAELS.

Wheat prices fluctuated in an erratic manner yesterday within a range of ⅝@¾c. There was a lack of the aggressive buying of the previous day, although a minor upturn was witnessed early. However, the bulk of the day's business was of an evening up character, as today is the last day for trading in the December contract and all of the leading exchanges will be closed Friday and Saturday.

Reports of heavy snow and rain over parts of the winter wheat belt helped temper bullish enthusiasm to a considerable extent and the close was at net losses of ⅛@⅜c with December finishing at 54¼@54⅝c; May, 56⅜@, and July, 55⅝@55⅞c.

Await Better Export Demand.

There is a widespread belief on the part of the trade that as soon as the holidays are out of the way there will be a much better foreign demand for cash wheat, and possibly some appreciation in prices. Numerous cables have been received of late intimating that foreign interest would become active early in January. There were evidences of improvement in the demand yesterday with sales of 500,000 to 600,000 bu in all positions, but the reports suggested that the day's business was in excess of these figures. Included in the total was a cargo of hard winter from Galveston to Greece, the first sales of consequence in several weeks.

One of the most widespread rain and snow storms of the season was reported as prevailing over the western sections of the winter wheat belt. According to private returns many points in the areas which needed moisture the most were receiving a heavy snow covering. Some improvement in the crop comments from the western sections is anticipated in the immediate future.

The Liverpool wheat market was affected to some extent by reports of wet weather in Argentine, and in addition to probable damage to the quality of the new grain, country roads were said to be in bad shape and likely to curtail the movement to terminals. Futures in Liverpool finished equal to ⅛@⅜c per bu higher with May quoted at 57⅝c on the basis of $3.40 for sterling. Winnipeg was firm early, but eased later and closed ⅛@¼c lower, with May at 62½c in Canadian currency. The exchange rate was quoted around 18 per cent discount, against 18⅜c on Tuesday. Buenos Aires closed unchanged to 8c lower with January at 43⅞c.

December Corn Firm.

Selling of corn against purchases of wheat gave the former market an easier tone at times, but the day's range was only ⅛@1c with the finish unchanged to ⅛c lower, the former on December, which was 36⅛c at the last. May closed at 41⅛@41¼c, and July, 42¾c. There was no pressure on the December delivery, and shorts were disposed to cover, as there is only one more business day in which to even up outstanding contracts.

Shipping demand for cash corn was very slow with sales of only 5,000 bu reported, all to northern Wisconsin points. Purchases of 20,000 bu were made to arrive.

December oats acted a little tight, as cash interests are said to be long and want a delivery of the grain, the nearby future finished ¼c higher at 25⅛c, while the deferred were unchanged to ⅛c lower with the July showing the decline due to selling by houses with northwestern connections. May closed at 26¼c, and July at 25⅝c.

There was some export business put through in rye at the seaboard yesterday, but the quantity was not given. Action of wheat was the main influence with the close ¼@⅜c lower. December closed at 41⅛c; May at 46c, and July at 46⅛c.

NEW YORK, Dec. 30.—(AP)—Bleachable cottonseed oil today closed unchanged to 7 points lower with sales of 16 contracts. Sales included 4 in exchange of contract of March for July and 2½ points difference. Scattered liquidation developed on easiness of hogs and grains, offsetting steadier lard and cotton markets. JAPAN BUYS COTTON

Japan was said to be a good buyer yesterday of both future and spot cotton. The spot buying basis over the south remains strong, with spot sales, port receipts, and exports large, and indications are that there will be a continued heavy movement. Prices, however, held within a narrow range, with futures in Chicago unchanged to 6 points higher and other markets unchanged to 7 points higher. Spots in New York were unchanged at 6.55c; 5 points higher in New Orleans, at 6.40c; Galveston, 6.40c, and Houston, 6.30c. Liverpool closed 5@6 points net lower.

New York reported that the market there was meeting with more southern selling, with the demand equal to the offerings; also that new speculative buying is coming in.

Export clearances in all ports Tuesday were reported at 66,832 bales, against 27,480 bales a year ago. There is said to be much doubt as to whether the 30 per-cent reduction in acreage law will be enforced. Prices follow:

LOW PRICES FOR LARD

Lard prices are so low, May delivery selling at under 5¼c a lb, that it is inducing new investment buying and broadening of the trade among commission houses. There were limited offerings of futures yesterday, the price advanced 10@15c, distant futures leading, to close at the top. Liverpool lard was in lower on spot, unchanged for January and 6d lower for May. Export clearances were 1,130,950 lbs. There were no trades in dry salted bellies for future delivery and only a fair demand for cash lard and meats, the latter being $5.30 and bellies and short ribs, $5.62½. Hog prices were lower with receipts larger than a week and a year ago. Prices follow:

HIDE FUTURES

Hide futures on the New York Hide exchange closed unchanged to 5 points higher. June was the only delivery traded in. Exchange operators are apparently awaiting settlement of the deadlock between the large packers and the tanners. Until activity is resumed in the spot market basis of trading in the futures market will remain uncertain. June sold at 7.35@7.38c and closed at 7.37c. Total sales, 120,000 lbs.

NEWS OF THE CROPS

"In the eastern half of Kansas wheat has made excellent growth as a result of the ample supply of moisture in November and above normal temperatures," says the Kansas weekly weather report. "In the eastern half of the state the ground was firm enough for pasturing, furnishing good feed. About 80 per cent of the state's corn crop has been husbed."

The abnormally mild weather, with generally ample soil moisture over the main winter wheat belt, has resulted in continued growth," says the weekly government report. "In some parts, principally Kentucky and Ohio valley sections, wheat has become too rank, while in northwestern parts local heaving has been noted. In the central Rockies district the grain is mostly covered with snow with almost a complete absence of snow in more northern districts."

Reports from Indiana to Lamson Brothers says Hessian fly is reported in that territory, which could do great damage to wheat, as it is in perfect state for breeding.

Unsettled wet weather in the Argentine will cause deterioration to some of the grain that is exposed and will delay deliveries at the markets and at the seaboard, says Broomhall. Weather in Europe is cold and floating ice on the Danube is making navigation difficult and exports are not expected to be heavy during the next three months.
